TRF residents use insurance response plan

During the first six months of 1993, the Minnesota Insurance Information Center's toll-free consumer response program received 12 inquiries from the Thief River Falls area, according to Dave Cummings, president and CEO of the center, a nonprofit consumer and public information organization sponsored and funded by the insurance industry of Minnesota.

Six of the 12 inquiries related to health insurance, two to liability and one each to auto, home, life and miscellaneous.

"Insurance protection has become an important part of everyone's life today," Cummings said. "Public awareness about insurance-related issues continues to grow at a record pace, and as a result consumers are reviewing their personal insurance situations carefully and more frequently."

The consumer response program helps Minnesotans make successful insurance decisions by directly answering their questions about different types of insurance products.

Overall, the center received 8,913 inquiries during the first six months of 1993. Forty-five per cent of the injuries related to health care with 4,072 calls. Automobile insurance questions were next with 1,904 calls for 21 per cent.

Life insurance was involved in 734 calls (8%) and Medicare supplement fourth with 533 calls (5%). The remaining 16 per cent of the calls were about other forms of insurance including annuities, administration, liability, property and workers' compensation insurance, in that order.

Staffed by retried insurance professionals, the consumer response program is available to consumers Monday through Friday between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. The toll-free number statewide is 1-800-642-6121.

Rep. Peterson asks for disaster relief

Congressman Collin Peterson recently announced that the $3 billion flood disaster package being considered by the House will be followed by additional funding for victims.

"In all of the disaster bills passed since 1988, the amount appropriated has always been less than the amount of the loss," Peterson said. "Calculating the exact amount requires waiting until after all crops are harvested nationwide and forms are in, and this delays payments to people.

"To avoid this situation, the original appropriation was introduced at 50.04 per cent, the amount paid for Hurricane Andrew and Anniki. This is clearly not enough to repair the flood damage."

In a meeting Thursday with OMB secretary Leon Panetta and others in the Administration, Peterson said he and other members of Congress convinced them to raise the appropriation to 90 per cent in this bill, increasing the disaster payment from $.21 to nearly $.30 on each dollar of loss.

Peterson said he will try to improve the disaster program in the final bill when the full amount of the loss is known.

Disaster relief is paid through the formula established in the 1990 farm bill. All farmers who meet the criteria of that bill will qualify whether in a disaster county or not.

Bud has been operating the company since 1963, but it started with his father in 1938. Over the years the company has recorded a number of changes, including the addition of scrap iron and steel. Three full-time, and three part-time employees work at the company. In the above picture, Evans and the chamber ambassadors, Kermit Genereux, and Leann Nelson, stand in front of a building which was built at the site to store steel. The new location has access to a rail line, and a scale. It is open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and until noon on Saturday.

State GED testing increases

The number of adults taking and successfully completing GED testing in Minnesota increased by over eight percent in 1992.

About 6,700 Minnesotans received their Secondary School Equivalency Certificates (GEDs) last year, an increase of 502 from 1991.

In Thief River Falls 16 people successfully finished the test out of 27 people who took the test during 1992. In 1991, 41 people took the test and 28 people successfully completed it.

In all jurisdictions served by the GED testing program during 1992, including the United States, Canada and the U.S. territories, 790,565 people took the GED tests — two percent fewer than in 1991.

There was a 39 per cent increase in the number of people who qualified for special test administrations because of specific learning disabilities. The GED tests are administered in Braille, audiocassette and large print for the visually impaired.

The national percentage of GED candidates who planned further study beyond the high school level reached 61 per cent. About 90 per cent of people who took the test in Thief River Falls planned post-high school study, estimated test administrator Dean Dalen.

Young adults under age 25 account for about 56 per cent of all examinees nationwide. The average age has been about 27 for nearly a decade.

In 1992, one in every six high school credentials issued in the United States was a GED certificate.

Only DNR to issue burning permits

As a result of statutory changes enacted by the Minnesota Legislature, permits for open burning can no longer be obtained from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA), beginning August 1.

Open burning permits are available only for vegetative material and will be available from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources fire wardens and forestry offices.

Forestry personnel have issued permits in the past and now will have the sole responsibility for issuing permits statewide.

The MPCA reminds Minnesota residents that, except for issuing permits, the state's open burning laws have not changed. The agency encourages the use of less harmful disposal methods for vegetative wastes, including chipping and composting. Burning household wastes is not allowed.

Special permits for permanent tree and brush burning sites and for fire department training must be issued by forestry offices. Municipalities with current permits for permanent tree and brush burning sites should apply for new permits through their local forestry office by August 18.

Permits for fire department training after August 1 must also be issued by forestry offices.

For additional information, contact George Meadows of the Department of Natural Resources at (612) 296-4490.

State GED testing increases

About 6,700 Minnesotans received their Secondary School Equivalency Certificates (GEDs) last year, an increase of 502 from 1991.

In Thief River Falls 16 people successfully finished the test out of 27 people who took the test during 1992. In 1991, 41 people took the test and 28 people successfully completed it.

In all jurisdictions served by the GED testing program during 1992, including the United States, Canada and the U.S. territories, 790,565 people took the GED tests — two percent fewer than in 1991.

There was a 39 per cent increase in the number of people who qualified for special test administrations because of specific learning disabilities. The GED tests are administered in Braille, audiocassette and large print for the visually impaired.

The national percentage of GED candidates who planned further study beyond the high school level reached 61 per cent. About 90 per cent of people who took the test in Thief River Falls planned post-high school study, estimated test administrator Dean Dalen.

Young adults under age 25 account for about 56 per cent of all examinees nationwide. The average age has been about 27 for nearly a decade.

In 1992, one in every six high school credentials issued in the United States was a GED certificate.

Only DNR to issue burning permits

As a result of statutory changes enacted by the Minnesota Legislature, permits for open burning can no longer be obtained from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA), beginning August 1.

Open burning permits are available only for vegetative material and will be available from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources fire wardens and forestry offices.

Forestry personnel have issued permits in the past and now will have the sole responsibility for issuing permits statewide.

The MPCA reminds Minnesota residents that, except for issuing permits, the state's open burning laws have not changed. The agency encourages the use of less harmful disposal methods for vegetative wastes, including chipping and composting. Burning household wastes is not allowed.

Special permits for permanent tree and brush burning sites and for fire department training must be issued by forestry offices. Municipalities with current permits for permanent tree and brush burning sites should apply for new permits through their local forestry office by August 18.

Permits for fire department training after August 1 must also be issued by forestry offices.

For additional information, contact George Meadows of the Department of Natural Resources at (612) 296-4490.

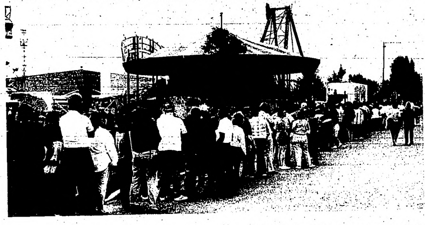
INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE



When rain and threatening weather forced the Tanya Tucker performances inside the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center at the Pennington county fair, reserved seating was disrupted and ticket holders were given open bleacher seating if they had bleacher tickets or chair seating if they had track seating tickets. In an effort to get good seats, ticket holders fell into line early. By the time the doors to the civic center opened for the first show, the line extended east from the doors to Brooks Avenue (top photo), south on Brooks to highway 59 (bottom photo) and west down the shoulder of the highway. The scene was repeated for the 9 p.m. show with the line forming as soon as the doors closed to start the 7 p.m. show. Total attendance was about 4,000 with 3,707 paid. Object of all the attention is pictured at left as she presented her opening number at the 9 p.m. show.

PROTECTING YOUR FUTURE

Did you know that replacing your home and all of the important things in it is just a part of what your homeowners policy protects?

It also guards your future with liability coverage—your protection against being held responsible for accidents that happen to others on your property.

An accident on your property can be far more expensive than the amount it would take to replace your possessions. Without liability coverage, one accident and lawsuit could cost you a life's income.

The good habit of keeping your property in shape can go a long way in reducing the danger of accidents and keeping your insurance costs down.

It's a good idea to make a list of your belongings when you take out homeowner's insurance. While you're doing it, take a look around your home with an eye toward safety, and remove any hazards you may find. Don't let your home be "an accident waiting to happen."

NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is available to provide you with the insurance protection you require. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thursday. The office of NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is conveniently located in the Northern State Bank building.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

It's that time of the summer season—the time for mosquito's!! And, because it is time for our Minnesota State Bird, the giant mosquito, it is also the time for porches—screened porches!

If you are fortunate, you have a porch, with screens, where you can go to enjoy the out of doors and not feel as if you are the meal and dessert of a multitude of hungry fat mosquitoes. We walked into our yard a night ago after our walk, and were immediately met by a swarm of these healthy flying insects. Instead of sitting for a moment in our backyard, we headed to our front porch and sat in the freshness of the out-of-doors, but minus mosquitoes.

On our walks I have made note of the front porches in our town. It seems that the majority of the older homes have these delightful appendages. Some of them are quite large, encompassing the entire width of the house. Some, like ours, are smaller. Some of the porches I've noted seem well used, some seem abandoned. Some are being remodeled. Others are being repaired.

Front porches can become catch-alls, particularly if they are of substantial size. Where else can that old couch go except to the front porch? Where else can that unused, in the way, table or chair go except to the front porch? The front porch is a place to sit and relax isn't it, so why not put a generation or two of old, half used furniture there so that it can be used on a nice mosquito infested evening?

On our front porch, is an old bench and a chair and a footstool and a table with a couple of plants. The bench has seen many years of use on a porch as it first sat on the side porch at my husband's home in Connecticut. That porch was delightful. It was on the side of the house, off of the living room. The porch was screened. Connecticut mosquitoes are just about as large as Minnesota's, so it was a well used place in the summer. The screens had roller shades which we needed to remember to pull down in case of a heavy rain so that everything on the porch wouldn't get soaked. This porch contained my bench, plus a picnic table and an assortment of chairs—some comfortable, some not so comfortable. The porch was surrounded on the outside by a variety of bushes, so that when you sat on the porch, you were also surrounded by nature.

My in-laws porch kept us cool on hot summer days. It also gave us protection from the bugs of summer, except for the summer that my mother-in-law decided to let the praying mantis live and grow on her porch—her reasoning was that they ate bugs, so they had to be good bugs to have around! My in-laws porch gave us many memories of quiet times with our children as we watched them color, and play with the old trucks, and read the old books. We didn't watch the neighbors from this porch, but we spent time with each other there. It's a porch to remember fondly as we sit on that bench from that other porch that's now on our own porch.

I have lived in many houses and in many towns across our nation. Most of the houses we have lived in had a porch, but this house of mine here in Thief River has what none of the other porches had, as this porch has screens. As I would sit on my other porches, enjoying the out of doors and relaxing with friends and neighbors and family, I would think to myself that all I needed to make my porch truly delightful was screening. Well, now, my porch has screens. The bugs and I do not need to fight. I really enjoy not being the supper for them.

Porches are good places for family and friends to meet and have good times together. But porches are also wonderful places for quiet reflection alone. The beauty of my front porch is in its screens, but it is also lovely as a place just for any one of us to find a spot to be alone. When we need that special time away from everyone else, the porch is a great place to go. Usually the only one who knows you are there is the dog. And who doesn't value the devotion of a dog during times when solitude is important?

This summer has been a cool, wet summer. It's been a summer in which I have not felt too much inclination to stop and sit a while on my porch, but maybe now that mosquito season has truly invaded our lives, and maybe if the sun brings some warmth to our lives, just maybe I'll be tempted to relax in comfort on my porch. Soon it will be the place to put on boots and wipe off the snow from our feet before entering the house. I better relish my summer porch while it lasts!

PROTECTING YOUR FUTURE
Did you know that replacing your home and all of the important things in it is just a part of what your homeowners policy protects?
It also guards your future with liability coverage—your protection against being held responsible for accidents that happen to others on your property.
An accident on your property can be far more expensive than the amount it would take to replace your possessions. Without liability coverage, one accident and lawsuit could cost you a life's income.
The good habit of keeping your property in shape can go a long way in reducing the danger of accidents and keeping your insurance costs down.
It's a good idea to make a list of your belongings when you take out homeowner's insurance. While you're doing it, take a look around your home with an eye toward safety, and remove any hazards you may find. Don't let your home be "an accident waiting to happen."
NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is available to provide you with the insurance protection you require. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thursday. The office of NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is conveniently located in the Northern State Bank building.

It's that time of the summer season—the time for mosquito's!! And, because it is time for our Minnesota State Bird, the giant mosquito, it is also the time for porches—screened porches!

If you are fortunate, you have a porch, with screens, where you can go to enjoy the out of doors and not feel as if you are the meal and dessert of a multitude of hungry fat mosquitoes. We walked into our yard a night ago after our walk, and were immediately met by a swarm of these healthy flying insects. Instead of sitting for a moment in our backyard, we headed to our front porch and sat in the freshness of the out-of-doors, but minus mosquitoes.

On our walks I have made note of the front porches in our town. It seems that the majority of the older homes have these delightful appendages. Some of them are quite large, encompassing the entire width of the house. Some, like ours, are smaller. Some of the porches I've noted seem well used, some seem abandoned. Some are being remodeled. Others are being repaired.

Front porches can become catch-alls, particularly if they are of substantial size. Where else can that old couch go except to the front porch? Where else can that unused, in the way, table or chair go except to the front porch? The front porch is a place to sit and relax isn't it, so why not put a generation or two of old, half used furniture there so that it can be used on a nice mosquito infested evening?

On our front porch, is an old bench and a chair and a footstool and a table with a couple of plants. The bench has seen many years of use on a porch as it first sat on the side porch at my husband's home in Connecticut. That porch was delightful. It was on the side of the house, off of the living room. The porch was screened. Connecticut mosquitoes are just about as large as Minnesota's, so it was a well used place in the summer. The screens had roller shades which we needed to remember to pull down in case of a heavy rain so that everything on the porch wouldn't get soaked. This porch contained my bench, plus a picnic table and an assortment of chairs—some comfortable, some not so comfortable. The porch was surrounded on the outside by a variety of bushes, so that when you sat on the porch, you were also surrounded by nature.

My in-laws porch kept us cool on hot summer days. It also gave us protection from the bugs of summer, except for the summer that my mother-in-law decided to let the praying mantis live and grow on her porch—her reasoning was that they ate bugs, so they had to be good bugs to have around! My in-laws porch gave us many memories of quiet times with our children as we watched them color, and play with the old trucks, and read the old books. We didn't watch the neighbors from this porch, but we spent time with each other there. It's a porch to remember fondly as we sit on that bench from that other porch that's now on our own porch.

I have lived in many houses and in many towns across our nation. Most of the houses we have lived in had a porch, but this house of mine here in Thief River has what none of the other porches had, as this porch has screens. As I would sit on my other porches, enjoying the out of doors and relaxing with friends and neighbors and family, I would think to myself that all I needed to make my porch truly delightful was screening. Well, now, my porch has screens. The bugs and I do not need to fight. I really enjoy not being the supper for them.

Porches are good places for family and friends to meet and have good times together. But porches are also wonderful places for quiet reflection alone. The beauty of my front porch is in its screens, but it is also lovely as a place just for any one of us to find a spot to be alone. When we need that special time away from everyone else, the porch is a great place to go. Usually the only one who knows you are there is the dog. And who doesn't value the devotion of a dog during times when solitude is important?

This summer has been a cool, wet summer. It's been a summer in which I have not felt too much inclination to stop and sit a while on my porch, but maybe now that mosquito season has truly invaded our lives, and maybe if the sun brings some warmth to our lives, just maybe I'll be tempted to relax in comfort on my porch. Soon it will be the place to put on boots and wipe off the snow from our feet before entering the house. I better relish my summer porch while it lasts!

$8,554.34 compared with $7,556 in 1992, $7,140 in 1991 and $6,567 in 1990. 4-H club premiums were down slightly to $1,797.50 from $1,823.50 in 1992. They totaled $1,731.50 in 1991 and $1,856 in 1990.

Greatest increase in open class premiums was in the horse division where $1,722.34 was paid out this year compared with $1,137.50 in 1992 and $867.50 in 1991. Premiums for sheep more than doubled to $728 from $357.50 last year and swine premiums totaled $68.50 where there were no entries a year ago. Dairy premiums were up from $612.50 in 1992 to $695 this year while beef premiums dropped to $1,474.50 from $1,719 last year.

Fair board members were also encouraged by the opening day Wednesday which has usually been a "warm-up" day prior to the Thursday entry day. Carnival activity was good despite a late start and there was a large attendance at the free Gospel music night at the bandshell.

Team penning drew a fair crowd of spectators although it rained about starting time at 5 p.m. but team numbers were outstanding, according to chairman Tom Scheef. There were six teams entered in the youth division, 18 teams in the draw where individual entrants were drawn to make up three-member teams, and 54 team entries in the open class. Action continued until dark but all teams were able to compete.

Parking on the grounds was up about 10 per cent from the previous year and attendance at the main bandshell was good throughout the fair. The only real attendance disappointment was at the Friday night program by The Jets when there were only a little over 100 paid admissions.

Paul Bergeron of Argyle won the Model 580 ZR Arctic Cat snowmobile in the county fair raffle drawing. Maxene Wicklander of Thief River Falls won the Tigershark personal watercraft and Steve Wegner of Thief River Falls won the Polaris 4-wheeler. Rosie Ulrich of Thief River Falls claimed the $1,000 cash prize and Nathan Knutson of Thief River Falls the $500 cash prize.

Winners of $50 each were David Huber, St. Hilaire; Brian Nelson, Goodridge; Jim Gailfus, Rolla, ND; Mike Vanyo, Richfield; Richard Faus, Lake Park; Les Snetting, Ron Cassavant, Oscar Mossestad, Scott Bergland and Stan Olson, all of Thief River Falls.

"All things considered I think we can be satisfied that it was a pretty good fair," reflected fair board president Norris Thune. "With exhibit entries up, nearly double the number of food stands operating and satisfied with their business and parking, carnival gross and overall attendance up from last year, it's hard to be too disappointed. But it does leave us wondering if conditions had been perfect how great a fair it really could have been."

Rain dampens grounds but not enthusiasm for fair

$8,554.34 compared with $7,556 in 1992, $7,140 in 1991 and $6,567 in 1990. 4-H club premiums were down slightly to $1,797.50 from $1,823.50 in 1992. They totaled $1,731.50 in 1991 and $1,856 in 1990.

Greatest increase in open class premiums was in the horse division where $1,722.34 was paid out this year compared with $1,137.50 in 1992 and $867.50 in 1991. Premiums for sheep more than doubled to $728 from $357.50 last year and swine premiums totaled $68.50 where there were no entries a year ago. Dairy premiums were up from $612.50 in 1992 to $695 this year while beef premiums dropped to $1,474.50 from $1,719 last year.

Fair board members were also encouraged by the opening day Wednesday which has usually been a "warm-up" day prior to the Thursday entry day. Carnival activity was good despite a late start and there was a large attendance at the free Gospel music night at the bandshell.

Team penning drew a fair crowd of spectators although it rained about starting time at 5 p.m. but team numbers were outstanding, according to chairman Tom Scheef. There were six teams entered in the youth division, 18 teams in the draw where individual entrants were drawn to make up three-member teams, and 54 team entries in the open class. Action continued until dark but all teams were able to compete.

Parking on the grounds was up about 10 per cent from the previous year and attendance at the main bandshell was good throughout the fair. The only real attendance disappointment was at the Friday night program by The Jets when there were only a little over 100 paid admissions.

Paul Bergeron of Argyle won the Model 580 ZR Arctic Cat snowmobile in the county fair raffle drawing. Maxene Wicklander of Thief River Falls won the Tigershark personal watercraft and Steve Wegner of Thief River Falls won the Polaris 4-wheeler. Rosie Ulrich of Thief River Falls claimed the $1,000 cash prize and Nathan Knutson of Thief River Falls the $500 cash prize.

Winners of $50 each were David Huber, St. Hilaire; Brian Nelson, Goodridge; Jim Gailfus, Rolla, ND; Mike Vanyo, Richfield; Richard Faus, Lake Park; Les Snetting, Ron Cassavant, Oscar Mossestad, Scott Bergland and Stan Olson, all of Thief River Falls.

"All things considered I think we can be satisfied that it was a pretty good fair," reflected fair board president Norris Thune. "With exhibit entries up, nearly double the number of food stands operating and satisfied with their business and parking, carnival gross and overall attendance up from last year, it's hard to be too disappointed. But it does leave us wondering if conditions had been perfect how great a fair it really could have been."

Sharon LaCoursiere

. . . TV or not TV

Lately I've been doing something I don't usually do, watching quite a bit of television. Not knowing what shows are on when or where, or even what they are about, I decided to purchase one of those magazines that tell all about television programs to get some information on interesting shows I might like to watch.

Who writes those description blurbs on upcoming shows anyway? Does someone actually sit down and watch the show and then write something, or does the blurb come from the producer?

Have you had a chance to read one of those television programming magazines lately? If you haven't, don't bother to buy one, because it will turn you off of television shows forever. Believe me, after you read the description of what shows are on, you will probably choose not to watch anything at all.

Then too, if you choose the shows you are going to watch by reading the descriptions in the book, you will more than likely miss several shows that you would really enjoy, because the program guide book has the knack of making even the most interesting show sound like utter nonsense.

Here are some examples of the blurbs for the "exciting" television shows that are available this week:

— "Protected witness Miles returns to see Rose: Blanche learns of a burl on her Confederate family tree." (Golden Girls) (Is this exciting, or what?)

— "Dave's toothache leads to romance for Sandy, who's feeling no pain after dating the dentist." (Hogan Family) (Oh, one man's pain is another's gain.)

— This one sounds like a real corker, and all of this excitement is packed into a half hour program: "While Rebecca prepares to give birth, Jesse undergoes emergency surgery and Danny plans to film the twins' arrival." (Full House)

— "After Jamie's crush steals a history test, he offers to take the blame if she'll be his steady." (Small Wonder) (Is this a teeny-bopper show, or what?)

— "A small-town rubbish collector invents a device that makes his girl a giant." (And this exciting plot is presented in a one hour, forty minute-long movie called, "The 30 Foot Bride of Candy Rock." Lucky thing, it is described as a comedy.)

— Isn't this an original plot: "WWII romance about a kept woman and a paratrooper who meet on a New York-bound train and fall in love." (Movie: That Kind of Woman)

— Another original plot: "Martin, desperate to make a good impression on Gina's parents, takes advice from Cole that causes him to act like an idiot." (Martin)

—And this one has to be the most exciting of all: "Captain Peacock gets a key to the executive washroom." (Are You Being Served?)

Some of the famous daily talk shows sound equally "exciting." Here are just a few of the topics you can take in this week on Phil Donahue, Oprah Winfrey and/or Sally Jessy Raphael:

— Spousal abuse and marital breakups,
— Male nudity,
— Viewer mail,
— A discussion of homemakers leading double lives,
— Makeovers for larger sized women,
— Teen Pregnancy,
— AIDS,
— Former couples discuss why their relationships ended,
— Job dismissals blamed on office romances,
— Flirtatious husbands,
— Reunions between estranged family members,
— Domineering husbands.

My advice is, don't bother to waste your time looking through a television programming magazine. You're much better off risking the wrath of your family and friends by clicking the remote control through the channels until you find something that interests you.

If I ever turn my television set on again, that's surely what I'm going to do.

TRF 14-15-year-olds head to state tournament

Wins over Warroad 16-6 and Red Lake Falls 13-10, followed by two days of rain, advanced the Thief River Falls 14-15-year-olds into the 1993 Babe Ruth state baseball tournament this week in Robbinsdale.

Six-team, double-elimination Lake Agassiz Seventh District tournament got underway Thursday in Roseau, advancing unbeaten Thief River Falls and once-beaten East Grand Forks into the Saturday finals. Rain set the match-up back a day, and additional rain Sunday prompted officials to award title and state tournament trip to Thief River Falls.

First Thief River Falls start in the double-elimination state tournament will be against the yet un-named District 4 champion at 3 p.m. Thursday.

Meanwhile, East Grand Forks will represent the Lake Agassiz Seventh District at the state in-tact runner-up tournament beginning Thursday in Dilworth.

Chris Nelson, Corey Poole and Barry Dowers serve as coaches of the state tournament-bound Thief River Falls squad, which includes players from the regular season Lobos, Marlins, Mudhens, and Strikers Babe Ruth rosters.

A seven-inning contest took two days to complete before Thief River Falls came out a 16-6 winner over Warroad.

Thief River Falls owned an 11-4 lead after six innings Thursday night when darkness halted play. The game was resumed Friday morning when Thief River Falls out-scored Warroad 5-2 in the seventh for the 10-run final spread.

Kaine Martell and Bryan Cleven were both 2-for-4 for the winners, who were out-hit 12-9. The Warroad edge in the hit department was erased, however, by six errors and 13 walks.

Thief River Falls starting pitcher Rob Stock left in the fourth inning because of an injury. The win went to Paul Otto with 2 2/3 innings of one-run relief. Cleven pitched seventh. They combined on seven strike-outs and seven walks.

Losing pitcher Pat Frolander was replaced by Brent Poole in the second inning. They struck out six but had trouble with the walks.

Men's Softball

Cellular 2000 kept its winning streak going with a bottom of the seventh inning run in a 13-12 first-game win over Northwest Eye Center in Thursday's Thief River Falls Men's Slow Pitch Softball League play.

And it was another final at-bat run that decided the second half of the twinbill for the Division I leaders, by the same 13-12 margin. However, the second-game verdict went to Pepsi, ending a 55-game regular season league winning streak for Cellular 2000.

Dennis Bendickson, manager for the Cellular 2000 squad was also around three years ago when his team, then playing as the American Legion, saw a 38-game league winning streak end. The group started its 55-game streak as Swede's Place before switching to Cellular 2000 this summer.

Current team members Bob Huot, Mike Gast and Darrin Leier also played for Bendickson on the American Legion team that won the 38-straight league games.

Thief River Falls teams will compete regular season play next week.

Lakers sweep TRF Legion

Detroit Lakes overcame a 5-0 deficit to win an eight-inning opener 7-6, then completed a Friday night doubleheader sweep against visiting Thief River Falls with a 4-0 five-inning nightcap decision in American Legion baseball.

It was the first time all year the Post 117 team lost both doubleheader games. The Lakers improved to 11-12.

The games were played in the rain and fog. The weather, and the lateness of the affair shortened the scheduled seven-inning second game to five frames.

"It was a disappointing night," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "Detroit Lakes played really well. They wanted to play. We weren't as hungry as they were."

Detroit Lakes	7
Thief River Falls	6

Catcher Matt Schiller came up with a one-out, bases-loaded single in the bottom of the eighth inning to score two runs and give Detroit Lakes a 7-6 Game 1 win over Thief River Falls.

An early Post 117 edge featured a five-run fourth inning as Marc Haugen drove in two runs and Carter Rogalla, Steve Burslie and Robert Nelson all had RBI singles.

Detroit Lakes came back for a 5-5 tie, but Nathan Knutson made it 6-5, Thief River Falls, with an RBI single in the top of the eighth, only to have the Lakers win it in the bottom of the inning.

Burslie and Dave Blazek both had a pair of hits.

Jeremy Olson was Thief River Falls' starting pitcher, giving way to Haugen in the sixth. Joby Looker came on in the eighth and took the loss, with Rogalla on the mound for the final hit.

Legion takes pair of games from Roseau

Solid pitching and defense, along with adequate offense, carried Thief River Falls to a 3-0, 8-2 American Legion baseball doubleheader sweep over Roseau Monday at Irv Wilson Field.

The wins put Post 117 at 25-7 heading into a final home appearance of the year Thursday – a 5:30 p.m. doubleheader against East Grand Forks.

Rick Ostby, firmly established as the team's No. 1 pitcher, turned in another strong performance with a two-hit shutout as Thief River Falls beat Roseau 3-0 in Game 1.

Ostby struck out eight and walked only two. The two hits he gave up both went to Josh Stromlund – a lead-off double in the second inning and a lead-off single in the seventh.

Thief River Falls mustered only four hits, but used three of them to score runs. Marc Haugen singled in the third, stole second and scored on an error. Carter Rogalla followed suit in the fourth with a single, stolen base, wild pitch and error making it 2-0.

Final run crossed the plate in the sixth when Rogalla picked up his second hit of the game and later scored on a sacrifice fly by Ostby.

Stromlund was the losing pitcher.

An error-free outing and a combined five-hit pitching effort by Jayson Olson and Brian Minks netted an 8-2 second-game Thief River Falls win.

This time Post 117 added some offense to its repertoire, an 11-hit attack that included a two hits apiece by Robert Nelson, Joby Looker, Jason Svir, and Olson. Nelson drove in three runs; Svir had a double, triple and two RBI.

A first-inning lead-off walk issued to Marc Haugen led to a 1-0 Thief River Falls lead on a wild pitch, stolen base and run-scoring fielder's choice off the bat of Svir.

Three consecutive two-out Roseau singles in the third inning produced the only runs of the night for the visitors, with Andy Hedlund and Josh Stromlund picking up the RBI.

It was a short-lived lead. Thief River Falls came right back with a four-hit, four-run at-bat in the bottom of the third to regain a 5-2 lead. A double by Svir tied it and a two-run single by Nelson put Post 117 in front to stay. A single by Looker drove in the final run of the inning.

Back-to-back singles by Looker and Olson in the fifth were followed by an errant pick-off attempt at third, making it 6-2.

Svir had an RBI triple in the sixth and scored on a single by Nelson to close it out.

By design, Olson pitched the first four innings, giving up four hits, walking one and striking out two. Minks turned in three innings of one-hit relief, striking out two and walking two.

Aaron Stromlund was the losing pitcher in a complete-game outing.

Proposed regulations in place for waterfowl season

Based on preliminary duck and goose population information, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is proposing tentative waterfowl seasons for public comment.

Declines in migrant Canada goose populations size will require more restrictive Canada goose seasons in the western portion of the state, according to Tim Bremicker, chief of the DNR Section of Wildlife. "Minnesota is planning a duck season similar to the last two years with a three-part split season to provide some late-season hunting opportunity," Bremicker said.

Eastern Prairie Population of Canada geese, which breeds in northern Manitoba and migrates through western Minnesota, has declined for the past two years. The 1993 breeding population of 212,500 was 29 percent below the 300,000 population objective, and 31 percent below the breeding population of two years ago. Although the Goose Management Plan, which guides the Mississippi Flyway Council, recommends a 50 percent reduction in harvest when the breeding population is below 225,000, there was excellent production of young in 1993, Bremicker said. Therefore, Minnesota is proposing restrictions that will result in at least a 25 percent reduction in harvest in the state this year.

"If the breeding population continues to decline, we will be required to implement further restrictions on Canada goose seasons next year," Bremicker said.

Minnesota's 1993 proposed seasons will require Mississippi Flyway Council and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service approval before they are final.

To achieve at least a 25 percent reduction in Canada goose harvest, the DNR is proposing new West and Northwest goose zones and a split goose season in the existing West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones, noted Bremicker. Proposed Minnesota waterfowl seasons for 1993 are as follows.

Geese

Possession limits in all zones will be twice the daily bag limits.

1) West Goose Zone (new zone). The proposed Canada goose season in the West Goose Zone (not including the current West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones) is 40 days, from Oct. 2 through Nov. 10, with a daily bag limit of one Canada goose. This new zone would include portions of Minnesota to the west of U.S. Highway 71 from the Iowa border to U.S. Highway 10 at Wadena, and then following highways from Wadena to the North Dakota border at Moorhead.

2) Northwest Goose Zone (new zone). The proposed Canada goose season in the Northwest Zone would also be Oct. 2 through Nov. 10 (40 days), with a daily bag limit of one Canada goose. This new zone would include portions of Minnesota to the north and west of a line following U.S. Highway 2 and state and county roads from the North Dakota border at Grand Forks to Gully in eastern Polk County. From Gully, the zone boundary would follow county and state highways north to the Canadian border.

3) West-Central Goose Zone (season split into two segments. The proposed goose season in the West-Central Zone is Oct. 2 through Oct. 10, and Oct. 16 through Nov. 5, for a total of 30 days. The daily bag limit is one Canada goose.

4) Lac qui Parle Goose Zone (season and harvest index split into two segments. The proposed goose season in the Lac qui Parle Zone is Oct. 2 through Oct. 10, and Oct. 16 through Nov. 5, for a total of 30 days. The daily bag limit is one Canada goose. The goose season in this zone will close earlier than Nov. 5 if a harvest index of 4,000 Canada geese (which would mean an estimated total harvest of 19,600) is reached. In addition, the first segment of the season will close earlier than Oct. 10 if a harvest index of 1,750 Canada geese is reached. That will ensure that the harvest is approximately equal between the two segments and that the season will continue at least through the popular teachers' convention weekend Oct. 21-24, when many families go goose hunting.

5) Southeast Goose Zone. The proposed goose season is Oct. 2 through Dec. 10 (70 days), with a daily bag limit of two Canada geese. In addition, Olmsted County and the Twin Cities Metro Goose Zone will be open for a late Canada goose hunt from Dec. 15 through Dec. 24.

6) Remainder of the state. The proposed Canada goose season is Oct. 2 through Nov. 20 (50 days), with a daily bag limit of two Canada geese.

Ducks

Although preliminary survey results indicated ducks declined from 1992 to 1993, further hunting restrictions will probably not be required, according to the DNR. The conservative season length and bag limits that were started in Mississippi Flyway states in 1988 have kept harvest rates low. Results from the July waterfowl production surveys will be available at the end of the month, providing the information biologists need to fully evaluate waterfowl status.

If Minnesota is permitted the same federal frameworks as in 1992, the proposed duck season would be divided into three segments, similar to the past two years. The first closure would be some weekdays during the week of Oct. 10, and the second closure would be some weekdays during the week of Oct. 31. The teachers' convention weekend is the week of Oct. 17. No change in bag limits is proposed.

"The DNR would appreciate public comment on these proposed changes," Bremicker said. Comment in writing to: Section of Wildlife, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Box 7, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155-4007.

Sorvigs are new Agassiz Leaders

Steve and Roxanne Sorvig of St. Hilaire are the new 1993-1994 Pennington County Agassiz Leaders.

They were crowned last Sunday afternoon in the Pennington county bandshell. Steve and Roxanne have three children — Aaron, 12, Nate, 10 and Tyson, 3.

The Sorvigs are members of the Black River Church, Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce and Steve belongs to the St. Hilaire Lions Club.

Steve has been a member of the Discovery Place advisory board, was a Cub Scout den leader and was a member of the Northwest Technical College Small Business Management advisory committee. Steve also serves as fourth grade basketball coach at Knox school.

Steve and Roxanne Sorvig replace Mark and Michelle Naplin, last year's representatives for Pennington county.

The new couple now has the opportunity to participate in regional leadership programs and to participate in the King Agassiz program at the Red River Valley Winter shows at Crookston in February.

Wednesday Harlan Melo went to town to pick up his mom, Inga Melo, to bring her to his place to help Doreen celebrate her birthday. All had a very nice visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Puga, Daren and Dise of Fort Madison, IA are here visiting with relatives and friends. They are house guests of Clayton Hjelle and are visiting with Grandma Ellen Hjelle.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner of St. Paul visited with Elmer and Anna Holmstrom.

Jeremy Wilson came with Grandpa Curt Thompson on July 1 and will spend the fourth with his Grandpa and Grandma. Jeremy did quite a bit of work for them. On July 4 we went to Plummer for supper and took in the fireworks in the evening. We spent a nice quiet, but fun, fourth with our grandson Jeremy. He also enjoyed it. On Saturday Grandpa and Jeremy drove to Badger Bough and tried their luck at fishing in the Roseau river, but after walking nearly two miles it started to rain. They went back to the car and had supper in Badger before coming back home. We took Jeremy to his home Monday forenoon. He had had a great time.

Humorist on program for aging

"Celebrate Laughter—The Best Medicine" is the title of the luncheon address to be given by Duane Dumas of Grand Forks at the 19th annual conference on aging August 25 at the University of Minnesota—Crookston.

"Dumas will reveal the sillier side of family and intergenerational relationships to the seniors and service providers in attendance at the event," states Faith Rud, director of the Northwest Regional Development commission's Area Agency on Aging. "His message will have healthy interactions even for individuals who are not using any medications that day."

The invitation to "Celebrate Laughter" which Dumas will bring is in keeping with the overall theme for the conference—Celebration of Seniority."

THANKS FOR YOUR HELP AND UNDERSTANDING

We recognize that moving the Tanya Tucker show inside the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center caused confusion and inconvenience to many and we apologize for having that happen.

It takes about eight hours just to set up for such a show and when we made our final decision the rain was starting and lightning was flashing. Either one would cancel an outdoor performance. Too much was on the line to risk canceling the show.

The time involved in set-up and the configuration of the chairs on the arena floor did not permit us to use the seat numbering we had planned outdoors. We especially apologize to ticket holders for being unable to give them the reserved seats they had purchased in advance.

As chairman of the entertainment for the fair, I would like to personally thank the fair board members who pitched in to get the arena ready, the hired young people who worked extra hours, the commercial exhibitors who had their booths disrupted, the 4-H department for its understanding and the following individuals who were of special help in many ways: Curt Howe, Brad Brouse, Kevin Peterson, Jerome Cota, Arlo Rude, Tim Miller, Duane Holland, Sheriff Gerald Moe, Mike Puetz, Rick Olson, Jim Jesme, Jeff Nelson, Myles Olson, LeRoy Vigen and Bob Wold.

Three area teachers participate in advanced placement course

Three area people were among the participants in the Advanced Placement Summer Institute at Bemidji State University. Ann Hoffert and Tim Mostrom of Grygla and Del Stordahl of Greenbush were among the participants in the program that trains high school teachers of advanced placement courses that prepare their students for college course work.

Ann Hoffert, employed by the Grygla public school district as an instructor of high school English, said that the program prepared her to teach an advanced placement composition course in the future.

Tim Mostrom, employed by the Grygla high school as a teacher of science, felt that the workshop increased his basic knowledge of ecology and would help him start an advanced placement biology course at Grygla.

Del Stordahl, employed by the Greenbush public school district as an instructor of high school English, said that the program provided insights into literary criticism as well as the explanations of advanced placement examinations.

The program at BSU was directed by Dr. Michael Field, a BSU professor of English. A program of college-level courses and exams, AP gives high school students the opportunity to receive advanced placement and/or college credit for courses completed in high school.

Academic areas covered by this program were biology, chemistry,

Law toughens penalties for young drinkers

According to the office of Minnesota Attorney General Hubert H. Humphrey III, thousands of Minnesotans are alive today because they've gotten the message—they have stopped drinking and driving.

Yet in 1992 alone, 220 people were killed and nearly 6,000 injured on Minnesota roads in alcohol-related crashes. They included 25 teenagers between the ages of 15 and 19 killed and 855 injured.

A new Minnesota law which went into effect June 1, 1993, cracks down on underaged drinking drivers. Minnesota now has a mandatory six-month license revocation period for those under age 21 found guilty of driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

The "not-a-drop" provision of the law mandates a 30-day license suspension for those under 21 caught drinking and driving—even if they are not beyond the legal limit for DWI at the time of the arrest. The suspension increases to six months for repeat offenders.

For more information on the new, tougher drunk driving laws, contact the Minnesota Attorney General's office at 1400 NCL Tower, 445 Minnesota Street, St. Paul, MN 55101 or call 1-800-657-3787.

Shelly Koland and her dog Sunny won the grand champion award in the 4-H dog show division of Obedience during the 1993 Pennington county fair. The fair was held at the fairgrounds in Thief River Falls last weekend.

BIBLE STUDY

The first church

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

Every religion calling itself Christian tries to imitate the doctrines of the New Testament church. Let's review what happened after that first day at Pentecost.

After the outpouring of the Holy Spirit with fire on the day of Pentecost, the apostles, full of the Holy Spirit, began to preach Christ's message of salvation. The apostles were preaching the message taught them personally by Jesus Christ during His ministry. The message of God reached more people every day (Acts 13:48; 2:47; 18:10). Believers met in homes. Some groups were large and some small, depending on how many people God was calling from a certain area. Sometimes, the apostles would want to go one way, but the Holy Spirit, being the Spirit of Christ, would stop them (Acts 16:6-7). Paul rented a building in one location and preached in houses at other times (Acts 20:7, 20; 28:30-31).

Paul taught the people to engage in good deeds and told them that this is something they would have to learn to do (Titus 3:8, 14). The apostles taught the people to keep Jesus Christ's sayings and works in their daily lives (John 12:47; 14:12; Rev. 2:26; Luke 9:23).

In some locations, because of the number of people, it became necessary to have some form of organization. This was to prevent confusion and to get the task at hand done.

People were becoming completed disciples in those days (2 Cor. 13:9, 11; Col. 1:28). They were new creations with Christ formed in them (Gal. 6:15; 4:19). Sometimes they became weary in doing good deeds for the needy in their community (Gal. 6:9; 2 Thess. 3:13; Luke 3:11; 14:13; Acts 20:35). They were doers of the word (James 1:22). They bore fruit in their spiritual lives (John 15:8). The wealthy were rich in good works (1 Tim. 6:18). The thieves were told to get jobs so they would have money to give to people in need (Eph. 4:28; 2:10).

God was working mightily through all kinds of people in the early church. God taught people directly as they lived for Him (John 6:45; 1 John 2:27). Much good was done by each individual in the early church (Acts 10:4)! People did good on a person-to-person basis (Acts 9:36). Everyone was striving to be the servant of the most and doing many mighty works to glorify God in heaven (Matt. 5:16; 23:11; 1 Peter 2:12, 15-16; 3:11). They understood that good works are necessary for spiritual growth, building godly character and overcoming and they were not lacking in those areas (Acts 26:20; Col. 1:10; Titus 3:14; 1 Tim. 4:7-8; Rev. 2:26). More churches today should imitate these doctrines! Don't you agree?

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

Every religion calling itself Christian tries to imitate the doctrines of the New Testament church. Let's review what happened after that first day at Pentecost.

After the outpouring of the Holy Spirit with fire on the day of Pentecost, the apostles, full of the Holy Spirit, began to preach Christ's message of salvation. The apostles were preaching the message taught them personally by Jesus Christ during His ministry. The message of God reached more people every day (Acts 13:48; 2:47; 18:10). Believers met in homes. Some groups were large and some small, depending on how many people God was calling from a certain area. Sometimes, the apostles would want to go one way, but the Holy Spirit, being the Spirit of Christ, would stop them (Acts 16:6-7). Paul rented a building in one location and preached in houses at other times (Acts 20:7, 20; 28:30-31).

Paul taught the people to engage in good deeds and told them that this is something they would have to learn to do (Titus 3:8, 14). The apostles taught the people to keep Jesus Christ's sayings and works in their daily lives (John 12:47; 14:12; Rev. 2:26; Luke 9:23).

In some locations, because of the number of people, it became necessary to have some form of organization. This was to prevent confusion and to get the task at hand done.

People were becoming completed disciples in those days (2 Cor. 13:9, 11; Col. 1:28). They were new creations with Christ formed in them (Gal. 6:15; 4:19). Sometimes they became weary in doing good deeds for the needy in their community (Gal. 6:9; 2 Thess. 3:13; Luke 3:11; 14:13; Acts 20:35). They were doers of the word (James 1:22). They bore fruit in their spiritual lives (John 15:8). The wealthy were rich in good works (1 Tim. 6:18). The thieves were told to get jobs so they would have money to give to people in need (Eph. 4:28; 2:10).

God was working mightily through all kinds of people in the early church. God taught people directly as they lived for Him (John 6:45; 1 John 2:27). Much good was done by each individual in the early church (Acts 10:4)! People did good on a person-to-person basis (Acts 9:36). Everyone was striving to be the servant of the most and doing many mighty works to glorify God in heaven (Matt. 5:16; 23:11; 1 Peter 2:12, 15-16; 3:11). They understood that good works are necessary for spiritual growth, building godly character and overcoming and they were not lacking in those areas (Acts 26:20; Col. 1:10; Titus 3:14; 1 Tim. 4:7-8; Rev. 2:26). More churches today should imitate these doctrines! Don't you agree?

Another Yeoman's Job By The County Fair Board And Workers

Every year during and following the Pennington county fair we marvel at the way the fair is conducted and how the division of responsibility seems to be accepted and the work performed. If there is dissension in the ranks—and there surely must be some in times of stress—it is well confined and unapparent.

We know of no other activity locally where so many people give so unselfishly of so much time to the production of a public event. Most of the members of the fair board have regular employment and no abundance of free time nor lack of personal responsibilities and activity. Many schedule their vacation time to coincide with the fair so they can devote their full-time attention to their volunteer work there.

When a year like this one comes along with its rain and threat of more rain, the pressures add up and the physical as well as mental work load multiplies. Decisions have to be made in a brief span of time that involve many thousands of dollars and thousands of people while also involving individuals whose personal situations can not be ignored. Diplomacy is difficult to maintain when time and tempers are short.

An example, of course, was the necessity to move the planned outdoor performances by Tanya Tucker inside the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center on Saturday. Not only did it involve moving the outside program in, it meant displacing commercial and 4-H club exhibits which had been laboriously arranged on the arena floor which was needed for stage and seating.

This was not a course of action the fair board preferred to take but it was the only one that could be done. Heavy rain and ground-shaking lightning strikes and thunder around noon affirmed the earlier decision that an outdoor show that evening was out-of-the question. Too many tickets were already sold to use the Lincoln auditorium and electrical power supply at the school was also in question.

With random stage sections from school, city and county fair supplies a stage was fabricated. The lighting and sound systems were assembled, the lights raised into place, commercial booths and 4-H club displays moved, nearly a thousand chairs arranged on the arena floor, radio announcements of the change made to the public and a myriad of other changes made to get things ready for the 7 p.m. show.

"With so many fair board members and hired workers doing so many things at once there would have been ample opportunity for flare-up of tempers," noted Norris Thune, president of the fair board, "but I'm not aware of any. People just pitched in and did what had to be done and somehow it all came together by show time."

Fair board treasurer Terry Nelson also commented on the cohesiveness of the board in working together to make the best of a bad situation. "Sometimes the board members and superintendents themselves are at a loss to explain how they do things," he said, "but they seem to find a way to get the job done."

Yes, there have been and will be some complaints about how things were handled at the fair—but they probably won't make much of an impression on people who were up to their ankles in water cleaning out the goat barn, trying to get four inches of water out of the curling building and the poultry-rabbit-swine-sheep building or scrambling to do their best to assure that concerts to which about 4,000 people had tickets would be performed.

The Pennington county fair board has our admiration for doing yeoman's work every year, but especially this year with its exceptionally adverse weather. It was service above and beyond the call of duty.

And a secondary thanks is due to people of the Thief River Falls community in general—including the surrounding area—who braved the elements to support the fair and show that they really want the fair to continue and for it to offer top name entertainment. It's that support that provides the incentive for county fair officials to work as hard as they do.

Sen. Wellstone Urges Ban On Gifts To Members Of Congress

Minnesota's junior Senator, Paul Wellstone, is proposing to U.S. Senators and Representatives that they should adopt legislation forbidding themselves from accepting gifts from lobbyists. He had previously offered an amendment to require lobbyists to report gifts and financial benefits given to Members of Congress and their staffs.

"Full disclosure of gifts to Members of Congress will help rebuild public confidence in the personal integrity of each member of Congress and the credibility of Congress as an institution," Sen. Wellstone said.

"We are really working on two tracks. At a minimum gifts and other financial benefits from lobbyists should be reported as required by my earlier amendment to the lobby disclosure bill. But the approach I prefer is to impose an outright ban on gifts and other benefits altogether, " he said.

"....Banning gifts would be an important signal of our willingness to respond to the demands of many Americans for a government that is more responsive to its citizens and less responsive to lobbyists and others with special influence with and access to members of Congress."

Sen. Wellstone's suggestion surely wouldn't hurt the image of Congress, but it probably wouldn't change it a great deal, either. Public perception of Congress is that it is a group of individuals on the take for all they can get personally, and that perception has been well earned over a long period of time.

Lip service has always been paramount in Congress and this bill seems to be more of the same. What is needed is action that shows a response to the concerns of the people regarding high taxes and wasteful spending which no one in Congress seems either willing or able to address, gifts or no gifts.

Another Yeoman's Job By The County Fair Board And Workers

Every year during and following the Pennington county fair we marvel at the way the fair is conducted and how the division of responsibility seems to be accepted and the work performed. If there is dissension in the ranks—and there surely must be some in times of stress—it is well confined and unapparent.

We know of no other activity locally where so many people give so unselfishly of so much time to the production of a public event. Most of the members of the fair board have regular employment and no abundance of free time nor lack of personal responsibilities and activity. Many schedule their vacation time to coincide with the fair so they can devote their full-time attention to their volunteer work there.

When a year like this one comes along with its rain and threat of more rain, the pressures add up and the physical as well as mental work load multiplies. Decisions have to be made in a brief span of time that involve many thousands of dollars and thousands of people while also involving individuals whose personal situations can not be ignored. Diplomacy is difficult to maintain when time and tempers are short.

An example, of course, was the necessity to move the planned outdoor performances by Tanya Tucker inside the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center on Saturday. Not only did it involve moving the outside program in, it meant displacing commercial and 4-H club exhibits which had been laboriously arranged on the arena floor which was needed for stage and seating.

This was not a course of action the fair board preferred to take but it was the only one that could be done. Heavy rain and ground-shaking lightning strikes and thunder around noon affirmed the earlier decision that an outdoor show that evening was out of the question. Too many tickets were already sold to use the Lincoln auditorium and electrical power supply at the school was also in question.

With random stage sections from school, city and county fair supplies a stage was fabricated. The lighting and sound systems were assembled, the lights raised into place, commercial booths and 4-H club displays moved, nearly a thousand chairs arranged on the arena floor, radio announcements of the change made to the public and a myriad of other changes made to get things ready for the 7 p.m. show.

"With so many fair board members and hired workers doing so many things at once there would have been ample opportunity for flare-up of tempers," noted Norris Thune, president of the fair board, "but I'm not aware of any. People just pitched in and did what had to be done and somehow it all came together by show time."

Fair board treasurer Terry Nelson also commented on the cohesiveness of the board in working together to make the best of a bad situation. "Sometimes the board members and superintendents themselves are at a loss to explain how they do things," he said, "but they seem to find a way to get the job done."

Yes, there have been and will be some complaints about how things were handled at the fair—but they probably won't make much of an impression on people who were up to their ankles in water cleaning out the goat barn, trying to get four inches of water out of the curling building and the poultry-rabbit-swine-sheep building or scrambling to do their best to assure that concerts to which about 4,000 people had tickets would be performed.

The Pennington county fair board has our admiration for doing yeoman's work every year, but especially this year with its exceptionally adverse weather. It was service above and beyond the call of duty.

And a secondary thanks is due to people of the Thief River Falls community in general—including the surrounding area—who braved the elements to support the fair and show that they really want the fair to continue and for it to offer top name entertainment. It's that support that provides the incentive for county fair officials to work as hard as they do.

Sen. Wellstone Urges Ban On Gifts To Members Of Congress

Minnesota's junior Senator, Paul Wellstone, is proposing to U.S. Senators and Representatives that they should adopt legislation forbidding themselves from accepting gifts from lobbyists. He had previously offered an amendment to require lobbyists to report gifts and financial benefits given to Members of Congress and their staffs.

"Full disclosure of gifts to Members of Congress will help rebuild public confidence in the personal integrity of each member of Congress and the credibility of Congress as an institution," Sen. Wellstone said.

"We are really working on two tracks. At a minimum gifts and other financial benefits from lobbyists should be reported as required by my earlier amendment to the lobby disclosure bill. But the approach I prefer is to impose an outright ban on gifts and other benefits altogether, " he said.

"....Banning gifts would be an important signal of our willingness to respond to the demands of many Americans for a government that is more responsive to its citizens and less responsive to lobbyists and others with special influence with and access to members of Congress.".

Sen. Wellstone's suggestion surely wouldn't hurt the image of Congress, but it probably wouldn't change it a great deal; either. Public perception of Congress is that it is a group of individuals on the take for all they can get personally, and that perception has been well earned over a long period of time.

Lip service has always been paramount in Congress and this bill seems to be more of the same. What is needed is action that shows a response to the concerns of the people regarding high taxes and wasteful spending which no one in Congress seems either willing or able to address, gifts or no gifts.

News of Harvest

"Barley is already being harvested and the harvest of wheat will commence on the sand ridges in many places the last of the week. The grain off the ridges is very good in places and rather poor in other places. It will hardly be an average yield. On the lower land it will be at least a week before any grain is cut and many filds will require two weeks and more. While wheat has improved greatly the past three weeks, it will not be a big crop as it stands light on the ground. With good weather it will fill nicely and be a good grade."

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
BOARD OF EQUALIZATION
PENNINGTON COUNTY
June 17, 1993 – 10:00 A.M.

Pursuant to Law, the Pennington County Board of Equalization met in the County Board room of the Pennington County Courthouse in Thief River Falls on Monday, June 17, 1993 at 10:00 a.m.

Members present: Commissioners Arden Comstock, Oliver Swanson, Charles Naplin, Ken Murphy, Don Jensen and County Auditor Ken Olson.

Also present was County Assessor Adeline Olson.

Wallace Wiskow appeared to request a lower value on his tillable acres in the NE1/4 Section 7, Wyandotte Township to be more comparable with the land directly north of him in Section 6. The Assessor reviewed the Soil Survey map with the County Board and Mr. Wiskow and also a letter from the Area Soil Scientist dated 6-15-93 indicating that he had checked the soils in this area and found no errors in classification. The Board of Equalization made no adjustments to Mrs. Wiskow's property value.

Orlanda Erickson discussed with the County Board of Equalization the value placed on a Mobile Home and lot she owns in Ranstad's First Addition, Lot 3, Block 1. She questioned the value of the Mobile Home as it has not been lived in for awhile and she was trying to move it off her property. The Board stated that the value of the property would be reduced for taxes payable 1995 if she has the Mobile Home moved off the land.

Kenneth and Craig Swanson also appeared before the Board to request a reduced value of their tillable land in the NW1/4, Section 3, Polk Centre Township. They felt their land compared more to the land directly south of them and that the value should be more comparable. The Assessor reviewed the Soil Survey map and referred again to the Area Soil Scientist letter of June 15, 1993 which indicated he had checked the soils in this area and found no errors in classification. The Board of Equalization made no adjustment on the tillable land value for the Swanson's property value.

County Assessor Adeline Olson reviewed a letter from Jack Haymond in regards to his lot value on the property described as Porter's Addition, Lots 3 & 4, Block 12. Mr. Haymond's first request was for the Board of Equalization to reschedule for a hearing on his property for some time late in August or September. Minnesota Statute 274.14 requires that the County Board of Equalization meet during the last two weeks of June and that no action be taken by the Board after June 30th would be valid. The County Assessor also reviewed the letter submitted by the City of Thief River Falls Board of Review and explained Dr. Haymond's concerns. After the County Board of Equalization reviewed the sales in the area of this lot Commissioner Murphy moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen that based on review of the market value placed on the lot described as lots 3 & 4, Block 12, Porter's Addition that the County Board of Equalization finds no basis to change the lot value on this property. Motion carried.

Additional discussion was held on the rating of different types of soil in Pennington County and how that is done. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Murphy to refer the questions raised by Wallace Wiskow and Craig and Kenneth Swanson regarding the rating of different classes of lands to the Soil Conservation Service. Motion carried.

The County Assessor then presented a chart of land and building valuations between townships. Also presented were reports on the tillable land values in the County and how it compared to the values of land in adjacent Counties. The Assessor indicated that the State will be issuing a 5% increase on all agricultural land in Pennington County and 5% decrease on residential structures in North Township.

Moved by Commissioner Comstock, seconded by Commissioner Jensen that the real estate and personal property values as returned by the Local Boards of Review and submitted by the County Assessor be accepted and approved. Motion unanimously carried.

Motion was made by Commissioner Comstock, seconded by Commissioner Murphy to adjourn the meeting. Motion carried.

Oliver Swanson, Chairman
Board of Commissioners

Workers prepare to transport a HOMARK manufactured home from Red Lake Falls to Alaska, a trip of about 3,100 miles — west to Seattle, WA, by truck and North to Anchorage, AK, by barge. The Alaskan developer who bought the home said he has 90 more plots to fill and would like HOMARK to fill them. It costs about $10,000 to transport each home.

Homark to send 12 homes to Alaska

In the late 1960s, the homes were placed on railroad flat cars and shipped to the West Coast. This time the shipping in considerably more complicated.

There is no longer a rail line extending to the factory, but that is not really a factor. Today's modern manufactured homes are 16 feet wide and 70 to 80 feet in length with a higher pitched roof. The railroads are not equipped to haul them. As a result, the homes will be moved to Alaska by truck and barge.

Red Lake Falls resident Richard Larson will place the homes on special "dollies" where the hitch would normally be located. The home will then be towed back end first to Seattle, WA, for loading on barges. Before being placed on the barges, the dollies will be removed, the home lowered onto its own axles and tires and the hitch moved back to the front end.

It is estimated that the trip to Seattle will take about three days, including the various changes to the towing configuration. Assisting Richard and driving the pilot car for the trip will be his son Brian.

Cost of transportation to Alaska for a typical 80x16 manufactured home will average about $10,000. The units will be sold at retail in Alaska for approximately $60,000 and most—if not all—will be sold before they arrive at their destination.

The Alaskan dealer—Southwood Manor in Anchorage—has joined HOMARK's dealer network in the last 60 days. Richard Larson has hauled many of the company's manufactured homes to other states, primarily on their own wheels and axles. Some of the western states, however, require the use of braked dollies and special permits to move the 16-feet-wide units.

A spokesman for HOMARK said that the dollies were not built especially for the Alaskan shipment because their use is also required for shipment of units into Canada and they have been used for that purpose previously.

Each manufactured home destined for Alaska will require a separate trip, with the dollies being transported back from Seattle to be used on the next unit.

The HOMARK spokesman said that dealer inquiries are increasing from Wisconsin to Colorado and now to Alaska as the company's reputation for building quality homes is spreading.

Lincoln project groundbreaking Monday, Aug. 9

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the $2.75 million addition and remodeling project at Lincoln senior high school in Thief River Falls have been set for Monday, August 9, at 7 p.m. on the high school grounds. The public is encouraged to attend the ceremonies.

Tentative plans are to hold the groundbreaking in the area south of the school, according to Supt. Bob Duncan, depending on whether or not demolition of the two quonset-type block buildings is in process at that time. If the demolition is underway, the ceremonies likely would be moved to the west side of Lincoln.

Bids on the demolition of the two buildings on the south side of Lincoln were opened last week and the contract awarded to Gordon Construction of Mahnomen with a bid of $24,900.

Also awarded was a contract for $87,200 to Davidson Construction of Holt for blacktop surfacing of the parking area across Knight Avenue from the southeast corner of Lincoln.

Bids on the Lincoln project will be opened August 18 and construction is expected to begin soon after contracts are awarded. Work on only the exterior additions to the school will be conducted from now through the 1993-94 school year with interior retrofitting to be done

The second half of this building will be moved just like the first section — all at once. As part of a land transaction, Digi-Key is moving a building for Arctco. Actually, moving the building in 90 by 180 foot sections was left to Carrington Building Movers out of Carrington, ND. The move was accomplished with the use of specially designed hydraulic lifts on carts. Sorenson Construction of Argyle is doing the concrete work. Harlan Kirkeide of Digi-Key is the project manager.

Maryel Anderson gets appointment

Commissioner R. Jane Brown of the Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training (DJT) said she was pleased with the appointment and said that Anderson "will bring valuable experience as a local elected official and a small business owner."

The Department of Jobs and Training administers the state and federal training programs, including the Job Training Partnership Act, and provides staff support to the Governor's Job Training Council.

Anderson has served on the School District 564 board for the past nine years. She is a self-employed business owner of Anderson Power and Equipment and Auction—2—Sell and is a member of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce. Neighborhood residents voice concerns on housing project

Recommendation to approve a final plat for a piece of property that could eventually become the site for a senior housing project and multi-family housing drew flak from nearby neighbors at a city council meeting Tuesday night in Thief River Falls.

Also during the council meeting, the council discussed the budgeting of funds for replacement of the floor at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center, a community development application for a $1.4 million comprehensive grant for commercial and rental rehabilitation, an increase in local government aid for 1994, and several other items.

■ The city council approved a final plat and rezoning recommendation for a housing development project.

The final plat for a piece of property south of Greenwood street and west of Highway 59 and known as the Valley Omdahl addition, was approved by the planning commission at a hearing and plat review on June 15. George Gaulker of Valley City, ND, in partnership with NETA Property Management of Fargo, ND, proposed to develop a portion of the property for multi-family housing. He intends to develop "Pioneer Court", a 24-unit elderly housing project, and in the future, two 12-unit multi-family buildings.

Nearby property owners, Les Snetling, Kyle Anderson and John Zins were in attendance at the hearing and at the city council meeting Tuesday to express their opposition to the proposed plat and re-zoning. (Rezoning became an issue because the property is expected to be annexed by the city.) The three property owners close to the development all said they weren't opposed to the senior citizen housing project, but feared the multi-family housing project would cause problems. They were specifically worried that the multi-family housing development would reduce land values, and that people living in the multi-family dwelling would come into conflict with senior citizens living in the senior housing project, and that it would result in traffic and parking problems.

The Planning commission recommendation to approve the plat of "Valley Omdahl Addition" was approved by the council. In examining the recommendation to amend the zoning of the properties, the council approved the recommendation but made several conditions which involved ingress and egress from specific property and a section of the property which will remain undeveloped. The zoning amendments are also subject to approval by the Minnesota Municipal board.

Karla Wallace is Minnesota Jersey Queen

Rural Middle River girl goes from cattle show ring to promotional spotlight in Jersey Cattle Club

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Karla Wallace of Middle River has been showing dairy cattle for about half of her 17-year lifetime, but now finds herself in a different arena as Minnesota Jersey Queen.

The daughter of Mrs. Elsie Wallace of rural Middle River and a senior this fall at Greenbush-Middle River high school, Karla received the state crown and banner at the Minnesota State Jersey Cattle Club picnic held in Cambridge. She will represent Minnesota Jersey cattle producers at the national contest sponsored by the American Jersey Cattle Club in Louisville, KY, in November.

"I'm in charge of promoting the Jersey cattle breed for Minnesota," Karla said of her basic responsibility as state queen. "I was introduced at the county fair in Roseau and will be handing out ribbons and awards at the open class state fair Jersey show September 1 and the 4-H Jersey show at the state fair September 4."

Should she become the national Jersey queen, she would be expected to travel to state shows and state fairs around the nation to represent the national club and its members.

Karla said her selection as state Jersey queen was made by judges based on an interview and her answers to questions on dairying, the Jersey breed and other subjects in front of an audience. That was somewhat of a new experience, but she is no stranger to Jersey cattle or appearing before judges.

For the past seven years Karla has shown Jersey cattle at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls. In 1992 she just missed making Dairy Day history when she showed the grand champion grade animal of the show and the reserve champion purebred animal. Her Jersey was selected as the best uddered cow of the show, she had the champion individual herd of three animals and she won the Stuart McLeod award for her exceptional performance.

As showman of the grand champion grade last year, she received a purebred Jersey calf purchased by the Northwest Dairy Improvement Association from the Harold Woods herd at Dent and presented at the 44th annual Northwest Dairy Day this year. That junior yearling was the top animal in the state fair lineup from Roseau county this year and will be Karla's entry in the 4-H dairy show at the Minnesota state fair this fall.

This will be Karla's fifth trip to the state fair in 4-H dairy projects where she has placed at the top of her class twice. Although she lives in Marshall county, she is a member of the Grass Lake 4-H club in Roseau county and competes there in dairy and horticulture projects. She has been historian of her club two years and secretary for the past two years.

Karla has won the junior showmanship title at Northwest Dairy Day and the junior showmanship once and senior showmanship three times at the Roseau county fair.

Karla's mother and older brother Lewis farm in a family partnership in northeastern Marshall county

Getting a cow ready for show judging involves more than putting on its halter and leading it into the ring. Karla Wallace of Middle River, Minnesota Jersey Queen, knows all about the work it takes to get an animal ready for showing. Here she does some clipping along the top line of her registered Jersey cow in preparing her for the Roseau county fair. Last year Karla's Jersey was the reserve champion purebred overall at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls and judged to be the best uddered cow of the show. Karla also showed the grand champion grade animal of the show and the top individual herd.

In the late 1960s, the homes were placed on railroad flat cars and shipped to the West Coast. This time the shipping in considerably more complicated.

There is no longer a rail line extending to the factory, but that is not really a factor. Today's modern manufactured homes are 16 feet wide and 70 to 80 feet in length with a higher pitched roof. The railroads are not equipped to haul them. As a result, the homes will be moved to Alaska by truck and barge.

Red Lake Falls resident Richard Larson will place the homes on special "dollies" where the hitch would normally be located. The home will then be towed back end first to Seattle, WA, for loading on barges. Before being placed on the barges, the dollies will be removed, the home lowered onto its own axles and tires and the hitch moved back to the front end.

It is estimated that the trip to Seattle will take about three days, including the various changes to the towing configuration. Assisting Richard and driving the pilot car for the trip will be his son Brian.

Cost of transportation to Alaska for a typical 80x16 manufactured home will average about $10,000. The units will be sold at retail in Alaska for approximately $60,000 and most—if not all—will be sold before they arrive at their destination.

The Alaskan dealer—Southwood Manor in Anchorage—has joined HOMARK's dealer network in the last 60 days. Richard Larson has hauled many of the company's manufactured homes to other states, primarily on their own wheels and axles. Some of the western states, however, require the use of braked dollies and special permits to move the 16-feet-wide units.

A spokesman for HOMARK said that the dollies were not built especially for the Alaskan shipment because their use is also required for shipment of units into Canada and they have been used for that purpose previously.

Each manufactured home destined for Alaska will require a separate trip, with the dollies being transported back from Seattle to be used on the next unit.

The HOMARK spokesman said that dealer inquiries are increasing from Wisconsin to Colorado and now to Alaska as the company's reputation for building quality homes is spreading.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the $2.75 million addition and remodeling project at Lincoln senior high school in Thief River Falls have been set for Monday, August 9, at 7 p.m. on the high school grounds. The public is encouraged to attend the ceremonies.

Tentative plans are to hold the groundbreaking in the area south of the school, according to Supt. Bids on the demolition of the two buildings on the south side of Lincoln were opened last week and the contract awarded to Gordon Construction of Mahnomen with a bid of $24,900.

Also awarded was a contract for $87,200 to Davidson Construction of Holt for blacktop surfacing of the parking area across Knight Avenue from the southeast corner of Lincoln.

Bids on the Lincoln project will be opened August 18 and construction is expected to begin soon after contracts are awarded. Work on only the exterior additions to the school will be conducted from now through the 1993-94 school year with interior retrofitting to be done

Neighborhood residents voice concerns on housing project

Recommendation to approve a final plat for a piece of property that could eventually become the site for a senior housing project and multi-family housing drew flak from nearby neighbors at a city council meeting Tuesday night in Thief River Falls.

Also during the council meeting, the council discussed the budgeting of funds for replacement of the floor at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center, a community development application for a $1.4 million comprehensive grant for commercial and rental rehabilitation, an increase in local government aid for 1994, and several other items.

■ The city council approved a final plat and rezoning recommendation for a housing development project.

The final plat for a piece of property south of Greenwood street and west of Highway 59 and known as the Valley Omdahl addition, was approved by the planning commission at a hearing and plat review on June 15. George Gaulker of Valley City, ND, in partnership with NETA Property Management of Fargo, ND, proposed to develop a portion of the property for multi-family housing. He intends to develop "Pioneer Court", a 24-unit elderly housing project, and in the future, two 12-unit multi-family buildings.

Nearby property owners, Les Snetting, Kyle Anderson and John Zins were in attendance at the hearing and at the city council meeting Tuesday to express their opposition to the proposed plat and re-zoning. (Rezoning became an issue because the property is expected to be annexed by the city.) The three property owners close to the development all said they weren't opposed to the senior citizen housing project, but feared the multi-family housing project would cause problems. They were specifically worried that the multi-family housing development would reduce land values, and that people living in the multi-family dwelling would come into conflict with senior citizens living in the senior housing project, and that it would result in traffic and parking problems.

The Planning commission recommendation to approve the plat of "Valley Omdahl Addition" was approved by the council. In examining the recommendation to amend the zoning of the properties, the council approved the recommendation but made several conditions which involved ingress and egress from specific property and a section of the property which will remain undeveloped. The zoning amendments are also subject to approval by the Minnesota Municipal board.

■ The city will set aside $270,000 from reserves to fund

Karla Wallace is Minnesota Jersey Queen

MINNESOTA JERSEY QUEEN

Karla Wallace, 17, is this year's Minnesota Jersey Queen.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Karla Wallace of Middle River has been showing dairy cattle for about half of her 17-year lifetime, but now finds herself in a different arena as Minnesota Jersey Queen.

The daughter of Mrs. Elsie Wallace of rural Middle River and a senior this fall at Greenbush-Middle River high school, Karla received the state crown and banner at the Minnesota State Jersey Cattle Club picnic held in Cambridge. She will represent Minnesota Jersey cattle producers at the national contest sponsored by the American Jersey Cattle Club in Louisville, KY, in November.

"I'm in charge of promoting the Jersey cattle breed for Minnesota," Karla said of her basic responsibility as state queen. "I was introduced at the county fair in Roseau and will be handing out ribbons and awards at the open class state fair Jersey show September 1 and the 4-H Jersey show at the state fair September 4."

Should she become the national Jersey queen, she would be expected to travel to state shows and state fairs around the nation to represent the national club and its members.

Karla said her selection as state Jersey queen was made by judges based on an interview and her answers to questions on dairying, the Jersey breed and other subjects in front of an audience. That was somewhat of a new experience, but she is no stranger to Jersey cattle or appearing before judges.

For the past seven years Karla has shown Jersey cattle at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls. In 1992 she just missed making Dairy Day history when she showed the grand champion grade animal of the show and the reserve champion purebred animal. Her Jersey was selected as the best uddered cow of the show, she had the champion individual herd of three animals and she won the Stuart McLeod award for her exceptional performance.

As showman of the grand champion grade last year, she received a purebred Jersey calf purchased by the Northwest Dairy Improvement Association from the Harold Woods herd at Dent and presented at the 44th annual Northwest Dairy Day this year. That junior yearling was the top animal in the state fair lineup from Roseau county this year and will be Karla's entry in the 4-H dairy show at the Minnesota state fair this fall.

This will be Karla's fifth trip to the state fair in 4-H dairy projects where she has placed at the top of her class twice. Although she lives in Marshall county, she is a member of the Grass Lake 4-H club in Roseau county and competes there in dairy and horticulture projects. She has been historian of her club two years and secretary for the past two years.

Karla has won the junior showmanship title at Northwest Dairy Day and the junior showmanship once and senior showmanship three times at the Roseau county fair.

Getting a cow ready for show judging involves more than putting on its halter and leading it into the ring. Karla Wallace of Middle River, Minnesota Jersey Queen, knows all about the work it takes to get an animal ready for showing. Here she does some clipping along the top line of her registered Jersey cow in preparing her for the Roseau county fair. Last year Karla's Jersey was the reserve champion purebred overall at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls and judged to be the best uddered cow of the show. Karla also showed the grand champion grade animal of the show and the top individual herd.

Workers prepare to transport a HOMARK manufactured home from Red Lake Falls to Alaska, a trip of about 3,100 miles — west to Seattle, WA, by truck and North to Anchorage, AK, by barge. The Alaskan developer who bought the home said he has 90 more plots to fill and would like HOMARK to fill them. It costs about $10,000 to transport each home.

Homark to send 12 homes to Alaska

■ The city council approved a final plat and rezoning recommendation for a housing development project.

The final plat for a piece of property south of Greenwood street and west of Highway 59 and known as the Valley Omdahl addition, was approved by the planning commission at a hearing and plat review on June 15. George Gaulker of Valley City, ND, in partnership with NETA Property Management of Fargo, ND, proposed to develop a portion of the property for multi-family housing. He intends to develop "Pioneer Court", a 24-unit elderly housing project, and in the future, two 12-unit multi-family buildings.

Nearby property owners, Les Snetting, Kyle Anderson and John Zins were in attendance at the hearing and at the city council meeting Tuesday to express their opposition to the proposed plat and re-zoning. (Rezoning became an issue because the property is expected to be annexed by the city.) The three property owners close to the development all said they weren't opposed to the senior citizen housing project, but feared the multi-family housing project would cause problems. They were specifically worried that the multi-family housing development would reduce land values, and that people living in the multi-family dwelling would come into conflict with senior citizens living in the senior housing project, and that it would result in traffic and parking problems.

The Planning commission recommendation to approve the plat of "Valley Omdahl Addition" was approved by the council. In examining the recommendation to amend the zoning of the properties, the council approved the recommendation but made several conditions which involved ingress and egress from specific property and a section of the property which will remain undeveloped. The zoning amendments are also subject to approval by the Minnesota Municipal board.

Karla Wallace is Minnesota Jersey Queen

Karla Wallace, 17, is this year's Minnesota Jersey Queen.

Rural Middle River girl goes from cattle show ring to promotional spotlight in Jersey Cattle Club

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Karla Wallace of Middle River has been showing dairy cattle for about half of her 17-year lifetime, but now finds herself in a different arena as Minnesota Jersey Queen.

The daughter of Mrs. Elsie Wallace of rural Middle River and a senior this fall at Greenbush-Middle River high school, Karla received the state crown and banner at the Minnesota State Jersey Cattle Club picnic held in Cambridge. She will represent Minnesota Jersey cattle producers at the national contest sponsored by the American Jersey Cattle Club in Louisville, KY, in November.

"I'm in charge of promoting the Jersey cattle breed for Minnesota," Karla said of her basic responsibility as state queen. "I was introduced at the county fair in Roseau and will be handing out ribbons and awards at the open class state fair Jersey show September 1 and the 4-H Jersey show at the state fair September 4."

Should she become the national Jersey queen, she would be expected to travel to state shows and state fairs around the nation to represent the national club and its members.

Karla said her selection as state Jersey queen was made by judges based on an interview and her answers to questions on dairying, the Jersey breed and other subjects in front of an audience. That was somewhat of a new experience, but she is no stranger to Jersey cattle or appearing before judges.

For the past seven years Karla has shown Jersey cattle at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls. In 1992 she just missed making Dairy Day history when she showed the grand champion grade animal of the show and the reserve champion purebred animal. Her Jersey was selected as the best uddered cow of the show, she had the champion individual herd of three animals and she won the Stuart McLeod award for her exceptional performance.

As showman of the grand champion grade last year, she received a purebred Jersey calf purchased by the Northwest Dairy Improvement Association from the Harold Woods herd at Dent and presented at the 44th annual Northwest Dairy Day this year. That junior yearling was the top animal in the state fair lineup from Roseau county this year and will be Karla's entry in the 4-H dairy show at the Minnesota state fair this fall.

This will be Karla's fifth trip to the state fair in 4-H dairy projects where she has placed at the top of her class twice. Although she lives in Marshall county, she is a member of the Grass Lake 4-H club in Roseau county and competes there in dairy and horticulture projects. She has been historian of her club two years and secretary for the past two years.

Karla has won the junior showmanship title at Northwest Dairy Day and the junior showmanship once and senior showmanship three times at the Roseau county fair.

Getting a cow ready for show judging involves more than putting on its halter and leading it into the ring. Karla Wallace of Middle River, Minnesota Jersey Queen, knows all about the work it takes to get an animal ready for showing. Here she does some clipping along the top line of her registered Jersey cow in preparing her for the Roseau county fair. Last year Karla's Jersey was the reserve champion purebred overall at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls and judged to be the best uddered cow of the show. Karla also showed the grand champion grade animal of the show and the top individual herd.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

By the time you read this column, many of you will have seen the spectacular footage taken from a helicopter near Columbia, Illinois, of the destruction of a portion of a levee on the Mississippi River. The footage shown to us on television showed first of all the broken levee and the swirling, tumbling, swelling waters that broke through it. Next, we are shown footage of grain bins on someone's farm. The bins are tossed by the swollen water as if they were but toys. Then comes the dramatic footage of someone's home—a big, neat, white farmhouse—being shoved from its foundation and folded together, then unfolded, collapsing and sinking into the river to be carried wherever the river wills. Amazing footage of the destruction of someone's life and livelihood as a result of this unbefore-heard-of-flooding!

As we sit in the comfort of our television rooms, we shake our heads in amazement. We cannot fathom such destruction. We are safe and relatively dry. I look around at my house. It is big and neat and white. It looks not too dissimilar from the house we saw being ravished by the river. I am amazed by the strength of the water that could take a house not too unlike mine and in a matter of seconds cause it to be river debris.

Daily we see accounts of the flood on our televisions. Daily we read of updates on the flood and its damage in our papers. Daily we hear the radio tell us of the unthought-of trauma the people and land and animals are enduring because of this flood. We listen and read as we count our blessings that this time it is not yet us. For a bit, we are safe. The people along the rivers thought they would never have to experience destruction of this magnitude. We think the same as we watch them struggle.

Did you know that 20 million sandbags have been used so far in fighting off this flood? Can you imagine the amount of people and sand and energy and time needed to fill such a large quantity of sandbags? Can you imagine the devastation the people must feel when they see their work go for naught as the river rages over their mighty efforts? Can you imagine the sighs of relief when, for a while, something is saved because of the efforts of the people and their sandbags?

We heard accounts of DesMoines, Iowa, when it lacked water. People from our area, trained in creating water from poor water supplies, went to help that city distribute water to its citizens. Can you imagine standing in line, waiting for your turn at the water spigots? Can you imagine no water for basic needs? Other towns and cities along the rivers have been affected likewise with no water. Can you imagine working so very hard sandbagging and then not have ready water to quench your thirst? What about fire protection? Don't you think that the fire personnel breathed a sigh of relief when water service was once again available to DesMoines? It's pretty amazing to have water everywhere, but not a drop to drink!!

Have you looked into the eyes of the people affected by the flooding as we have seen them on television? Have you listened to their voices? The eyes are determined, but shocked. The voices are trembling in their trauma. How devastating the loss of homes and livelihoods must be to so many people. How frightening the future must seem—when they have the time to think about the future.

Devastation is rampant in our world. In our country, we need only to look at the ravishing of nature as it is flooding our land to see devastation. Around the world, in Bosnia-Herzegovina, we see the devastation of man ravishing a land. There too, the eyes of the people devastated are revealing. Some show determination, but most of the people show shock and loss of hope. A short time ago, they were living much as we are now. They couldn't fathom the destruction that has happened to them. We cannot begin to imagine their suffering.

We are indeed fortunate. We need to be thankful for our safety from the ravishes of nature and for our lives of peace. Would that all the world could experience our peace and safety.

North Star college holds reunion July 15

"Each day is a gift from God," said Olga Larson of Mentor, as she spoke to the North Star college reunion, held July 15 at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls. Mrs. Larson, who was an instructor at North Star college, a former Augustana Lutheran church school at Warren for high school and junior college students, will be 101 years old in October.

The reunion began with a welcome by Naomi Johnson Peterson of Thief River Falls. Devotions were given by Mildred Paulson Torkelson of Warren. She informed the group of the death of Rev. Daisy Salmonson of Roseau read one of her poems, and Naomi Larson Johnshoy of Mentor read a poem written by Ida Sonsteng Gulbranson of San Diego, CA.

Maurits Scholin of Thief River Falls reported on the scholarship fund established several years ago in Olga Larson's honor for students attending the Our Saviour's Christian academy in Thief River Falls. At present over $5,000 is in that fund.

Following the dinner, the group gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurits Scholin. Inez Scholin Nilson of Dearborn, MI joined them there.

Those attending, in addition to those already mentioned, were Harry Sailor, Lila Horgan Hedlund and Ebba Johnson Horgen, Warren; Esther Benson Olson, Williams; Florence Johnson Peterson and her husband, Eldon of Hallock; Alfield Naslund Wellen of Salol; Alma Nyhus Peterson, Ellen Mattson Spray and guest Ruth Peterson Pederson of Thief River Falls.

Lincoln project groundbreaking

during the summer of 1994.

New additions on which work is expected to begin this month will involve three separate areas of the school.

To the south of the existing cafeteria an addition will be built to include food service serving and kitchen area; a new cafeteria which will also serve as a student commons area, and a new building storage area. Athletic equipment storage—presently located in the old buildings slated for demolition—will be included in the storage area.

On the south end of the new physical education gymnasium will be construction of an addition to house instrumental and vocal music departments and their necessary support areas.

Third major addition will be on the west end of the physical education gymnasium and will house boys' locker rooms, some athletic storage and a fitness center at ground level. The second story will serve entirely for the wrestling program.

Present construction schedule calls for the bearing walls, roof and exterior window installation for these additions to be completed in November with interior work including partitions, ceilings, wall and floor finishes, mechanical and electrical work, casework, equipment installation and furnishing to progress through the winter months.

Extensive remodeling is also included in the $2.75 million project. Part of the existing cafeteria will be converted for use by the visual arts program. Another part of the cafeteria will be developed for theater and dance and will have direct access to the auditorium stage. Dressing rooms and support facilities will be provided in one portion of the present kitchen area and the remainder of the existing kitchen will become storage area for custodial supplies.

The existing visual arts room located on the east side of the building will be divided into two general classrooms and the existing classroom adjacent to the counseling area will be converted into a career center.

Some landscaping is called for in the area south of Lincoln as well as the development of a service road to provide access to the food service and building storage areas.

Built into the $2.75 million project cost is a contingency fund of $152,699. Should bids come in lower than estimated so that all or part of the contingency fund is not needed for the projects mentioned, additional work can be done at Lincoln to include some more general remodeling of the old vocational school wing.

As in the Challenger elementary school project, the board of education will serve as the general contractor for the Lincoln project under the construction management concept. The board will award contracts for various areas of the construction in a process expected to give local and area contractors a better opportunity to bid on portions of the project.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

By the time you read this column, many of you will have seen the spectacular footage taken from a helicopter near Columbia, Illinois, of the destruction of a portion of a levee on the Mississippi River. The footage shown to us on television showed first of all the broken levee and the swirling, tumbling, swelling waters that broke through it. Next, we are shown footage of grain bins on someone's farm. The bins are tossed by the swollen water as if they were but toys. Then comes the dramatic footage of someone's home—a big, neat, white farmhouse—being shoved from its foundation and folded together, then unfolded, collapsing and sinking into the river to be carried wherever the river wills. Amazing footage of the destruction of someone's life and livelihood as a result of this unbefore-heard-of-flooding!

As we sit in the comfort of our television rooms, we shake our heads in amazement. We cannot fathom such destruction. We are safe and relatively dry. I look around at my house. It is big and neat and white. It looks not too dissimilar from the house we saw being ravished by the river. I am amazed by the strength of the water that could take a house not too unlike mine and in a matter of seconds cause it to be river debris.

Daily we see accounts of the flood on our televisions. Daily we read of updates on the flood and its damage in our papers. Daily we hear the radio tell us of the unthought-of trauma the people and land and animals are enduring because of this flood. We listen and read as we count our blessings that this time it is not yet us. For a bit, we are safe. The people along the rivers thought they would never have to experience destruction of this magnitude. We think the same as we watch them struggle.

Did you know that 20 million sandbags have been used so far in fighting off this flood? Can you imagine the amount of people and sand and energy and time needed to fill such a large quantity of sandbags? Can you imagine the devastation the people must feel when they see their work go for naught as the river rages over their mighty efforts? Can you imagine the sighs of relief when, for a while, something is saved because of the efforts of the people and their sandbags?

We heard accounts of DesMoines, Iowa, when it lacked water. People from our area, trained in creating water from poor water supplies, went to help that city distribute water to its citizens. Can you imagine standing in line, waiting for your turn at the water spigots? Can you imagine no water for basic needs? Other towns and cities along the rivers have been affected likewise with no water. Can you imagine working so very hard sandbagging and then not have ready water to quench your thirst? What about fire protection? Don't you think that the fire personnel breathed a sigh of relief when water service was once again available to DesMoines? It's pretty amazing to have water everywhere, but not a drop to drink!!

Have you looked into the eyes of the people affected by the flooding as we have seen them on television? Have you listened to their voices? The eyes are determined, but shocked. The voices are trembling in their trauma. How devastating the loss of homes and livelihoods must be to so many people. How frightening the future must seem—when they have the time to think about the future.

Devastation is rampant in our world. In our country, we need only to look at the ravishing of nature as it is flooding our land to see devastation. Around the world, in Bosnia-Herzegovina, we see the devastation of man ravishing a land. There too, the eyes of the people devastated are revealing. Some show determination, but most of the people show shock and loss of hope. A short time ago, they were living much as we are now. They couldn't fathom the destruction that has happened to them. We cannot begin to imagine their suffering.

We are indeed fortunate. We need to be thankful for our safety from the ravishes of nature and for our lives of peace. Would that all the world could experience our peace and safety.

North Star college holds reunion July 15

"Each day is a gift from God," said Olga Larson of Mentor, as she spoke to the North Star college reunion, held July 15 at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls. Mrs. Larson, who was an instructor at North Star college, a former Augustana Lutheran church school at Warren for high school and junior college students, will be 101 years old in October.

Daisy Salmonson of Roseau read one of her poems, and Naomi Larson Johnshoy of Mentor read a poem written by Ida Sonsteng Gulbranson of San Diego, CA.

Maurits Scholin of Thief River Falls reported on the scholarship fund established several years ago in Olga Larson's honor for students attending the Our Saviour's Christian academy in Thief River Falls. At present over $5,000 is in that fund.

Following the dinner, the group gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurits Scholin. Inez Scholin Nilson of Dearborn, MI joined them there.

during the summer of 1994.

New additions on which work is expected to begin this month will involve three separate areas of the school.

To the south of the existing cafeteria an addition will be built to include food service serving and kitchen area, a new cafeteria which will also serve as a student commons area, and a new building storage area. Athletic equipment storage—presently located in the old buildings slated for demolition—will be included in the storage area.

On the south end of the new physical education gymnasium will be construction of an addition to house instrumental and vocal music departments and their necessary support areas.

Third major addition will be on the west end of the physical education gymnasium and will house boys' locker rooms, some athletic storage and a fitness center at ground level. The second story will serve entirely for the wrestling program.

Present construction schedule calls for the bearing walls, roof and exterior window installation for these additions to be completed in November with interior work including partitions, ceilings, wall and floor finishes, mechanical and electrical work, casework, equipment installation and furnishing to progress through the winter months.

Extensive remodeling is also included in the $2.75 million project. Part of the existing cafeteria will be converted for use by the visual arts program. Another part of the cafeteria will be developed for theater and dance and will have direct access to the auditorium stage. Dressing rooms and support facilities will be provided in one portion of the present kitchen area and the remainder of the existing kitchen will become storage area for custodial supplies.

The existing visual arts room located on the east side of the building will be divided into two general classrooms and the existing classroom adjacent to the counseling area will be converted into a career center.

Some landscaping is called for in the area south of Lincoln as well as the development of a service road to provide access to the food service and building storage areas.

Built into the $2.75 million project cost is a contingency fund of $152,699. Should bids come in lower than estimated so that all or part of the contingency fund is not needed for the projects mentioned, additional work can be done at Lincoln to include some more general remodeling of the old vocational school wing.

As in the Challenger elementary school project, the board of education will serve as the general contractor for the Lincoln project under the construction management concept. The board will award contracts for various areas of the construction in a process expected to give local and area contractors a better opportunity to bid on portions of the project.

Dear Friends,
You can arrange a fund specifically to pay for funeral and burial expenses for one or more members of your family.
Such a Funeral Trust Fund, invested with a bank or savings & loan, earns interest to keep pace with inflation. We are familiar with state laws governing the prefinancing of funerals and can provide information on setting up your Funeral Trust Fund.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

MPCA reissues permit to Mar-Kit

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency has announced it has modified and reissued the operating permit to the Mar-Kit landfill board, and Marshall and Kittson counties for the Mar-Kit landfill, located about five miles east of Hallock.

The permit modifications made by the MPCA will require the Mar-Kit landfill to add environmental safeguards to a new landfill development within the boundaries of the existing landfill site. These safeguards, which are required by current state rules and federal regulations starting October 9, 1993, will include synthetic and clay liners under the waste, a liner leak detection system and a leachate collection system. Leachate is created when rain water and melting snow seep through buried garbage.

The new portion of the landfill, to be built on 12.9 acres, will accept municipal solid waste. It will hold about 365,000 cubic yards of waste and cover materials, and have an operating life of about 56 years. It will be constructed to the west of an older, unlined portion of the landfill that is currently in use. This portion of the landfill is scheduled to be closed by November 15, 1993. Closure of the old part of the landfill will include a final cover system, installation of a landfill-gas-control system, plus ground water and gas monitoring wells around the perimeter of the facility.

Ground water quality under both the old and new portions of the landfill will be monitored through a network of wells at the landfill site. The landfill operator will be required to collect and analyze ground water at least three times a year to ensure that any possible contamination is detected and intercepted before it can leave the landfill site.

Leachate collected from the new lined portion of the landfill will be treated at the landfill and then sprayed on a five-acre parcel of land using a fixed set of sprinklers. Land application of leachate by spraying is an MPCA-approved method of disposal. MPCA research has shown that when leachate is properly applied, the natural ability of soils, plants and micro-organisms help break down contaminants in the leachate.

Operators of the Mar-Kit Sanitary landfill must maintain a fund to pay for the long-term inspection, monitoring and operation of the leachate-collection system, ground water monitoring system and final cover for both old and new areas of the landfill for 20 years following closure. The MPCA will review the Mar-Kit Landfill permit again in five years for further modifications, if necessary.

Dear Friends,
You can arrange a fund specifically to pay for funeral and burial expenses for one or more members of your family.
Such a Funeral Trust Fund, invested with a bank or savings & loan, earns interest to keep pace with inflation. We are familiar with state laws governing the prefinancing of funerals and can provide information on setting up your Funeral Trust Fund.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

MPCA reissues permit to Mar-Kit

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency has announced it has modified and reissued the operating permit to the Mar-Kit landfill board, and Marshall and Kittson counties for the Mar-Kit landfill, located about five miles east of Hallock.

The permit modifications made by the MPCA will require the Mar-Kit landfill to add environmental safeguards to a new landfill development within the boundaries of the existing landfill site. These safeguards, which are required by current state rules and federal regulations starting October 9, 1993, will include synthetic and clay liners under the waste, a liner leak detection system and a leachate collection system. Leachate is created when rain water and melting snow seep through buried garbage.

The new portion of the landfill, to be built on 12.9 acres, will accept municipal solid waste. It will hold about 365,000 cubic yards of waste and cover materials, and have an operating life of about 56 years. It will be constructed to the west of an older, unlined portion of the landfill that is currently in use. This portion of the landfill is scheduled to be closed by November 15, 1993. Closure of the old part of the landfill will include a final cover system, installation of a landfill gas control system, plus ground water and gas monitoring wells around the perimeter of the facility.

Ground water quality under both the old and new portions of the landfill will be monitored through a network of wells at the landfill site. The landfill operator will be required to collect and analyze ground water at least three times a year to ensure that any possible contamination is detected and intercepted before it can leave the landfill site.

Leachate collected from the new lined portion of the landfill will be treated at the landfill and then sprayed on a five-acre parcel of land using a fixed set of sprinklers. Land application of leachate by spraying is an MPCA-approved method of disposal. MPCA research has shown that when leachate is properly applied, the natural ability of soils, plants and micro-organisms help break down contaminants in the leachate.

Operators of the Mar-Kit Sanitary landfill must maintain a fund to pay for the long-term inspection, monitoring and operation of the leachate-collection system, ground water monitoring system and final cover for both old and new areas of the landfill for 20 years following closure. The MPCA will review the Mar-Kit Landfill permit again in five years for further modifications, if necessary.

"I Can Cope" Cancer series will start August 9 in TRF

"I Can Cope," a free six-session educational series of programs designed to help cancer patients deal with their disease, begins at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls on Monday, August 9. Co-sponsors are the medical center and the Pennington county unit of the American Cancer Society.

The series includes presentations and videos on the disease process, daily health problems, nutrition, expressing feelings, living with limitations and locating resources that can help. Speakers will include nurses, physicians, a dietitian, social worker, occupational therapist and an attorney.

The program is open to cancer patients, their families, friends and anyone else interested in learning more about the disease.

The six two-hour sessions will begin August 9 and continue each Monday and Thursday evening for three weeks through August 26 from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in the chapel at Northwest Medical Center.

Evadell Tangquist, RN, patient education coordinator, and Jone Poole, RN, chemotherapy nurse, will be facilitators for the sessions.

According to Tangquist, "I Can Cope" is a proven educational program developed by the American Cancer society and has been widely endorsed by health professionals. Graduates of the medical center's "I Can Cope" program have felt that they emerged with an improved life outlook, less anxiety and better knowledge of their disease.

Persons wishing to register or learn more about the program should contact Tangquist at 681-4240, extension 446 or Poole at extension 208.

Heart Association gets gifts

During the month of January through July several gifts were received by the local chapter of the American Hearth Association.

A memorial gift to the American Hearth Association is a meaningful way to express sympathy while also helping to continue the fight against America's number one killer — heart disease.

Gifts made to the "A Time To Remember" memorial program are used to fund heart research, professional and public education and community programs in Minnesota.

Dear Friends,
You can arrange a fund specifically to pay for funeral and burial expenses for one or more members of your family.
Such a Funeral Trust Fund, invested with a bank or savings & loan, earns interest to keep pace with inflation. We are familiar with state laws governing the prefinancing of funerals and can provide information on setting up your Funeral Trust Fund.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

MPCA reissues permit to Mar-Kit

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency has announced it has modified and reissued the operating permit to the Mar-Kit landfill board, and Marshall and Kittson counties for the Mar-Kit landfill, located about five miles east of Hallock.

The permit modifications made by the MPCA will require the Mar-Kit landfill to add environmental safeguards to a new landfill development within the boundaries of the existing landfill site. These safeguards, which are required by current state rules and federal regulations starting October 9, 1993, will include synthetic and clay liners under the waste, a liner leak detection system and a leachate collection system. Leachate is created when rain water and melting snow seep through buried garbage.

The new portion of the landfill, to be built on 12.9 acres, will accept municipal solid waste. It will hold about 365,000 cubic yards of waste and cover materials, and have an operating life of about 56 years. It will be constructed to the west of an older, unlined portion of the landfill that is currently in use. This portion of the landfill is scheduled to be closed by November 15, 1993. Closure of the old part of the landfill will include a final cover system, installation of a landfill gas control system, plus ground water and gas monitoring wells around the perimeter of the facility.

Ground water quality under both the old and new portions of the landfill will be monitored through a network of wells at the landfill site. The landfill operator will be required to collect and analyze ground water at least three times a year to ensure that any possible contamination is detected and intercepted before it can leave the landfill site.

Leachate collected from the new lined portion of the landfill will be treated at the landfill and then sprayed on a five-acre parcel of land using a fixed set of sprinklers. Land application of leachate by spraying is an MPCA-approved method of disposal. MPCA research has shown that when leachate is properly applied, the natural ability of soils, plants and micro-organisms help break down contaminants in the leachate.

Operators of the Mar-Kit Sanitary landfill must maintain a fund to pay for the long-term inspection, monitoring and operation of the leachate-collection system, ground water monitoring system and final cover for both old and new areas of the landfill for 20 years following closure. The MPCA will review the Mar-Kit Landfill permit again in five years for further modifications, if necessary.

Crossroads has services to give help and support

Crossroads Displaced Homemaker program has an array of services to help persons in transition recognize their own interests and values, formulate personal and career goals and make decisions that will enable them to reach their goals.

The program is available to any person who has spent at least two years in the home providing household services and who has been widowed, divorced or separated or whose spouse has been disabled, resulting in the loss of financial support.

Crossroads also serves single parents receiving public assistance, middle-aged single women, single pregnant women and married women whose spouses are unemployed and who need assistance in exploring options in work experience, training or education.

Farm women who find it necessary to obtain and explore additional training and/or employment off the farm in order to supplement farm income may also be eligible for program services. Income guidelines by family size must also be used in determining eligibility.

Currently the program provides free services to approximately 120 clients annually in its service area of Kittson, Polk, Marshall, Roseau, Pennington, Red Lake, Norman and Lake of the Woods counties.

Many clients have returned to school or work and some clients simply benefit from learning to be assertive and hold their heads up with pride.

Offered by Crossroads are workshops and support groups which provide clients the opportunity to learn, grow and share their experiences with other clients who have had similar experiences. Specifically, Crossroads offers an eight-session workshop series entitled "Challenge, Choice and Change" quarterly in Thief River Falls or Crookston. Upon request mini-workshops, support groups and/or the workshop series may be held in any county within the service area.

More than 250 books, tapes and video cassettes on topics such as relationships, self-help, growth, parenting, occupational outlooks, resume preparation, interview techniques, career planning and other topics are available in the Crossroads library.

Advocacy and referral service, allows clients to share their personal and employment strengths and weaknesses and promotes an awareness of agencies and services available in the eight-county area.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Squirt Bottle Tag

The day is warm, the kids want to have a little fun, but nothing seems to be what they want to do? Try a game of tag.

You will need empty plastic bottles that dish detergent or shampoo came in. Fill them with water. Dress the kids in swim suits.

The rules are simple. Someone is "it." That person gets the squirt bottle and tries to catch the other children by squirting water at them. The child who gets squirted with water is the next "it."

Sounds like enough fun for adults, too!

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need a basin of water, doll clothes, clothes pins and a clothes line.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through their new selection of children's books including the following:

Zimmerman, Andrea and David Clemesha. The Cow Buzzed. Something is just not right on the farm. Not only do all the animals have coughs, sniffles and sneezes, they all have the wrong voices!

Waddell, Martin and Barbara Firth. Let's Go Home, Little Bear. As Big Bear and Little Bear walk through the forest, they are having a wonderful time until they start to hear scary noises. Big Bear's comforting explanations to Little Bear bring them both safely home.

PARENTING TIPS

Social Interaction

Do you take time to arrange "play dates" for your young child and his friends? And if you do, do you feel like you are doing all the work? Do you get annoyed when other parents don't pitch in?

There are many reasons why parents don't reciprocate, says Betty Black, Ph. D., of the University of Wisconsin-Madision. "It could be work schedules, lack of inclination or simply that it hasn't occurred to them," she says. "But keep in mind that you are helping your child build social skills and make friends. He is having fun whether other parents reciprocate or not. And you know the supervision is good! So instead of being angry, give yourself a pat on the back!"

Some parents simply do not realize the importance of children having the opportunity to play with other children. They do not realize that most of our social interaction skills are developed during the preschool years. Children need opportunities to be with others in order to learn and practice those skills.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

When your child is playing with other children, help your child to verbalize his/her feelings and thoughts to develop play skills. For example, when he/she wants to play with the toy that the other child has, he/she should ask for it rather than just grab it.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . "Now Have a Little Bite to Eat"

It seems to me that every time I turn around I hear that something (I thought was) good for me is now not good for me.

Nearly everything edible is now bad for me. In fact, just eating too much is bad, no matter what it is.

My mother thought that food would cure anything. Did yours? Catching a cold? Have something to eat. Feeling faint and dizzy? You need to eat something. Sick in your tummy? Have tea and toast. You shouldn't skip meals. You shouldn't eat "junk food." You shouldn't eat too fast. If I was too sad, too happy, too giddy, too quiet, or too anything else, I needed a bite to eat.

Food was the great cure-all and also the social thing to do. "Coffee" was served whenever anyone came to the house, and I don't mean just coffee, either. There were always tasty treats to eat with the coffee. If there were no home baked goodies, there was always bread and jam or sandwiches.

Food was carried along when visiting someone's house, food was brought to the homes of the bereaved, food was the center of community celebrations and food was the center of family holiday get-togethers, whether they were Christmas, birthdays, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Memorial Day, Easter, Valentine's Day, or, of course, what else but Thanksgiving.

But isn't it still that way? I know I am just like my mother about food. I can hear the words coming out of my mouth and they are the same words my mother said to me.

Just the other day I caught myself telling my oldest son that he shouldn't skip breakfast and he should make sure he eats a decent lunch. I couldn't believe what I was saying; the words were exactly those my mother used. My oldest son is old enough to have two children of his own. He also has a very sensible wife who knows all about nutrition. What was I thinking of?

If one of my children is lying on the couch under an afghan, I know he or she is not feeling well. The first thing I say is "Are you sick?" (which is one of those intelligent things that mothers are known for saying to their children and the subject of another story). Unless they have the red bucket beside them (which means they are barfing), the second thing I say is, "Do you want something to eat?"

I always say this. It is as natural to me as breathing and it is what my mother would say to me and probably what her mother said to her. Sometimes I even say it when the red bucket is there, just in case the barfing has ended and they are ready to eat a little something.

Our holidays are always filled with good things to eat. Christmas would not be Christmas if I did not have trays filled with cookies and candy. It would not be special if there were not a huge turkey on the table, and all of the trimmings to go along with it, including the family's favorite "Cranberry Dessert."

The summer holidays mean cooking outdoors and bowls filled with salads and fresh fruits and ice cream and lemonade. Valentine's Day is the day for heart-shaped cookies with pink icing and boxes of chocolate candies.

Easter means eggs colored on Saturday are eaten for Sunday breakfast, and ham and fancy breads for Easter dinner. Fancy cakes area baked for birthdays and dinner is the celebrant's favorite. Our Thanksgiving holiday means a table overloaded with more festive foods than can be imagined, and people overloaded, too, after the meal.

Now they are saying that all of this eating is not good for us. "Moderation" is stressed for good health. I find it very hard to imagine a "moderate" Thanksgiving or Christmas feast.

However, considering the fact that I might like to stay around a few more years and live a more healthy and active life during those years, I might be willing to compromise a bit, despite the fact that I will not give up my holiday fare, and I cannot stop being a typical mother.

I might consider being more moderate in my everyday eating habits and try to eat what is good for me and allow myself to splurge on holidays. I also might consider cooking things that are better for me and my family so that when I urge them to eat they can eat things that are good for them. I might do that.

Karla Wallace of Middle River knows how to handle dairy cattle in the show ring, but now she has a new challenge as Minnesota Jersey Queen. She received her crown and banner at Cambridge, serves as a spokesperson for the state's Jersey breeders and will represent the Minnesota Jersey Cattle Club in the national contest in November at Louisville, KY. The cow pictured above was reserve champion purebred over all breeds at Northwest Dairy Day in 1992.

northwest of Thief Lake. In addition to their dairy herd of 20 registered Jerseys and 50 grade Holsteins, they operate Honker Flats greenhouse and nursery.

Karla also has three older sisters —Mrs. Ron (Nola) Dallager of Esko, Rena Wallace of Askov and JoAnn Wallace of Holt, and a younger brother, Logan, 15, also a seven-year veteran of showing at Northwest Dairy Day.

At Greenbush-Middle River high school Karla plays on the varsity softball team and is also a member of the Grass Lake team in the Roseau county 4-H softball league.

She plays saxophone in the concert and jazz bands, sings in the concert choir, girls' choir and pops choir, is an honor roll student and member of the National Honor Society.

Work on the farm in the summer and school activities during the school year take up much of her time, although she does enjoy riding the farm's three horses and playing with her Samoyed-German Shepherd cross puppy named "Chainsaw."

replacement of the floor at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

The city park board recommended to the finance committee and then to the city council that $270,000 from reserves would be used for financing the replacement of the floor in the arena. There have been discussions regarding what to do about cracks and leaks in the floor for the past two or three years. The city expects to have the floor replaced next year. The $270,000 requested from reserves came from Sewer Bond reserves which became available to the general fund reserves when the all obligations on the bonds were met. The park department has also budgeted $30,000 in 1994 for the project.

■ Thief River Falls has received notice that it will receive an increase in local government aid in 1994.

Thief River Falls will receive a $40,000 increase in local government aid in 1994. Roger DeLap, city finance officer, made the announcement after trying to explain the formula used to determine local government aid.

DeLap was quickly "encouraged" to get to the bottom line. The final 1994 local government aid after reductions was $1,144,258 or roughly $40,000 more than last year.

■ The council approved the expenditure of $5,000 for an initial planning study for an Athletic/Performing Center.

Up to $5,000 of city funds will be used for a study of a community athletic/performing center. Other groups participating in the study include: School District 564, the Community College, and Pennington county.

In an interview after the meeting, Northland Community College President Jim Haviland said everything was in a very preliminary stage. He explained that the proposal was first discussed when an informal group of people started discussing what the community needed. A need for a number of facilities was recognized, including a football field, track, tennis courts and many other facilities. At this point, reiterated Haviland, everything is in a very preliminary stage.

The study being proposed should help answer the many questions everyone has, such as how much will it cost, what will it include and where could it be built.

■ Thief River Falls will act as the legal sponsor for a comprehensive grant application for a $1.4 million commercial/rental rehabilitation community development application.

Funds from the application to the Minnesota department of trade and economic development would be used for commercial and rental rehabilitation in the downtown district. Community Development Director Don Stewart, has been collating information collected in a survey of downtown business district and nearby downtown residential districts about their needs. This information and statements of intent to participate in the program are being collected for a comprehensive grant application. The city council approved a recommendation to submit the application. The council also agreed to hold a hearing concerning the commercial and rental rehabilitation application at 7:30 p.m. on August 9. More information about the program will be distributed at the hearing.

The target area boundaries defined in the application basically includes the area from Sixth street on the north, Zeh avenue on the south, Arnold avenue on the west and Atlantic avenue on the east.

According to a resolution identifying "slum and blighting" conditions, of the 204 parcels in the area, 18 are owned by religious groups and governmental entities, 55 (29.6 per cent) of the remaining 186 buildings are considered major substandard, 65 (35 per cent) are in minor substandard condition and two (1.1 per cent) of the buildings are dilapidated.

In addition, the city has identified streets, storm sewers, sanitary sewer, water lines in dilapidated or deteriorating condition, the existence of substandard residential units; and the inability of commercial structures to meet codes. Many storefronts on the commercial buildings and dilapidated structures also contribute to the slum and blighting conditions of the target area.

In other business, the council: approved a request by Dr. Ben Sayler to vacate part of Elm avenue; approved a variance request by Wes and Brenda Schroeder on Greenwood street, to build a garage addition; approved a conditional use permit for School District 564 to make additions, renovations and site improvements to Lincoln high school; approved a request for a registered land survey on property owned by Dale Olmstead; accepted the resignation of Planning Commissioner Jon Braband and appointed Mike Parker to fill the position; approved a software maintenance agreement for $2,400 annually with Business Software Inc., of Fargo, ND; approved a long distance phone service proposal from Marketing Enterprise Consultants; and approved a dance permit request by Matt Perkins for July 30 at the Armory from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., and a request by Ryan Walseth for August 12 at the Armory from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

New laws on burning, burying garbage on farms

Effective August 1, a new law changes what can be buried and burned on farms in remote, rural areas where garbage collection is not available. According to a news release from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, the new law makes it illegal to burn or bury the following solid waste items on farms: tires, plastics (except plastic baling twine), household hazardous waste, appliances, household batteries, used motor oil or lead acid batteries from motor vehicles.

This change, passed by the 1993 Legislature, will make farm disposal more consistent with disposal bans that already exist statewide, the MPCA release stated. These items are banned from garbage disposal because they can cause significant harm to the environment or can be recycled into other products. There are systems in most counties statewide to take these items for proper disposal and recycling.

In 1989, the Minnesota Legislature made it legal for farm households to dispose of solid waste on farm property if a local county board had not passed a resolution stating that reasonable solid waste college was available in a remote rural location. The 1989 law states that burying or burning solid waste on farm dumps must be done in a ". . nuisance free, pollution free and aesthetic manner. . . ." Under normal circumstances, burying and burning of solid waste is not allowed without environmental safeguards and approvals from the MPCA.

Even though state law allows some farms to dispose of garbage on their property, there is no guarantee that this kind of disposal will be "pollution free," and the property owner is still liable for any damage caused by pollution from buried garbage.

Farm dumps can pose a very real threat to groundwater because of some chemicals in today's solid waste. Because rural drinking water wells are rarely tested for chemicals associated with solid waste, ground water pollution from farm dumps may go undetected. Even harmful concentrations of some ground water pollutants cannot be tasted, smelled or seen.

Also, the open burning of waste can create gases and particulars that may harm human health. A 1992 study in Duluth calculated that the rate of dioxin emissions from a 55-gallon burning barrel is 20 times greater than a comparable amount of garbage burned in a state-of-the-art solid waste incinerator with pollution-control equipment. Dioxins are potentially harmful by-products of combustion.

Possible ground water contamination from burying garbage or ash from burned garbage not only threatens people's health or the environment; it also can cause severe financial hardships for farms where livestock and dairy operations depend on clean sources of water. If a farm dump pollutes a neighbor's drinking-water well, the farm owner could be liable to clean up the problem and provide the neighbor with a clean drinking-water supply.

To reduce use of a farm dump, households can reduce their waste by buying reusable and refillable containers, avoiding over-packaged products and buying in bulk, for example. Households can also compost food and yard waste, recycle as much as possible, and take the remainder to the nearest landfill or solid waste transfer station.

Karla Wallace of Middle River knows how to handle dairy cattle in the show ring, but now she has a new challenge as Minnesota Jersey Queen. She received her crown and banner at Cambridge, serves as a spokesperson for the state's Jersey breeders and will represent the Minnesota Jersey Cattle Club in the national contest in November at Louisville, KY. The cow pictured above was reserve champion purebred over all breeds at Northwest Dairy Day in 1992.

northwest of Thief Lake. In addition to their dairy herd of 20 registered Jerseys and 50 grade Holsteins, they operate Honker Flats greenhouse and nursery.

Karla also has three older sisters —Mrs. Ron (Nola) Dallager of Esko, Rena Wallace of Askov and JoAnn Wallace of Holt, and a younger brother, Logan, 15, also a seven-year veteran of showing at Northwest Dairy Day.

At Greenbush-Middle River high school Karla plays on the varsity softball team and is also a member of the Grass Lake team in the Roseau county 4-H softball league.

She plays saxophone in the concert and jazz bands, sings in the concert choir, girls' choir and pops choir, is an honor roll student and member of the National Honor Society.

Work on the farm in the summer and school activities during the school year take up much of her time, although she does enjoy riding the farm's three horses and playing with her Samoyed-German Shepherd cross puppy named "Chainsaw."

replacement of the floor at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

The city park board recommended to the finance committee and then to the city council that $270,000 from reserves would be used for financing the replacement of the floor in the arena. There have been discussions regarding what to do about cracks and leaks in the floor for the past two or three years. The city expects to have the floor replaced next year. The $270,000 requested from reserves came from Sewer Bond reserves which became available to the general fund reserves when the all obligations on the bonds were met. The park department has also budgeted $30,000 in 1994 for the project.

■ Thief River Falls has received notice that it will receive an increase in local government aid in 1994.

Thief River Falls will receive a $40,000 increase in local government aid in 1994. Roger DeLap, city finance officer, made the announcement after trying to explain the formula used to determine local government aid.

DeLap was quickly "encouraged" to get to the bottom line. The final 1994 local government aid after reductions was $1,144,258 or roughly $40,000 more than last year.

■ The council approved the expenditure of $5,000 for an initial planning study for an Athletic/Performing Center.

Up to $5,000 of city funds will be used for a study of a community athletic/performing center. Other groups participating in the study include: School District 564, the Community College, and Pennington county.

In an interview after the meeting, Northland Community College President Jim Haviland said everything was in a very preliminary stage. He explained that the proposal was first discussed when an informal group of people started discussing what the community needed. A need for a number of facilities was recognized, including a football field, track, tennis courts and many other facilities. At this point, reiterated Haviland, everything is in a very preliminary stage.

The study being proposed should help answer the many questions everyone has, such as how much will it cost, what will it include and where could it be built.

■ Thief River Falls will act as the legal sponsor for a comprehensive grant application for a $1.4 million commercial/rental rehabilitation community development application.

Funds from the application to the Minnesota department of trade and economic development would be used for commercial and rental rehabilitation in the downtown district. Community Development Director Don Stewart, has been collating information collected in a survey of downtown business district and nearby downtown residential districts about their needs. This information and statements of intent to participate in the program are being collected for a comprehensive grant application. The city council approved a recommendation to submit the application. The council also agreed to hold a hearing concerning the commercial and rental rehabilitation application at 7:30 p.m. on August 9. More information about the program will be distributed at the hearing.

The target area boundaries defined in the application basically includes the area from Sixth street on the north, Zeh avenue on the south, Arnold avenue on the west and Atlantic avenue on the east.

According to a resolution identifying "slum and blighting" conditions, of the 204 parcels in the area, 18 are owned by religious groups and governmental entities, 55 (29.6 per cent) of the remaining 186 buildings are considered major substandard, 65 (35 per cent) are in minor substandard condition and two (1.1 per cent) of the buildings are dilapidated.

In addition, the city has identified streets, storm sewers, sanitary sewer, water lines in dilapidated or deteriorating condition, the existence of substandard residential units, and the inability of commercial structures to meet codes. Many storefronts on the commercial buildings and dilapidated structures also contribute to the slum and blighting conditions of the target area.

In other business, the council: approved a request by Dr. Ben Sayler to vacate part of Elm avenue; approved a variance request by Wes and Brenda Schroeder on Greenwood street, to build a garage addition; approved a conditional use permit for School District 564 to make additions, renovations and site improvements to Lincoln high school; approved a request for a registered land survey on property owned by Dale Olmstead; accepted the resignation of Planning Commissioner Jon Braband and appointed Mike Parker to fill the position; approved a software maintenance agreement for $2,400 annually with Business Software Inc., of Fargo, ND; approved a long distance phone service proposal from Marketing Enterprise Consultants; and approved a dance permit request by Matt Perkins for July 30 at the Armory from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., and a request by Ryan Walseth for August 12 at the Armory from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

New laws on burning, burying garbage on farms

Effective August 1, a new law changes what can be buried and burned on farms in remote, rural areas where garbage collection is not available. According to a news release from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, the new law makes it illegal to burn or bury the following solid waste items on farms: tires, plastics (except plastic baling twine), household hazardous waste, appliances, household batteries, used motor oil or lead acid batteries from motor vehicles.

This change, passed by the 1993 Legislature, will make farm disposal more consistent with disposal bans that already exist statewide, the MPCA release stated. These items are banned from garbage disposal because they can cause significant harm to the environment or can be recycled into other products. There are systems in most counties statewide to take these items for proper disposal and recycling.

In 1989, the Minnesota Legislature made it legal for farm households to dispose of solid waste on farm property if a local county board had not passed a resolution stating that reasonable solid waste college was available in a remote rural location. The 1989 law states that burying or burning solid waste on farm dumps must be done in a ". . .nuisance free, pollution free and aesthetic manner. . . ." Under normal circumstances, burying and burning of solid waste is not allowed without environmental safeguards and approvals from the MPCA.

Even though state law allows some farms to dispose of garbage on their property, there is no guarantee that this kind of disposal will be "pollution free," and the property owner is still liable for any damage caused by pollution from buried garbage.

Farm dumps can pose a very real threat to groundwater because of some chemicals in today's solid waste. Because rural drinking water wells are rarely tested for chemicals associated with solid waste, ground water pollution from farm dumps may go undetected. Even harmful concentrations of some ground water pollutants cannot be tasted, smelled or seen.

Also, the open burning of waste can create gases and particulars that may harm human health. A 1992 study in Duluth calculated that the rate of dioxin emissions from a 55-gallon burning barrel is 20 times greater than a comparable amount of garbage burned in a state-of-the-art solid waste incinerator with pollution-control equipment. Dioxins are potentially harmful by-products of combustion.

Possible ground water contamination from burying garbage or ash from burned garbage not only threatens people's health or the environment; it also can cause severe financial hardships for farms where livestock and dairy operations depend on clean sources of water. If a farm dump pollutes a neighbor's drinking-water well, the farm owner could be liable to clean up the problem and provide the neighbor with a clean drinking-water supply.

To reduce use of a farm dump, households can reduce their waste by buying reusable and refillable containers, avoiding over-packaged products and buying in bulk, for example. Households can also compost food and yard waste, recycle as much as possible, and take the remainder to the nearest landfill or solid waste transfer station.

Conditions of his release include no direct and indirect contact with the victim.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Dr. Charles Samuelson honored as Top Aggie

Dr. Charles Samuelson of Thief River Falls was honored by Northwest School of Agriculture (NWSA) alumni as one of four Top Aggies.

He was honored at the annual alumni reunion held recently on the University of Minnesota, Crookston campus.

Since the school's first class graduated, there have been 5,433 NWSA graduates and 600 who completed teacher training for a total of 6,033. Of these graduates, less then one per cent, 48, were named Top Aggies.

Samuelson grew up in Crookston and attended the NWSA from 1940 to 1944. While an "Aggie" he participated in debate, wrestling, swimming, track, livestock judging, intermural sports and editor of the Aggie Rouser.

Samuelson began his college education at Moorhead State University in 1947, but his studies were interrupted by a tour of duty in the Army during the Korean War. He received his baccalaureate degree from MSU in 1952.

His 40-year teaching career began in Dawson where he taught biology and chemistry. In 1956 he received his master of arts degree from the University of Northern Colorado.

He taught in Thief River Falls and at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis. In 1965 he became a teaching professor at the Northland Community College. While in this position he achieved his Ph.D. from North Dakota State University in 1976.

Samuelson's doctoral thesis "Biology of Sunflower Midge in the Red River Valley" remains the authority on this subject.

Samuelson retired form Northland Community College in 1992.

During his career Samuelson has participated in a multitude of organizations and community activities. In addition, he has actively worked on organizing the last five class of 1943 reunions and served as chairman of the White House Restoration Committee.

In 1956 Samuelson married Idelle Medchill. They raised three children and have four grandchildren.

Samuelson's father, Richard, attended NWSA in 1912 to 1914 as did all his brothers and several uncles.

Mortgage volume up from '92

Volume of home mortgages is exceeding the record pace set in 1992, according to Roger Reuter, president of Norwest Bank in Thief River Falls, where $1,558,000 in loans has been originated for 32 homeowners so far this year.

"Due to the interest rate environment, many people are continuing to purchase homes, reduce their payments and/or the mortgage term and consequently save thousands of dollars in interest," Reuter said.

He noted that most borrowers are interested in fixed rate terms, but as of July 26 adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs) had been quoted as low as 4 3/8 per cent with no points.

With lower interest rates people are able to buy more house for their money, Reuter said. The median American household's annual income is $32,073. At 10 per cent interest the maximum mortgage would be for $62,487. At five per cent the maximum mortgage could be $102,151.

Where Your State Dollars Are Spent

We're in the first month of the two-year Minnesota budget cycle. At the risk of pointing out some nearly unimaginable numbers, this seems like a good time to talk about where your state dollars are being spent.

The state will spend $16.5 billion between July 1, 1993 and June 30, 1995.

Unlike many states, Minnesota takes a big role in paying for schools and local government. Most of the money the state spends goes back to local communities. Minnesota's budget system uniqueness comes out of our desire to help provide local services on an ability-to-pay basis. Our system is fairer than other states where local property taxes are particularly burdensome.

Only 18.1 per cent of the state budget is actually spent on the operation of state government. This portion includes all state departments, agencies and boards, state institutions and bonding, along with Legislative, Judicial and Constitutional offices such as Governor.

Elementary, secondary and higher education, along with local governmental aids and credits account for 61.7 per cent of state spending during the current two-year cycle. Most of these dollars help keep property taxes from escalating rapidly.

The big picture can be broken down into nine state budget categories. The largest share, 31.1 per cent, goes to elementary and secondary education finance. Higher education accounts for 12.4 per cent.

That adds up to 43.5 per cent of the state budget, so it certainly is true that education is Minnesota's top priority. However, education funding is taking a smaller piece of the pie now than in the past two years when it accounted for 46.8 per cent of the state budget.

Local government aids and credits are receiving 14.3 per cent of the state budget, down slightly from their 14.6 per cent portion during the 1991-93 biennium. Other local assistance helps pay for community corrections, community health services, social services, transit and economic development. This category accounts for 3.9 per cent of the budget, up slightly from its 3.5 per cent share in 1991-93.

State government spending is also taking a smaller share of the pie. State operations, which includes all of the state departments, agencies and boards, takes up 7.6 per cent. That's down from 8.1 per cent during the pervious biennium. State institutions such as prisons, regional treatment centers and veterans' homes account for 4.7 per cent of the budget, down slightly from a 4.9 per cent share in 1991-93. Other state government expenses, including the cost of running the Legislative, Judicial and Constitutional branches along with debt service on bonding projects, take up 5.8 per cent of the state budget, down from a 6 per cent share in 1991-93. The three branches account for only 2.5 per cent of the state budget.

You might have noticed that education, local government and state operations are taking a smaller share of the state budget than in past years. So, what part of the budget is taking a bigger share?

Most of the increase is going to health care. Much of the 16.9 per cent share of the state budget allocated for health care goes to help support the increasing population of nursing home residents. As the cost of health care continues to increase throughout society, the state's share also escalates.

Minnesota is a leader in the effort to trim health care costs, but reforms initiated in 1992 and '93 will not pay off in a big way until a few years from now.

Family support takes up 3.4 per cent of the budget, somewhat higher than its 2.7 per cent share in 1991-93. This portion of the state budget is often referred to as "welfare," and includes Aid for Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), General Assistance to single persons, and Social Security supplements paid to certain elderly and disabled persons.

Just in case financial projections fall short of the mark, the state budget includes a $360 million cushion to meet cash flow needs. These reserve funds are not included in the graph because they aren't allocated for spending. They show up as additional funds on the revenue side of the equation.

A future column will discuss the sources of nearly $16.9 billion in revenue the state intends to raise during the current two-year period.

District tournament at Irv Wilson Field...

Bemidji beats TRF twice for VFW title

Bemidji bounced back from a first-round loss to Thief River Falls with a five-game march through the loser's bracket to win championship honors in the five-team, double-elimination Ninth District VFW baseball tournament for 16-year-olds at Irv Wilson Field.

No. 2-seeded Bemidji lost its first post-season start to No. 3 Thief River Falls 13-11 Friday afternoon, but rebounded with an 8-4 decision over No. 5-seeded East Grand Forks, a 14-4 victory over No. 4-seeded Fergus Falls and an 8-2 conquest of No. 1-seeded Moorhead.

That put Bemidji in the state tournament-qualifying finals against the host Thief River Falls squad that followed its first-game win over Bemidji with a 12-7 Saturday afternoon verdict over Moorhead.

Needing a pair of wins over Thief River Falls to claim the title, Bemidji did just that Sunday – 5-3 and 10-1 – to advance into state tournament play Aug. 12-15 in Brainerd.

The Rick Looker-coached Thief River Falls squad finished the year at 13-17.

Dusty Eddelman, Tim Barry, Jason Hruby and Cory Jenkins had two hits apiece for the winners. Hruby drove in five runs and Eddelman picked up two RBI.

Starting pitcher Eric Bjorgaard went six innings for the win, giving up four hits while striking out 10 and walking eight. Jon Elizondo worked the seventh in relief.

Tim Barry pitched the first three innings and took the loss. Cory Jenkins finished the mound chores. They gave up only two hits and combined on four strike-outs, but walked 12 and hit three batters.

Legion tournament starts Thursday

■ Ninth District baseball playoffs will be held in East Grand Forks

Defending champion Thief River Falls will take on Perham Thursday at 12-noon in the opening game of the 1993 Ninth District American Legion Division I baseball tournament at Stauss Park in East Grand Forks.

Other Thursday first round match-ups in the eight-team, double-elimination event include Roseau vs. Moorhead at 2:30 p.m., Detroit Lakes vs. East Grand Forks at 5 and Fergus Falls vs. Crookston at 7:30.

Play continues Friday and Saturday. Last of the loser-out games will be played Sunday at 1:30 p.m., followed by the finals at 4. A second title game showdown, if needed, would be played Monday at 7 p.m.

The Thief River Falls-Perham winner will meet the Roseau-Moorhead winner at 5 p.m. Friday, with the two first round losers meeting at 12-noon that day.

The Ninth District champion will advance to the state tournament Aug. 12-15 in New Ulm.

Divided on a North/South basis, the Ninth District post-season seeding positions put Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks, Roseau, and Crookston 1-through-4, respectively, in the North, while Fergus Falls, Moorhead, Detroit Lakes, and Perham were place 1-through-4 in the South. The first round pairings matched North 1 vs. South 4, North 2 vs. South 3, and North 4 vs. South 1.

This is the second year of separate divisional play in the Ninth District, where the eight larger programs are grouped in Division I and the others are in Division II. The Ninth District went to a Class AA/A playoff format in 1983, but then matched the winners in a two-out-of-three game series to name the state tournament representative until 1989.

The two classes were thrown together again for an eight-team (four AA and four A qualifiers) Ninth District tournament field in 1990 and 1991 before they separated entirely last summer.

"I feel confident going into the tournament," offered Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "I feel we have the ability to repeat."

Controlled goose hunt set at Thief Lake WMA

Hunters may apply again this year to reserve goose hunting stations within the controlled hunt zone at the Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources announced.

Applications will be accepted on the basis of the earliest postmark between Aug. 23 and Sept. 15. Applications postmarked prior to Aug. 23 will be rejected. Although waterfowl dates will not be officially set until early September, the Minnesota goose season is expected to open Oct. 2.

Hunters may apply to reserve one of the stations within the controlled hunting area. Applications must be made on a standard 3 1/2 by 5 1/2-inch postcard (available at post offices) bearing the applicant's full name and address. Applicants should list their first, second and third choices of dates, and indicate whether they will accept an alternate date if none of their choices is available.

Only one postcard per hunter may be submitted. Those submitting more than one application will have all of their applications rejected.

Applications should be sent to Controlled Hunt, Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area, HCR, Box 17, Middle River, MN 56737.

Successful applicants will receive reservations by mail designating the date of their hunt. Only successful applicants will be notified. Goose hunting stations will be assigned through a drawing held on the morning of the hunt. Reservation holders may be accompanied by one or two guests. However, persons participating in the hunt will be limited to three trips either as guests or as successful applicants.

The Thief Lake reservation system will be in effect through Oct. 25. After that date, stations will be available on a first-come, first-choice basis.

A six-shell limit, shooting hours, and steel shot restrictions will be strictly enforced, according to DNR wildlife officials.

TRF swimmers win North Dakota state title

Five Thief River Falls swimmers put together a USS state championship effort over the weekend – in North Dakota.

Competing in the North Dakota Long Course Championship at the Hyslop Aquatics Center in Grand Forks, the Thief River Falls entries finished 10th overall in a field of 18 teams. However, the six smallest squads (based on number of team members) were also vying for the small-team title – a crown that went to Ryan Lokken-coached Thief River Falls, the second-smallest group on hand for an event that drew over 300 swimmers from North Dakota, Montana and Minnesota.

In the process, Thief River Falls' Monica Miller and Theresa Giauque qualified for the 13-state area USS zone competition Aug. 6-8 in Wichita, Kansas. Miller set North Dakota state records in the girls 15-18-year-old group in both the 100 and 200-meter backstroke. Giauque advanced in the girls 15-18-year-old 800-meter freestyle.

Brad Cota, 15-18-year-old boys; Chris Pribula, 13-14-year-old boys; and Andrea Sorvig, 11-12-year-old girls, joined Miller and Giauque on Thief River Falls' North Dakota state championship squad.

Post 117 beats Roseau 8-0...

TRF will take 29-8 record to playoffs

Four Thief River Falls pitchers combined on a three-hit shutout Monday as Post 117 closed out its 1993 regular season American Legion baseball schedule with an 8-0 win at Roseau.

Marc Haugen was the Thief River Falls starter, but he worked only one inning. Jeremy Olson went the next three for the win. Joby Looker also pitched two innings and Brian Minks handled the seventh.

The pitching rotation was by design, pointed out Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "They all did a nice job," he said.

Looker had two doubles, Rick Ostby drove in three runs and Steve Burslie had two RBI to lead the Thief River Falls offense.

Post 117 heads into Ninth District tournament play with a 29-8 record – matching last year's win total when Thief River Falls finished 29-13 en route to a state tournament berth for the first time since 1955.

"We did better than I thought we would," said Dalager, looking at the regular season record. "I antcipated about 25 wins."

Brian Minks pitched in relief for the winners.

Carter Rogalla led a 12-hit Thief River Falls attack with a 4-for-4 game that included four RBI. Dave Blazek had three hits in four at-bats.

Special Goose Hunt Permits

Hunters interested in participating in the Sept. 4-13 special Canada goose seasons should apply for a permit by Aug. 20 in order to receive their permit before the hunting season, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

September Canada goose seasons will be held in three areas in 1993 – the new Southwest Zone, the Fergus Falls/Alexandria Zone and the Twin Cities Metro Zone.

"By hunting in September we direct harvest toward the Minnesota resident goose flocks rather than migrant Canada geese that arrive later in September from northern Manitoba," said Tim Bremicker, DNR Section of Wildlife Chief. "The number of Canada geese breeding in Minnesota has been increasing in recent years, while the migrant Canada geese that breed in northern Manitoba have declined the past two years.

Hunters must have a special goose hunt permit in their possession to participate in these September seasons. Permit applications are available from county auditors, DNR wildlife offices and most license agents. Applications must be mailed along with the $3 fee to the DNR License Bureau in St. Paul by Aug. 20. An unlimited number of permits will be issued.

In addition to a valid special permit, hunters must have a current small game license, federal duck stamp and a Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp in accordance with state and federal regulations.

Special hunt Canada goose bag limits will be four daily and eight in possession in the Twin Cities Metro Zone; two daily and four in possession in the Fergus Falls/Alexandria and Southwest Zones.

"The majority of hunting opportunity is on private land and hunters should secure permission from landowners prior to the season," added Bremicker.

DNR Warns Boaters

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is cautioning boaters to avoid the use of alcoholic beverages if they are going to be operating watercraft.

Opening of the recreational boating season often claims several lives due to intoxicated operators, so the DNR is taking special measures to get drunk boaters off the state's waterways. DNR conservation officers and county sheriff's water patrols will be on the lookout for intoxicated boat operators, and arresting those over the legal alcohol level of .10 percent.

"Unfortunately, some people still feel that they have to drink in order to have a good time on the water," said Tim Smalley, DNR boating safety specialist. "That attitude often causes more heartache and suffering when a boating accident is the result of too much beer or other alcoholic beverage."

The DNR finds that about 50 percent of all boating accidents are directly related to the use of alcohol, so special measures are being taken to get drunk boaters off the water.

"We want boaters to be aware that besides being dangerous, boating while intoxicated can be expensive from a legal aspect as well," said Smalley. Boaters who are convicted of BWI face fines of over $700, a 90-day loss of boat operating privileges, and possibly jail time.

The DNR has found that the average person arrested for BWI isn't a first-time offender. Last year, almost 50 percent of the people arrested for BWI had a prior arrest for driving an automobile under the influence of alcohol or drugs. "It isn't your average 'Joe Angler' out having a couple of beers; it is the same people that abuse alcohol on the highways as well," Smalley said.

The Thief River Falls 14-15-year-olds were playing in the Babe Ruth tournament at Robbinsdale, where they lost a 13-3 Thursday game to East Tonka and dropped a 10-0 Friday decision to Mankato.

Both Thief River Falls teams reached state tournament play by winning Lake Agassiz District 7 titles – the 13-year-olds in Thief River Falls and the 14-15-year-olds in Roseau.

DNR Seeking News On Skunks

Not many people look for skunks, but Department of Natural Resources nongame wildlife specialists wouldn't mind finding a few more eastern spotted skunks, the small uncommon stinkers also known as civet cats.

Plentiful 50 years ago when small farms dotted Minnesota, the spotted skunk is on the state list of species of special concern. "It's seen much less frequently than it once was, but there's very little information about it," says Rich Baker, DNR nongame research specialist.

Baker is asking Minnesotans who have seen a spotted skunk in the last five years, or know where the species may still exist, to call the DNR at 1-800-766-6000 and ask for the Section of Wildlife to give information about when and where you saw the animal.

Smaller than the striped skunk, the one-pound spotted skunk was first recorded in Minnesota in 1914. Farms caused the population to explode as spotted skunks ate the mice and rats attracted to leaky granaries.

Changes in farming, such as direct combining of shelled corn and elimination of corn cribs, may have caused the skunk's scarcity. Despite their low numbers, spotted skunks are an unprotected species. If the species proves to be disappearing from the state, its status may be changed to protect it, Baker says.

MDA offers sustainable ag loans

The Minnesota Department of Agriculture's Energy and Sustainable Agriculture Program offers a low interest rate loan program for farmers interested in making the transition to a more sustainable system.

Up to $15,000 per farmer ($75,000 for joint projects) is available to purchase new or used equipment, or to make other improvements to enhance profitability, diversify the farm and benefit the environment, according to Cheryl Sistad, district secretary/manager of the Marshall Beltrami soil and Water Conservation District.

Loans are for five to seven years in length and all have a fixed interest rate of six per cent.

Eligible purchases may include: rotational grazing systems, on-farm energy production; solar powered equipment; low-cost livestock housing; no-herbicide weed control; composting equipment; equipment to handle cover crops; alternative fertilizer management equipment; or any item that makes your farming system more sustainable.

The farmer must reside in Minnesota and the equipment purchase must be made after the date the application is submitted to the Department of Agriculture.

Loans are made directly between the State of Minnesota and the farmer. Applications are judged competitively and funded based on criteria of environmental and economic benefit.

Applications are accepted continuously and applications postmarked by September 20 will be eligible for consideration this fall.

For an application and complete information write or call: Sustainable Agriculture Loan Program: Minnesota Department of Agriculture; 90 West Plato Boulevard; St. Paul, Minnesota 55107; (612) 282-2261.

Area SWCD receives cost share money

The Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) recently received about $15,979 from the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources to cost-share with landowners on conservation practices and district and program administration.

About $5,855 (up from previous years) of the money will be allocated through the state cost-share program. The state program provides up to 75 per cent of a landowner's cost of installing practices to control priority erosion problems.

Eligible practices include field windbreaks, animal waste control systems and terraces.

This type of state assistance is very helpful in providing local landowners with opportunities to install conservation practices," said Cheryl Sistad, secretary/manager of the SWCD. "By allowing the SWCD to administer the program locally, the state ensures that our community's unique resource needs are met," Sistad said.

Last year, the program assisted three landowners and units of government in the district in installing practices such as erosion control structures.

The remainder of the $15,979 is for general SWCD administration of the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) Reserve Program, a land set-aside program that pays landowners to retire certain marginal agricultural lands.

SWCDs receive funding from the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources for other conservation programs at various times throughout the year.

Anyone interested in cost-share funding should contact the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD at 294-6144.

Wildlife Damage Program

Specialty crop and other agricultural growers who have problems with wildlife damage will be offered additional assistance in managing those problems as a result of an accelerated wildlife damage management initiative that went into effect July 1. The initiative was passed by the 1993 Legislature at the urging of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources to improve the level of service provided to people who experience conflicts with wildlife, according to Mike DonCarlos, DNR wildlife depredation specialist.

"Wildlife damage to agricultural crops has increased as both wildlife and human populations have expanded," said DonCarlos. "The accelerated program will enhance and expand upon the technical assistance we've provided in the past. More importantly, it will increase the support for damage abatement practices, increase prevention of damage by enhancing wildlife population management, and increase assistance available in severe damage situations," he said.

The accelerated program is funded by an appropriation from the state's game and fish fund, derived from hunting and fishing related fees. It includes provisions for improved technical assistance emergency damage assistance, free landowner second-deer permits in some areas, and measures designed to improve wildlife population and habitat management related to damage situations.

"The DNR's primary objective is still to take a preventive approach and to reduce wildlife damage by managing populations at levels that will keep damage tolerable, wherever possible," DonCarlos said.

Highlights of the expanded wildlife damage management program include:

■ Continued development of the wildlife Geographic Information System to integrate information on populations, habitats, harvests, and depredation problems to that wildlife population management can be adjusted as necessary to reduce agricultural damage;

■ Creation of two field wildlife extension specialist positions (located in Brainerd and New Ulm) to assist DNR staff and the public in implementing the latest and most effective wildlife damage management techniques and programs;

■ Increased production and distribution of technical assistance brochures, training manuals, and demonstrations;

■ One-time provision of supplies and materials for emergency wildlife damage management for agricultural specialty crops (fruit orchards, vegetables, tree farms, nurseries, turf farms, and apiaries) until a long-term cooperative damage management program can be implemented by the grower and the DNR;

■ Funding for food/lure crops, to reduce wildlife crop damage;

■ Funding for research and special surveys pertaining to wildlife damage; and

■ Provisions for landowner preference for no-cost deer management permits in areas where these permits are available.

People experiencing specific wildlife damage to property or agricultural crops are encouraged by the DNR to contact their area wildlife manager for information and assistance. For general information on the DNR's wildlife damage management program, contact DNR wildlife depredation specialist Mike DonCarlos at (612) 297-3208.

Polaris sales up 40 per cent from 1992

Polaris Industries Partners L.P. sales for the first six months of 1993 were $218,350,000, up 40 per cent over the same period last year.

Earnings increased 53 per cent to a record $12,680,000 or $.62 per unit compared with $8,314,000 or $.42 per unit in 1992. The net income-per-unit calculations reflect the recently approved two-for-one split of Polaris units.

For the second quarter ended June 30, Polaris recorded sales of $111,235,000, up 30 per cent over sales of $85,467,000 for the same quarter last year.

Net income for the quarter was $6,542,000 or $.32 per unit; compared with $6,181,000 or $.31 for the second quarter of 1992.

According to a Mike Malone, chief financial officer, the gross margins for 1993 reflect the Partnership's broadened product lines and successful entry into the personal watercraft market.

Historically, in the second quarter, Malone said, Polaris has built and shipped higher margin snowmobile products exclusively. This year's results reflect increased shipments of lower margin personal water craft and all terrain vehicle products as well as an increase in snowmobile sales volume.

Polaris Industries has cash and cash equivalents of $9,300,000 and no long-term debt. Cash flow for the first six months of 1993 was $22,338,000 compared with $1,997,000 for the same period last year.

Holders of interests representing approximately 84 per cent of Polaris Beneficial Assignment Certificates (BACs) voted to approve the proposed two for one split of Partnership BACs. The record date for the split was Monday, August 2 and the effective date is August 18.

Polaris also intends to increase its regular quarterly distributions to $.63 from $.625 per unit on an adjusted basis. The increase will be effective with the third quarter 1993 distribution expected to be declared in September.

Local students named to All-State Jazz band

Rodney Joppru and Tom Swantek of Thief River Falls have been selected for membership in the Minnesota Music Educators Association All-State Jazz Ensemble for the 1993/1994 school year. His director at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls is Bruce Felt.

Rodney and Tom were among 500 students selected from over 2,000 who auditioned this past spring for a position in one of the six MMEA All-State organizations. The students will attend a summer camp which this summer is being held at Bemidji State University (Choral), St. Cloud State University (Orchestra), and St. Olaf College in Northfield (Band and Jazz Ensemble). The students participating in the camp will have the opportunity to work with some of the finest conductors and music educators in the country as well as meeting outstanding music students from all across the state of Minnesota. The camps will be held on their respective campuses August 2 through the 7th and will culminate with a final concert on Saturday, August 7, 1993. In addition, the students will gather again in February in Minneapolis where they will be a major performing group at Orchestra Hall during the Minnesota Music Educators Association Clinic. The All-State program is an on-going activity of the MMEA which works to promote music education throughout the state at all educational levels.

Dr. Haviland to keynote conference

Dr. James Haviland, provost at Northland Community College in Thief River Falls, will give the keynote address entitled "A Celebration of Communication" at the 19th annual fall conference of the Northwest Regional Development Commission's Area Agency on Aging August 25 at the University of Minnesota—Crookston.

The address will begin at 9:15 a.m., following registration and refreshments. Doors will open for registration at 8 a.m.

"Celebration of Seniority" is the conference theme and Dr. Haviland will address communication patterns and non-verbal messages that punctuate communication. He will describe ways to modify patterns that send messages that we do not intend to send.

"The provost will use a variety of instructional methods including audience participation to educate participants on effective communication techniques," states Faith Rud, director of the agency on aging and conference coordinator. "We are very excited to have a local speaker of Dr. Haviland's caliber to share his expertise with the aging network."

The area on agency sponsors the educational event each year with funds provided by the federal Older Americans Act through the Minnesota Board on Aging. Local support is provided by the NWRDC tax levy and registration fees.

"Look for pre-registration materials on the conference brochures which will be available at senior centers throughout the region during July and August," Rud said. "Pre-registration is necessary by August 19 or a meal cannot be guaranteed."

For further information contact Rud at the NWRDC, 525 Brooks Avenue South, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or by calling 681-2637 or 1-800-450-2637.

Campaign collects coats for kids

Donations of used winter coats, jackets, snowsuits and accessories for kids are being collected by the "Coats for Kids" campaign.

The coats will be accepted now through August 20 at Narverud Cleaners in Thief River Falls. Infants and toddlers sizes are especially needed.

All donated items will be cleaned and channeled locally through the Seventh Day Adventist Church Community Services. Garments will also be distributed through agencies in area communities.

The campaign is being spearheaded by an area television station. Last year's campaign brought in thousands of winter garments.

REST INSURED by Carol Nelson
HEADING FOR A FALL!
According to the National Safety Council, accidents are the 4th leading cause of death to Americans. Falls rank as the 2nd highest cause of accidental death behind automobile accidents. As the number of people over age 60 grows, falls become an even greater danger.
—Broken sidewalks are a major place for falls. Make sure yours is in good condition. Homeowners sometimes think their sidewalks are the responsibility of the town or city. This is not always the case. More often than not, the homeowner is responsible. Make sure you know who is in charge of your sidewalks and keep them in good repair. Even if your city takes care of sidewalk conditions, you should notify them of needed repairs. In the fall, keep leaves raked so that sidewalks can be seen. In the winter, make sure walks are shoveled and icy spots are salted.
—Keep toys, tools and other objects picked up from floors, sidewalks and yards. Fill in, cover or barricade holes or construction areas. Make sure stairs, entries and sidewalks are well-lighted.
NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is concerned about safety. Also a concern is to be certain you are carrying adequate insurance protection. Stop at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY to discuss your insurance needs. BIBLE STUDY

Forcing a test

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

The devil tempted Jesus to jump down from a pinnacle, saying, "Isn't it written that God will give His angels charge over You that You do not hurt Yourself?" Jesus answered, "It is also written, 'You shall not force a test on God'" (Matt. 4:5-7).

The new covenant protects true servants of God from accidental ingestion of poison and from poisonous snake bites (Mark 16:18). But putting God to the test by willingly drinking poison or allowing yourself to be bitten by poisonous snakes would indeed be forcing a test on God. From time to time, certain religions have practiced these things, but they usually become extinct after a time!

The puffer fish, caught off the coast of Japan, is served in fine Japanese restaurants as a delicacy. This fish at times contains a virulent poison that cannot be detected until after the person who eats it dies. People who order puffer fish realize they are taking a chance, but they continue to eat it anyway.

When disciples of Jesus Christ eat what they know is not good for them to eat, they are indeed forcing a test on God. When believers smoke marijuana or cigarettes, which they know are not good for their health, they are forcing a test on God.

When a person goes put on a limb and charges goods and services he cannot afford, saying, "I did it in faith that God would provide," he is forcing a test on God. Even many churches do the same thing by expanding their buildings in so-called faith and forcing a test on God because they do not have funds available to pay the bills. The Bible says owe money to no man (Rom. 13:8). This principle should be adhered to as much as possible. People need houses and cars, and in our modern society, it is nearly impossible to pay cash for such expensive items. However, people would have a lot less trouble if they didn't run up bills, but would live within their means.

Take time right now to examine your motives and determine if you are forcing a test on God in any areas of your life (Jer. 5:25). Are you going out on a spiritual limb, knowing it won't hold you, and trusting God to make sure the limb doesn't break? Are you spending money you don't have, hoping God will give you the money to pay your debts? Think, think, think! Then act wisely, with God's wisdom and not your own (Matt. 6:33; Prov. 3:5-6; Psalm 21:2).

Please send your comments and Bible questions to: Whole Wheat, PO Box 26217, Minneapolis, MN 55426.

Kittson History Society to show Red Lake photos

An exhibit entitled "Portrait of the Chippewa: Photographs by Charles Brill" which contains 100 contemporary (1964-1969) photographs from the Red Lake Indian Reservation will be on exhibit beginning August 7 and continuing through August 27 at the Kittson county historical museum in Lake Bronson.

The museum is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 1 to 5 p.m. on weekends. There is free admission.

The traveling exhibit from the Minnesota Historical Society portrays Indian life at Red Lake. The photographs were taken by Charles E. Brill between 1964 and 1969 when he lived and worked with the Chippewa at Ponemah on the Red Lake Reservation.

Red Lake is a "closed" reservation, meaning that the ancestors of the approximately 8,155 Chippewa who jointly own the land today never ceded this land in treaties to the government. On more than half a million acres the members of the Red Lake band log, fish and hunt. They govern themselves through a tribal council as a sovereign nation and maintain a way of life that is uniquely their own, according to the state historical society.

Brill, an assistant professor at Kent State university, in cooperation with the Tribal Council, selected the prints from among the 5,000 photographs he took at Red Lake. His project was supported in part by an NEH grant.

"From the beginning," Brill writes, "I felt an urgency to record what still remains of the old ways. I also wanted to capture on film the daily activities of a people living as they want to live."

Freedom—the essence of the Red Lake Indian way of life—is the most outstanding theme conveyed through these photographs. However, Brill writes of a second theme that emerges: "Contrast—evidence of the dramatic transition from old to new underway within the boundaries of Red Lake."

Prior salvage stamp required

Every year, some 15,000 rebuilt totaled cars were sold to unsuspecting Minnesota consumers. Minnesota has been a dumping ground for rebuilt wrecks – with the rest of the nation washing their titles in our backyard, according to the Minnesota Attorney General's office.

A new Minnesota law in effect since June 1, 1993, finally puts the brakes on this type of fraud – and puts consumers in the driver's seat when it comes to buying repaired cars.

The law stipulates that all cars totaled by an insurance company and then rebuilt for re-sale to the public must receive a title stamped as "prior salvage." The law also requires that non-totaled cars receive title brands if the damage is at least 70 per cent of the car's value.

For more information about Minnesota's new title branding law, write or call: Attorney General Skip Humphrey, c/o Consumer Division, 1400 NCL Tower, 445 Minnesota Street, St. Paul, MN 55101; (612) 296-3353 or 1-800-657-3787.

Mother Nature Must Not Be A Midwesterner

by Mark Olson
Staff Writer

Minnesota. Land of One Large Lake. It keeps raining and raining and raining.

As a Midwesterner it feels good to live on one big continental mass, thousands of miles from the ocean shore, miles and miles of land underfoot.

Before this summer it felt good to say, "Well if you live in the South you're going to get hurricanes. If you live in the West you're going to get earthquakes. If you live in the East you're going to get mugged."

The Midwest is in the middle, where it's nice to be — between the extremes. Unfortunately weather understands moderation as much as a cow in a clover field.

For the first time in my life there is a natural-phenomena-I-can-tell-my-grandkids-about — the flood of 1993 (as seen via CNN).

Strangely, Northwest Minnesota rainfall has been average, just spread out over every day of the summer. We haven't had flooding ...yet and local festivals, most recently the Pennington county fair, have stoically continued in the face of persistent rains.

Rain is dominating the national news, drowning out most other topics. The Midwest is uncomfortably and unusually in the spotlight. Midwesterners are forced to put on their polite-and-resilient faces and cope with the "Midwesterners are polite and resilient" message played on TV news every night.

After the annoying "How do you feel" questions it's surprising polite Midwesterners haven't begun using reporters and camera operators as sandbags. "Throw me Dan Rather! The levee is weakening and Brokaw isn't going to hold much longer!"

Unfortunately the gazillion presidential candidates that magically appear in Iowa for caucuses every four years to talk corn in the local cafes aren't around to sandbag.

Thankfully, unlike most news, partisan controversy has no place in rain. Democrats and Republicans really can't pin this one on each other. "It's your fault Iowa is under water. No, it's your fault." But it's probably just a matter of time.

Side issues do arise, such as disaster relief or the Corp of Engineers: "Why don't them Harvard grads dig one massive drainage ditch from Lake Itasca to the Gulf with 200-feet tall levees the whole way?"

One good thing about the floods, Louisiana is getting billions of tons of rich Midwest topsoil, forming a new peninsula in the Gulf of Mexico. In a couple of years this prime real estate will be littered with houses waiting to be knocked down in the next hurricane.

The weather pendulum will eventually swing the other way, leading to more scorching summers and leaving Midwesterners with the eternal question "Why can't Mother Nature find a middle, an average, a compromise." She probably isn't from the Midwest.

Number Of Farms In Minnesota Continues To Shrink

One begins to wonder how long the shrinkage in number of Minnesota and U.S. farms can continue. The pace of shrinkage has slowed in the past half a dozen years, but the number of farms disappearing remains significant.

There are 87,000 farms in Minnesota in 1993, down by 1,000 from a year ago. As recently as 1983 there were about 102,000 farms in the state, meaning a loss of 15,000 farms in the past decade alone. Average farm size has increased during that same period from 300 acres to 341 acres, including a two-acre increase from 339 to 341 this year.

Only in two years of the last 10—from 1987 to 1988 and from 1991 to 1992—has there been no decrease in farm numbers. On the other hand, there was a sharp decline of about 5,000 farms from 1983 to 1984 and over 3,000 from 1985 to 1986, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

Nationally, there was a decline of 26,000 farms from 1992 to 1993, bringing the total number of farms in the nation down to 2,068,000. Total land in farms was 978.2 million acres—down 1.8 million acres from a year ago.

While size of farms has continued to increase as farm numbers have shrunk, the total amount of land in farms has decreased substantially. Minnesota's total farmland fell by 100,000 acres in the past year from 29.8 million in 1992 to 29.7 million in 1993.

One conclusion that can be drawn from the statistics is that as farmers choose to leave farming for retirement or other pursuits, there are no longer the number of family members willing to carry on the family farming operations. Unfortunately, in many cases that is due to the fact that it is increasingly difficult to make a family living from the farm, especially when the payments for acquisition of the farm are factored into the operating costs.

Agriculture remains the backbone of Minnesota's economy, but the backbone is weakening. One wonders how long it can continue to bear the load without breaking.

Title of CEO at Northland C.C. now "president"

The largely misunderstood title of "Provost" in the community college system has been replaced with the title of "President".

According to a news release in The Communicator, a news letter from Chancellor Geraldine Evans of the Minnesota Community College System, for more than a decade, chief executive officers with the college system have been called provosts.

The news release states, "Over time, it has become clear that "provost" is not a generally understood title and its usage adds confusion to the role of our campus leaders." The board then approved a change so that heads of all colleges will be now known as "president".

Jim Haviland, "president" of Northland Community College in Thief River Falls, said he received notice of the change in the title last Thursday.

Mother Nature Must Not Be A Midwesterner

Guest Editorial
by Mark Olson
Staff Writer

Minnesota. Land of One Large Lake. It keeps raining and raining and raining.

As a Midwesterner it feels good to live on one big continental mass, thousands of miles from the ocean shore, miles and miles of land underfoot.

Before this summer it felt good to say, "Well if you live in the South you're going to get hurricanes. If you live in the West you're going to get earthquakes. If you live in the East you're going to get mugged."

The Midwest is in the middle, where it's nice to be — between the extremes. Unfortunately weather understands moderation as much as a cow in a clover field.

For the first time in my life there is a natural phenomena I can tell my grandkids about — the flood of 1993 (as seen via CNN).

Strangely, Northwest Minnesota rainfall has been average, just spread out over every day of the summer. We haven't had flooding ...yet and local festivals, most recently the Pennington county fair, have stoically continued in the face of persistent rains.

Rain is dominating the national news, drowning out most other topics. The Midwest is uncomfortably and unusually in the spotlight. Midwesterners are forced to put on their polite-and-resilient faces and cope with the "Midwesterners are polite and resilient" message played on TV news every night.

After the annoying "How do you feel" questions it's surprising polite Midwesterners haven't begun using reporters and camera operators as sandbags. "Throw me Dan Rather! The levee is weakening and Brokaw isn't going to hold much longer!"

Unfortunately the gazillion presidential candidates that magically appear in Iowa for caucuses every four years to talk corn in the local cafes aren't around to sandbag.

Thankfully, unlike most news, partisan controversy has no place in rain. Democrats and Republicans really can't pin this one on each other. "It's your fault Iowa is under water. No, it's your fault." But it's probably just a matter of time.

Side issues do arise, such as disaster relief or the Corp of Engineers. 'Why don't them Harvard grads dig one massive drainage ditch from Lake Itasca to the Gulf with 200-feet tall levees the whole way?"

One good thing about the floods, Louisiana is getting billions of tons of rich Midwest topsoil, forming a new peninsula in the Gulf of Mexico. In a couple of years this prime real estate will be littered with houses waiting to be knocked down in the next hurricane.

The weather pendulum will eventually swing the other way, leading to more scorching summers and leaving Midwesterners with the eternal question "Why can't Mother Nature find a middle, an average, a compromise." She probably isn't from the Midwest.

Number Of Farms In Minnesota Continues To Shrink

One begins to wonder how long the shrinkage in number of Minnesota and U.S. farms can continue. The pace of shrinkage has slowed in the past half a dozen years, but the number of farms disappearing remains significant.

There are 87,000 farms in Minnesota in 1993, down by 1,000 from a year ago. As recently as 1983 there were about 102,000 farms in the state, meaning a loss of 15,000 farms in the past decade alone. Average farm size has increased during that same period from 300 acres to 341 acres, including a two-acre increase from 339 to 341 this year.

Only in two years of the last 10—from 1987 to 1988 and from 1991 to 1992—has there been no decrease in farm numbers. On the other hand, there was a sharp decline of about 5,000 farms from 1983 to 1984 and over 3,000 from 1985 to 1986, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

Nationally, there was a decline of 26,000 farms from 1992 to 1993, bringing the total number of farms in the nation down to 2,068,000. Total land in farms was 978.2 million acres—down 1.8 million acres from a year ago.

While size of farms has continued to increase as farm numbers have shrunk, the total amount of land in farms has decreased substantially. Minnesota's total farmland fell by 100,000 acres in the past year from 29.8 million in 1992 to 29.7 million in 1993.

One conclusion that can be drawn from the statistics is that as farmers choose to leave farming for retirement or other pursuits, there are no longer the number of family members willing to carry on the family farming operations. Unfortunately, in many cases that is due to the fact that it is increasingly difficult to make a family living from the farm, especially when the payments for acquisition of the farm are factored into the operating costs.

Agriculture remains the backbone of Minnesota's economy, but the backbone is weakening. One wonders how long it can continue to bear the load without breaking.

A Practical Joke

"Talking about playing even, Charley Brink takes the cake. Several days ago, Charley lost a button off his pants and secured the help of Hosey Tway to fasten a patent one on. Hosey did it in good shape, not only putting it through Charley's shirt as well. When bed time came Charley had trouble about disrobing and was compelled to call for help. He resolved to get even and likewise the next day he did it. He secured several dogs and went hunting for fleas and transferred about a dozen under Hosey's collar. Hosey hasn't had time to smile since but Charley feels better and so do the dogs."

Title of CEO at Northland C.C. now "president"

The largely misunderstood title of "Provost" in the community college system has been replaced with the title of "President".

According to a news release in The Communicator, a news letter from Chancellor Geraldine Evans of the Minnesota Community College System, for more than a decade, chief executive officers with the college system have been called provosts.

The news release states, "Over time, it has become clear that "provost" is not a generally understood title and its usage adds confusion to the role of our campus leaders." The board then approved a change so that heads of all colleges will be now known as "president".

Jim Haviland, "president" of Northland Community College in Thief River Falls, said he received notice of the change in the title last Thursday.

IN MEMORIAM

God's gates did open five years ago. With farewells left unspoken, you quietly slipped away. You suffered much in silence, and we watched in great dispair, but God has you now in his tender, loving care. Tears are shed in silence for one who meant so much to us.

NOTICE OF HEARING
BOARD OF ZONING APPEALS
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Uniform Building Code and Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code that George R. and Geraldine DuQuette, 1103 Riverdale Drive, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, have applied for Variances to the provisions governing the sidewall height and the size of private garages. The property is legally described as the East 200' of Lot 2 in Heinz Addition.

The petitioners propose to construct a 40' X 30' (1,200 sq. ft.), detached garage with 12' high sidewalls. The proposed use of the garage is for the storage of household and personal goods and recreational vehicles.

The Building Code provides that the maximum height of the sidewalls for a private garage is 9'. The Zoning Ordinance provides that the maximum size for a private garage in a residential area is under 1,000 sq. ft. in floor area. The petitioner's proposal would require approval of a 3' Variance to the sidewall regulations and a 201 sq. ft. Variance to the provisions restricting size of a private garage.

Notice is further given that the Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a Hearing on the Variance Requests at 7 p.m. (CDT) on Monday, August 16, 1993, in the City Council Chambers of the City Auditorium. All persons wishing to comment on the Variance Requests will have the option to be heard at this time. Youth Works program prepares youth for work

Various representatives in education visited Thief River Falls Tuesday to explain Youth Works legislation approved by the legislature last year. The meeting was designed to encourage participation in the Youth Apprenticeship, Youth Works and Entrepreneurship programs. Pictured from left are Karen Novak of the Greater Minnesota ECSU, Gene Kjellberg, director of Northwest ECSU, Joe Graba, executive director of the Higher Education Coordinating board, and Tom Strom of the State Department of Education.

Joe Graba, deputy executive director of the Higher Education Coordinating board, was among the presenters at an Education to Employment seminar in Thief River Falls Tuesday. Graba and several others were encouraging educators and business representatives to participate in the new Youth Apprenticeship, Youth Works and Entrepreneurship programs.

The programs, which were adopted by the legislature during the 1993 session, are geared toward preparing students for the world of work.

Graba said he really believes these programs "will change the fabric of education as we know it."

Youth Apprenticeship is a learning program for young people 16 years of age and older, that combines work-based learning with school-based learning. This learning bridges high school and post-secondary schooling and results in a certification of mastery of work skills.

Youth Works will demonstrate the connections between youth and community service, community service and education, and education and meaningful opportunities in the business community.

Minnesota Community School Based Entrepreneurship is designed to help rural and urban schools create innovative entrepreneurial education that results in school incubated enterprises. Its purpose includes stimulating small business development, creating jobs, improving schools, and encouraging vital partnerships between educational institutions and local businesses.

Graba said the legislation is an effort to expand opportunities where young people learn. It recognizes that all of the students will someday work and recognizes that learning will take place in the work place.

Graba doesn't see the legislation as a program that will get in the way of required courses or as providing a cheap source of labor. Graba said he believes it will enhance educational effort to teach reading, writing and mathematics because it requires a practical application of the skills they learn in the school.

Graba explained that Minnesota leads the nation on the number of youth employed in the workforce with 69.3 per cent of Minnesota teenagers working an average of 24 hours a week. This program recognizes the trend and requires that students, educators and business leaders work together to enhance the education of the student. Graba noted that for years students have been working while attending school, but many have not learned the kind of skills that will prepare them for any type of job after they graduate from school other than for a minimum wage service type occupation.

The meeting held in Thief River Falls Tuesday was one of 11 being held across the state. The purpose of the meetings is to provide information about the program and encourage educators and business leaders to participate in program demonstrations. Along with the legislation, the legislature provided funds for program demonstrations.

Many questions, such as how to administer the program, who will oversee implementation of the program at local levels, and many other questions remain to be answered. One way of answering these questions is to provide funds to local agencies to develop unique programs based on the criteria already established. Graba said $1 million was made available for demonstration grants on the youth apprenticeship program, and $4 million for community based learning activities. Overall program guidelines and development will be based on the success and failures of these individual programs.

Owners vote Thursday on Hartz Foods future

Store owners who are shareholders in Hartz Foods wholesale distributing company in Thief River Falls are expected to vote Thursday morning on the future of the cooperative.

The shareholders have reportedly been notified by letter of a meeting in Thief River Falls Thursday morning at which a vote will be taken on whether the cooperative will attempt to continue in operation or cease operations and liquidate its assets.

Employees of Hartz Foods were informed of the situation at three separate meetings Monday by Norm Feske, who was hired as president of the company late last year. He reportedly told employees that Hartz Foods had lost about half a million dollars on the current year's operations and that the board had voted for liquidation.

As of Monday morning, employees reportedly were informed, the cooperative had ceased ordering merchandise and buyers had been instructed to cancel orders for merchandise not already shipped. Employees were advised that the chances for survival of Hartz Foods are slim and to be prepared for the company to close its doors as early as this Friday.

Employees were informed that in the event of closing the cooperative would be first responsible for any pending litigation, then employee benefits including pension fund, then outstanding debts to suppliers and finally the accumulated shares of owner members.

Repeated efforts by The Times to contact Hartz Foods officers have been unsuccessful. It is believed that Feske has submitted his resignation as president and CEO of the company and that Dave Johnson will also be leaving the office of vice president soon. Neither of those reported resignations has been confirmed.

Organized by L. B. Hartz as L. B. Hartz Wholesale more than 70 years ago, the food distributor serves many retail grocery stores primarily in Minnesota and North Dakota. It was purchased by its member stores some years ago and has been operated as a cooperative since that time. It is believed to have about 85 full-time local employees at the present time and to serve approximately 160 stores. Its sales volume is said to have declined by about $15 million from a peak several years ago to about $42 million last year.

TRF Stampede expected to surpass major debut

Total prize money of $43,000 will make local rodeo the weekend's richest

It is the richest rodeo in a three-state area on Labor Day weekend and the second annual Thief River Falls Stampede will have more money, tougher livestock, some of the best professional cowboys and cowgirls and no rain-spoiled performances. Everything will be conducted inside the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center on the Pennington county fairgrounds.

Rodeo performances are scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, September 3 and 4, and 2 p.m. on Sunday, September 5. Members of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) will be competing for a share of the $43,000 total purse— enough money to put or keep the top competitors in the chase to qualify for the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas, NV.

Last year the first Thief River Falls Stampede was recognized as the Best New Rodeo in the Great Lakes Circuit which includes nine Midwestern states and features nearly 100 rodeos each year. The award did not surprise Randy and Denese Jokela of Jokela ProWest Productions in Park Rapids, promoters of the Stampede.

Thirteen of the participants at the first TRF Stampede qualified for the National Finals Rodeo—a 10-day event which is the World Series of professional rodeo. Eight of the top 15 PRCA bareback bronc riders rode here, including 1992 world champion Wayne Herman of Dickinson, ND (who was featured in a Thief River Falls Times interview feature) and five-time world champion Bruce Ford of Kersey, CO. Also participating was 1990 world champion calf roper Troy Pruitt of Minatare, NE.

David Bailey Jr. of Tahlequah, OK, former bull riding Rookie of the Year, won the bull riding at the TRF Stampede and claimed $3,500 in prize money—enough to vault him into the top 15 bull riders in the country and a trip to the National Finals. Bailey is injured and will not be able to ride at the second annual Stampede.

"Because the reward for winning at Thief River Falls is the best of 34 other rodeos featured that weekend, a record number of entries is expected to compete in the six events," Randy Jokela said. The events are bareback bronc riding, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, bull riding and cowgirls barrel racing.

An extra touch of glamour will be added to the TRF Stampede this year with the participation of Miss Rodeo America, Sheri Hannigan of Gilroy, CA. She received her national title the first Saturday night of the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas after a week of intense competition among 27 finalists. Watch for a Times interview feature with Sheri in a forthcoming issue prior to the TRF Stampede.

Another attraction for the cowboys in addition to the prize money will be the quality of the livestock provided by David Bailey Rodeo Company of Tahlequah, OK and Dakota West Rodeos of Fort Collins, CO. Dakota West leases stock to the PRCA's top contractors and owner Don Hight is proud of the animals he provides. "When you've got something good you can throw out your chest," he says.

At the 1992 National Finals the Bailey Rodeo Company provided a saddle bronc named "Skoal Mr.T," a bareback bronc named "Skoal Cody Bill" and six bulls named "Playboy Skoal," "King Kong," "Gunslinger," Copenhagen Chainsaw," "Alligator" and "Wild Red Man."

Wayne Wise of Loveland, CO, will be the announcer for all three days of the rodeo.

Other rodeo events will be rodeo bullfighting, clowns, free pony rides, mutton bustin' (sheep riding), calf scramble and wild saddle cow race. Special events during the weekend will be rodeo dances each evening, team penning competition, a parade Saturday afternoon and the

Jan Peterson new national WELCA head

Jan Peterson of Thief River Falls was installed Tuesday, August 10, as president of the Women of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (WELCA). She will serve a three-year term ending in 1996.

Installation Tuesday follows her election earlier at the second triennial convention of the organization in Washington, DC. She had previously served as a national representative on the 21-member board.

"I stand in awe with fear and trembling," Peterson said. "I also know that when the Lord calls he also gives wisdom and strength. I look forward to the next three years."

"This organization exists for the woman in the pew," Peterson said in an interview. "We need women throughout the church to feel a part.

Application for $1.4 million grant gets pubic hearing

Thief River Falls city council held a public hearing Monday night on an application for a $1.4 million Small Cities Development Program block grant that will provide funds for rehabilitation of the central business district commercial property and residential rental property near the downtown area. Five other people other than city council members, city staff and news media, showed up for the hearing.

At the outset of the hearing, Mayor Bob Reeve explained that the city had been talking about improvements to the infrastructure in the downtown business district for years. The proposed project however, has been pushed back a number of times. Now it is scheduled for 1994. When discussing "infrastructure", he explained that includes streets, and utilities under the streets. The project would be very similar to the Highway 32 project completed in the summer of 1992.

Don Stewart, community development director, estimated the project cost at around $1 million. He further estimated that 90 per cent of the cost could be covered by Minnesota State Aid and Utilities reserves. Another 10 per cent would be covered by special assessments to property owners. No general funds would be used.

The hearing Monday evening was for another project that would involve the revitalization or rehabilitation of commercial and residential/rental property in or near the downtown business district.

Minnesota bull rider is having his best year

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Ted Slathar of Jordan has a Bachelor of Science degree in business that he expects to use some day. Lately he has been a little too busy—trying to turn eight-second rides on bucking bulls into a full-time occupation.

So far this is his best of four years as a Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) bull rider. He is leading the nine-state Great Lakes Circuit of the PRCA in total points—although he doesn't know exactly what the point total is at this time—and he ranks somewhere in the top 50 PRCA bull riders in the country.

"I let other folks add up the numbers," the soft-spoken Slathar told The Times in a telephone interview Tuesday morning. "I'm kept pretty busy just trying to get from place to place and staying on bulls."

So far this season Slathar has been to about 50 rodeos with at least that many to go before the season ends. He usually rides in 100 to 120 rodeos a season—with 120 the maximum allowed by the

Cultural Fest final plans are taking shape

Final plans for the first All Nations Cultural Festival Friday through Sunday, August 20-22 at Island Park in St. Hilaire are taking shape, according to Ed Leeper of Thief River Falls, organizer of the event.

Leeper said that the nine member Steinbach-Musikanten from Germany (seven musicians, an escort and an interpreter) and the four-member Nygamle Tider group from Norway will be guests in homes throughout the area during their stay to perform at the festival. The German group will arrive by bus Thursday, August 19, and be met by their host families at the Best Western parking lot. Arrival time for the Norwegian group has not yet been arranged.

Host families include Mr. and Mrs. Bob Miller, Deejay and Cay Donlin, Gordon and Jan Peterson, Harley and Faye Suko, Valerie Heffner, Phil and Eunice Novak, Larry and Faith Rud, "Bump" Erickson, Leonard and Sylvia Rondorf and Harlow and Gloria Johnson.

Leeper said he was surprised by the number of families that volunteered to be hosts to the visiting entertainers. He had expected the German group to be larger, he said, and as a result had more volunteer families than he needed.

The third performing group is the Fialka Ukrainian Dance Ensemble from Selkirk, Man., Canada—a 20-member group which will perform Saturday and Sunday only, August 21 and 22 and camp at the park.

Leeper said the city of St. Hilaire purchased showers and flush toilets from "Tube The Red" and done the necessary work to install them at the park. He said he expected an overflow of campers for the event and that arrangements had been made to aerial spray the park area for mosquito control.

Additional arts and crafts exhibitors have registered to participate in the past few days and arrangements have been made to have 40x180 feet of tent space in addition to a hospitality tent, emergency medical tent and a 16x16 tent for the children's programs.

"We could use a few more animals for the petting zoo," he said. Anyone who has animals available is invited to call Leeper at 681-1973.

VA reports insurance scam

The VA Regional Office and Insurance Center in Philadelphia reports that veterans and active duty personnel throughout the country have received insurance hoax flyers.

The flyers, which include return forms, claim to be from groups or individuals offering veterans assistance in applying for the dividends or in answering questions they may have for fees ranging from $2 to $15 for each request.

The phony applications and flyers claim the dividends have been recently authorized by Congress. No legislation has been approved or proposed by Congress.

VA's legitimate insurance dividends are paid annually to current policy holders, usually on the anniversary date of the policy. About 3.5 million veterans share in an annual dividend distribution. Payments are automatic to those who continue to pay premiums and no application is needed.

Minnesota veterans with questions on their VA insurance benefits can call the St. Paul VA Regional Office and Insurance Center toll-free at 1-800-827-1000.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . Little League Baseball

I spent a lot of time the last month or two watching little league baseball. My seven-year-old grandson played on one of the teams this year and I went to watch him play, like a good grandma should.

I found out that those little fellows (and gals) are real gentlemen (and ladies). (Yes, there are several girls playing baseball too, and they do a great job.) They know how to be good sportsmen and women, no matter what happens on the field.

I never heard a cross word or, for that matter, the "boo" word once at all the games I attended. There was never any griping or grumbling about who was at bat or who was playing what position.

The boys and girls were polite and courteous to their teammates, despite the mistakes that were sometimes made, and they were also polite and courteous to the boys and girls on the other teams, even if they were getting their pants beaten off.

All the boys and girls I saw played the game with gusto. They were always smiling and happy to be there and never grumpy or crabby.

When one or another little fellow got hurt, everyone on both teams was concerned about him (or her).

Those kids just enjoyed being there playing ball together. I'm sure that half the time they didn't even know, or care, what the score was or whether they were winning or losing.

I just hope to see them display the same enthusiasm and good sportsmanship in future years.

While I am at it, those coaches certainly deserve a hand. They have their work cut out for them. They seem to enjoy the game and the children and they must have done a very good job at teaching the boys and girls the game, because all of the teams had improved their performances greatly by the time the playoffs came around.

It takes someone pretty special to work with those little tykes and keep them in line while teaching them a thing or two.

However, I think there just might be one little problem with little league baseball. No, it is not the players. No, it is not the coaches. It is the parents and the siblings.

Just imagine, poor little Johnny or Jane, standing on first base, wondering when to run for second. All of a sudden Johnny or Jane hears that commanding voice of Mom or Dad (or big brother or big sister), yelling, "Run, run?"

What to do? Run, of course. After all, it is the voice that must be obeyed. Never mind what the coach is saying over there. The first instinct is to obey THAT VOICE.

I couldn't help but wonder if, at the very first baseball meeting, the coaches instruct the children that when they are on the field, they should only listen to the coach and not mother or dad or brother or sister. At home they listen to mother and dad and sometimes brother or sister; on the baseball field they listen to the coach. It might be a good thing to do.

I had an interesting idea as I watched the boys and girls play and listened to the parents in the bleachers. I wonder what would happen if the children and the parents changed places.

Wouldn't it be fun if Mom and Dad were out there playing baseball and the Little League players were sitting on the sidelines? Then the players could holler and yell at their parents, and tell them when to run and when to stay on base, and how to hit the ball and how hard to hit it, and when and where to throw it.

Yes, I think that might be a good idea. For one game each season, Mom and Dad can don the little shirts and hats and go out there and play their hearts out while the boys and girls sit in the bleachers and watch. It might be fun. I wonder if the moms and dads would display the same good sportsmanship that I saw in the Little Leaguers.

Estimated tax installments due

The third installment for people who make estimated tax payments is due Wednesday, September 15.

The payment should be sent to the IRS along with the third quarter payment voucher from Form 1040ES, Estimated Tax for Individuals.

To be sure that the payment is properly credited to the right account, the IRS asks people to write their social security number and the words, "1993 Form 1040ES" on their checks.

If people expect to owe $500 or more in federal tax at the end of the year, they probably should make quarterly estimated tax payments, according to the IRS.

Although retirees and business people are most often affected by this requirement, it can potentially apply to anyone who receives income not subject to withholding, such as unemployment benefits, capital gains, interest, dividends and rental income.

If people are not sure how much they'll make this year, the IRS said they can usually base their quarterly payments on 1992's total tax.

Under this method, each quarterly payment must be at least one-fourth of the total tax shown on the 1992 return. This method can no longer be used by a higher income person whose income is rising rapidly. People probably affected, according to the IRS, have a 1993 income which exceeds $75,000 and is up more than $40,000 over 1992.

IRS Publication 505 has more information on estimated tax. For a free copy of this booklet or the 1040ES form, call toll-free 1-800-TAX-FORM (829-3676).

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

During these past few days I have been reminded of time. I've been reminded of time gone by, and time present, as well as time not to be forgotten.

I did my yearly time of sitting by a lake and listening to the sounds of the water. The waves, never ceasing, on the stormy day we descended for a bit of rest and relaxation on an area lake reminded me of my youth. I spent many enjoyable hours during my growing up years in Muskegon, Michigan, on the shore of Lake Michigan. The lakes near here are not like Lake Michigan. The lakes around here are smaller. Because of their smaller size, there are times when they are calm and lack the constant wave motion of a large lake. Our day at the lake was stormy. The white caps were on the lake as we arrived. Those of our group anticipating a quiet swim or canoe ride would be disappointed. I, on the other hand loved the sight of the whitecaps on the waves. It let me be reminded of those larger waves of my youth on the shores of Lake Michigan.

Those large waves would sweep across the breakwater, trailing white foam as they traveled the length and also the width of the breakwater. One did not walk the breakwater during serious storms because of the wave action. Sitting on the shore this past weekend, looking at the whitecaps, reminded me of the times in my youth when our family would get in the car and drive to Lake Michigan simply to watch the waves. We parked a safe distance from the shore and simply sat in our car and watched the gorgeous show of strength nature's waves produced for us. We knew the waves were dangerous. We had seen ocean going ships hung up on the breakwater because of the waves of past storms. We marveled at the beauty and the sheer power of the waves. The awe all of our family felt, old and young alike, is a time given to all of us by the waves. It is a time gone by to remember fondly.

I have also been thinking about time present these days. We are generating memories for ourselves and for others each day. We have been privileged to have my husband's brother and his family visiting us for a few days. As the adults and children interrelate during these days together, we are taking the time to generate memories that will someday be those memories of time gone by. As we talk with one another and listen to one another and laugh with each other, we create memories. I think of the memories of the waves of my youth and remember the times my family spent watching those waves, and I hope that just a few of the simply family-type things we families of the next generation do together will live in all of our memories. We need to stay connected with each other through times spent together, no matter how simply the times to create those long-term memories. Time present becomes time gone by in our memories.

Time is the most precious commodity we each own. We were reminded of its frailty a couple of days ago as we had a call from my parents detailing an accident which they had been involved in which nearly took them from us. Time stood still for me as they spoke of how the miraculous was a part of their survival. How quickly time can be eliminated for any of us. Time cannot be a forgotten commodity of our lives. We all are given a piece of time to call our own. Sometimes we marvel at the miraculous as we are given time again. We cannot forget time and that it is given to us.

This time we are given we need to treat respectfully. It is ours to enjoy. It is our to live. It is ours to work. It is ours to teach. It is ours to create. It is ours to marvel. It is ours but for a time. In the time we are given, we need to live in the present so that in the future, our memories of times gone by will be such that we can fondly remember and in the remembering, create a time of wonder.

After successfully completing his eight-second qualifying ride, Ted Slathar of Jordan takes advantage of his mount's momentary attention to the bullfighter and voluntarily dismounts. One of the tough parts of bull riding is that even if you stay on for the qualifying time, you still have to find a way to get off—with or without the bull's help! In this ride at Park Rapids over the Fourth of July weekend, Slathar landed on his feet and sailed his hat into the air in celebration. He plans to ride at the TRF Stampede on Labor Day weekend.

PRCA for points accumulation.

At the Headwaters of the Mississippi Rodeo in Park Rapids where we first talked to him, Slathar drew a bull named "Paleface" in the Sunday afternoon go-round. His ride was good for fourth place overall in the four-day event and added $700 to his prize winnings.

Knowing he had a good scoring ride, Ted took advantage of the bull's attention being diverted by the bullfighter, dismounted voluntarily to land on his feet and sailed his white straw hat 20 feet in the air in celebration. Two years ago he won first in the bull riding at Park Rapids on the same bull.

It doesn't always go that well. In Thief River Falls last year Ted was among the many who couldn't qualify as the tough David Bailey Rodeo Company stock allowed only one full eight-second ride in three days. In South Carolina last winter he broke several ribs. At the recent Cheyenne Frontier Days rodeo in Wyoming— the third richest rodeo in the nation—Slathar rode his first bull but was disqualified for touching the animal with his free hand. At Golden, CO, a few days later he made a qualifying ride for fifth place but tore a groin muscle.

"I've been laid up for about a week with that." Ted said in the phone interview Tuesday morning, "but I'm leaving tomorrow morning for Sikeston, MO, to ride in the Jaycees rodeo there. I drew a pretty good bull and there are too many other riders nippin' at my heels to stay out any longer."

Ted says he will probably ride in about five rodeos over the Labor Day weekend but definitely plans to be at the TRF Stampede again.

"We won't get our draw 'til a week before the rodeo," he said, "but I know Bailey always has good bulls and I'll sure be there. With the amount of prize money on the line up there this year there should be a good string of cowhands coming to try and take some of it home."

Unlikely as it may seem for a Minnesotan to be riding bulls for a living, Slathar isn't really all that unique. At Park Rapids the Minnesota riders included Avery Bush of Montevideo, Tim Weyh of Eagan, Doug Bergendahl of Windom and others in addition to Slathar.

Ted was the Minnesota state high school rodeo bull riding champion in 1982 and qualified for the college national finals in 1988 as a student at the University of Wisconsin—River Falls. He did move to Texas for a while but has been living at Jordan more recently.

In his fourth year of professional rodeo competition, he finds things easier this year by having a sponsor—Dew Anns Too located in the Mall of America in Bloomington. While riding always gives him a workout, he does try to work out on weights two to three times a week when he can find the time.

His philosophy of bull riding success is simple: Ride as many as you can as well as you can for as long as you can.

Local rodeo fans should look forward to his attempt to live out that philosophy at the Thief River Falls Stampede.

Anderson won't seek reelection to school board

Two positions on the School District 564 board of education will be open when filings for the office open August 24 and continue open through Tuesday, September 7, at 5 p.m.

Maryel Anderson, who has served nine years on the board and was its chairperson in 1990 and 1991, told The Times Monday that she will not seek reelection when her third term expires this year. In the three elections in which she did seek office she was the leading vote-getter among all candidates.

Harry Sjulson of St. Hilaire, a 27-year veteran of local school board service in the former St. Hilaire district and on the School District 564 board, had indicated last week that he would not be a candidate for reelection.

Anderson and Sjulson are the two board members whose terms expire this year. The School District 564 election will be held in conjunction with the general election on Tuesday, November 2.

Stewart displayed a map of the area defined as the Target area. Anyone interested in finding out whether their commercial or residential/rental property falls within the target area is encouraged to contact Stewart at 681-2500. Basically, however, the area is bounded on the north by Sixth street, Arnold Avenue on the west, the railroad tracks near Davis on the east, and except for the old School District Service Center, which is included, Zeh Avenue on the south.

One of the first tasks in the process of applying for a grant was to find out what the needs are for the area. Stewart said he sent out 3,200 surveys and over 800 were returned. A 25 per cent return is considered excellent. Stewart presented a needs assessment evaluation Monday evening, but explained he still has to complete his review of the survey. "It really is amazing to see how much time people put into the questionnaire," he said.

A fair amount of weight is given to the survey, said Joan Abercrombie of the Northwest Regional Development Commission, who is preparing the grant application. The application is due September 1, and will be evaluated in February. It is a competitive process so Thief River Falls will be in competition with all others applying for the grant funds. In the past, one out of three projects have been funded. One of the three main objectives of the Small Cities Program is to primarily provide some benefit to low to moderate income residents. That's why the question about income was on the survey.

The survey shows that property owners with low to moderate income ranked commercial rehabilitation and rental rehabilitation fourth among all other projects. Among all citizens in the target area, commercial rehabilitation and rental rehabilitation were ranked six and tenth respectively.

Don Stewart said he couldn't even begin to be able to explain many of the results, especially the top ranking in the needs assessment of water treatment, especially since the city is about to complete a $6.7 million improvement to the plant. He did offer that the treatment process wasn't exactly on line yet. A railroad overpass or under pass also ranked high on the list, possibly because of all of the traffic delays caused by trains passing through the community.

Abercrombie said she was real pleased with how the responses fell in to place. All items listed above commercial and rental rehabilitation are currently being addressed by the city and several perceived needs below commercial and rental rehabilitation, such as student housing, would be improved by completing commercial and rental rehabilitation.

Stewart said the city has been soliciting letters of intent to participate in the program from property owners in the target area. So far, the city has received over $800,000 in requests. He added that owners of four large buildings in the downtown area have not yet sent letters of intent. Of the letters of intent to participate, 60 apartment units were identified. Most of the letters of intent have been from owners of commercial property. Stewart said he would like to see the ratio for rental property a little higher, but according to grant use regulations, the applicant can switch financial assistance from commercial property to residential/rental, but not residential/rental to commercial property.

It is extremely important that everyone interested in participating in the program state so now, said Abercrombie.

If the grant to the city is approved, property owners who send in successful applications will receive a grant that covers 50 per cent of the cost. Another 25 per cent would be a loan, which would be at 3 per cent for 10 years, and another 25 per cent would have to be private financing.

Another bonus of the grant to the city involves the loans to property owners. The property owner pays the loan back to the city, not the state. The funds can then be targeted for other rehabilitation or revitalization projects.

Demo Derby rescheduled September 4

Postponed due to wet grounds at the Pennington County Fair July 25, the annual Thief River Falls Jaycees Demolition Derby has been rescheduled for Saturday, July 25, at 2:30 p.m.

We are interdependent. Each woman of the ELCA is out there doing mission and ministry. The role of the churchwide organization is to support them with resources, programs and training."

Peterson called leadership training and improved communication critical to the future of the organization. One of her first tasks will be to prepare her remarks for the ELCA Churchwide Assembly in Kansas City August 25 through September 1. She will bring a greeting on behalf of Women of the ELCA.

Peterson was elected on the fourth ballot with 273 votes out of 496 cast. Merle Freije, Mayville, ND, received 223 votes on the final ballot. Receiving votes on the third ballot were Jannene Sass, Geneva, NE, Faith Ashton, Chapel Hill, NC, and Mona Laughlin, Lancaster, Ohio.

Jan is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls. She has been a member of the Women of the ELCA executive board since 1990. She is the former president of the Northwestern Minnesota Synodical Women's Organization. In her congregational Women of the ELCA unit, Peterson has been a speaker, singer and retreat leader and has taught Bible studies. She has been an advisor to the ELCA Northwestern Minnesota Synod Council and has been active in Lutheran Social Services, World Day of Prayer and Christian Women's Club activities. She has worked in parish and administration positions at Dawson, MN, at Augustana Academy, Canton, SD, Sioux Valley Hospital, Sioux Falls, SD; and at St. Mary's Hospital in Minneapolis.

She grew up in Moorhead, MN. She graduated in 1962 from the Lutheran Bible Institute in Minneapolis with training in parish work. Janet and Gordon Peterson were married in 1968. They have lived in Thief River Falls for 20 years. Gordon Peterson owns the Green's Funeral Home. Jan and Gordon are the parents of two daughters, Hillary Teie, Thief River Falls, and Kim Huson, Prescott, AZ, and three grandchildren, Cassandra, 4, Haley, 2, and Cody, nine months. Janet Peterson is the daughter of Juliet and the late Gordon Stenerson of Moorhead.

The convention was expected to draw more than 4,000 women, including 505 delegates from nearly every congregation in the ELCA. Candidates for president and vice president were nominated at the convention and elected by the delegates.

River basin tour held

More than thirty representatives of state and federal agencies participated in an extensive three-day tour of Red River Basin flood control projects on July 27 to 29.

The tour was planned to provide key agency staffers with a first-hand look at examples of projects that will be included in the environmental assessment. The assessment was recently ordered by Colonel Richard Craig, District Engineer of the St. Paul office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The comprehensive study will evaluate the cumulative effects of Basin flood control projects, including those existing and those proposed to be built. It is being conducted to meet the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act.

Agencies represented on the tour included: U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (COE), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR), Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, and the individual watershed districts that belong to the RRWMB.

County Commissioners, agricultural association officers and technical consultants assisting in the assessment process also joined the tour group as it traveled around the region.

The bus tour began at Detroit Lakes and included viewing more than forty project sites throughout the Red River Valley. A wide range of project types were included, from culverts, ditch and channel improvements to gated and ungated water storage, dams and reservoirs.

Overnight stops were made in Bemidji and Grand Forks with informational stops at the Red Lake Fishery at the Red Lake Indian Reservation and at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge in eastern Marshall county.

A number of projects on the tour were cooperative efforts of the RRWMB or individual watershed agencies and other state or federal agencies. Several were multipurpose projects to provide wildlife benefits or restore or expand wetland habitat as well as to provide flood control storage or retention.

According to the Red River Watershed Management Board, most of the individuals who participated in the tour will take a hands-on role in the upcoming environmental study. A steering committee, co-chaired by the COE and the DNR will manage the process.

The committee will oversee the efforts of a task force and work groups which will write specific sections of the NEPA document. Public meetings will be held as a part of the environmental assessment.

MDA gives sustainable ag grants

The Minnesota Department of Agriculture is granting up to $10,000 for sustainable agriculture practices.

The projects eligible for funding are those that benefit the environment and increase net farm profits, including those that demonstrate alternatives to agri-chemical inputs, utilize renewable resources and diversify farm operations. The projects must be conducted on farms and are funded for three years.

Farmers have received grants on a variety of projects, including composting manures, a pasturing system with hogs, and an intensive rotational grazing system.

Applications for the grants are available form the Minnesota Department of Agriculture. One page preproposals will be accepted through September 24.

Energy and Sustainable Agriculture Program staff will provide feedback to applicants to develop full proposals, which are due on November 18.

An independent panel of farmers and agricultural specialists will review all applications.

For more information contact the ESAP, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 90 W. Plato Blvd., St. Paul 55107, (612) 296-7673.

USDA to conduct mail referendum

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) will conduct a mail referendum August 5 to 16 to determine whether dairy producers favor continuing the national dairy promotion and research order.

Ballots for the referendum will be made available by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service.

For the program to continue, USDA officials say a simple majority of those voting must favor it.

All dairy producers who were engaged in the production of milk for commercial use during April 1993 will be eligible to vote in the August referendum. Only one vote is permitted for each dairy farm business unit, and cooperative associations may vote on behalf of its producer members.

A producer who opposes the cooperative's vote may cast an individual ballot with the member's differing vote.

Dairy producers may request ballots and other referendum materials from the ASCS office during regular business hours.

Producers who have questions should call the toll free number (1-800-858-7501) shown on the reverse side of the official ballot.

USDA received petitions with over 16,000 signatures requesting a referendum on the continuation of the national dairy promotion program.

ACTIVITIES

Washing Doll Clothes

Children like to imitate the activities of adults. They enjoy pretending and copying the activities of those who are around them. Let the kids wash clothes (doll clothes) and hang them up to dry. Provide them with a basin of water, the doll clothes and a clothes line that is strung low enough that the child can actually reach it, and clothes pins.

Go outside and let your children wash clothes, hang them up and let them dry. They will have fun and learn a little bit about evaporation, too.

Conflict and Anger

Both conflict and anger are inevitable in family life. A family is, among other things, a collection of individuals - each unique - whose ideas and behaviors will be slightly or greatly different from one another. Even your young child has his own unique personality. Therefore conflict will be part of every family. Our task is to learn how to deal with it and to teach our children how to deal with it. Unfortunately many of us have a tendency to try to avoid conflict. Family conflict seems to give us all a case of fear, rather than realistically looking at what might happen. Relationships are more resilient than we often give them credit for.

In reality, careful confrontation is far more respectful than avoidance of conflict. It is more respectful to share opinions and feelings than to hide them. Studies of strong families show that openness in communication is an important factor. Keeping family members informed and up-to-date includes the sharing of irritations, differences and anger. In a word, conflict is part of healthy communication.

This does not mean that we allow family members to be disrespectful to one another. It does mean, however, that we have to learn how to share irritations, differences and anger without being disrespectful. And that may be easier said than done! The key to this is in the phrase "careful" or "caring" confrontation. It is an attitude recommended for all families.

More on "careful confrontation" next week.

Blues come back in loser's bracket...

Moorhead rebounds to win Legion crown

It was a one-year championship reign for Thief River Falls in Ninth District Division I American Legion baseball. Featuring many of the players who won the title in 1992, Post 117 carried the role of favorite into the 1993 tournament at Stauss Park in East Grand Forks. The defending champions handled Perham 8-0 Thursday to start the eight-team, double-elimination event, and came from behind to beat Roseau 9-6 Friday before losing to Fergus Falls 8-4 Saturday and then falling to Moorhead 7-2 Sunday.

Results left the 31-10 Thief River Falls team on the sidelines as Moorhead and Fergus Falls played for the title and a trip to the state tournament.

"It's a lot tougher to repeat than it is to win the first one," offered Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager after the season-ending loss to the Blues. "You've got to have that little extra drive to win something like this. Maybe you're a little more hungry for the first one. Thirty-one and ten is a heckuva year, and I'll take it. The kids played hard all year long and I'm really proud of them. But we just weren't real sharp, for some reason, this weekend."

Moorhead rebounded from a 2-1 first-round loss to Moorhead with six straight wins for the district title – the Blues' 27th overall, third in the past four years and sixth and the last eight years. The 7-2 Moorhead win over Thief River Falls was followed by a 5-4 Sunday victory against

■ Fergus Falls tops Thief River Falls Legion 8-4

A seven-run second inning, combined with one-hit pitching by Jay Herman, carried Fergus Falls past Thief River Falls 8-4 Saturday in a game matching the final two unbeaten teams at the double-elimination Ninth District Division I American Legion baseball tournament in East Grand Forks.

The contest matched the two teams owning No. 1 seeds coming into the tournament – Thief River Falls in the four-team north grouping and Fergus Falls in the south. It was decided quickly as the winners sent 11 batters to the plate in the second inning, collecting six hits, a walk and an error to wipe out a brief 1-0 deficit.

"They hit the ball – they hit the ball real hard," said Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "We had a little trouble getting the ball over the plate, and when we did find the strike zone, they hit it."

Only surprise after the Fergus Falls outburst was the fact Thief River Falls even got on the scoreboard since the only hit by Post 117 was a third inning double by Marc Haugen. That hit, along with four walks and two Fergus Falls errors led to the Thief River Falls runs. Herman struck out five.

"He (Herman) threw real well," mentioned Dalager. "He had a real nice curve ball ball; you could almost see it biting. We couldn't hit it."

The 1-0 Thief River Falls lead in the top of the second began with a lead-off walk issued to Carter Rogalla, a stolen base, sacrifice bunt by Rick Ostby and a throwing error on a dropped strike-out pitch.

Fergus Falls' game-winning second inning began with a single by Bill MacFarlane, a throwing error on a potential double play ball and a bunt single by Chad Daniels that hugged the third base line to load the bases. No. 9 hitter Fritz Skinner singled up the middle for two runs, Brady Fredrickson singled to reload the bases, Tony Wachlarowicz walked to force in a run and Scott DeBrito drilled a triple to the right field fence.

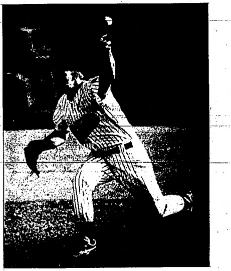
That ended the pitching of Thief River Falls starter Jeremy Olson. Brian Minks gave up an RBI single to Jerrod Heacox, but turned in four solid innings of relief before leaving after lead-off single by Wachlarowicz in the sixth.

Eric Bjorgaard finished it, giving up an RBI ground-rule double to Ryan Olson to complete the scoring.

Thief River Falls picked up two runs in the third when Joby Looker walked and Haugen sent his double into left-center. David Blazek and Jason Svir brought the runs home with consecutive infield ground-outs.

Final Thief River Falls run came in the sixth on a lead-off walk for Svir, a stolen base, throwing error and a pop foul that wound up as a sacrifice fly for Ostby.

Olson, Minks and Bjorgaard combined on four walks and three strike-outs.



Brian Minks came up with four solid innings of relief pitching Saturday, but it wasn't enough to prevent an 8-4 Thief River Falls loss to Fergus Falls in Ninth District Division I American Legion baseball tournament action at Stauss Park in East Grand Forks.

TRF rally beats Roseau 9-6

Roseau stunned Moorhead 2-1 in first-round Ninth District Division I American Legion baseball tournament play Thursday and appeared headed for another head-turning upset Friday night before Thief River Falls scored five times in the top of the sixth to win a 9-6 shootout – overcoming a 6-3 deficit in the process.

The winners grabbed a quick 3-0 first inning lead on a walk to Marc Haugen, an error on a ball hit by David Blazek, a triple to the right field fence by Carter Rogalla and an infield single off the glove of pitcher Josh Stromlund by Nathan Knutson.

A mis-played two-out fly ball in the outfield, followed by a bloop single into short center field by Stromlund put Roseau on the scoreboard in the bottom of the first.

Roseau put some real scare into Thief River Falls in the second when four hits, an error and a walk produced five runs and the 6-3 lead.

The bottom of the order sparked the Roseau outburst as Corry Lund beat out an infield single, Jon Vacura reached base on an error, Andy Jensen put down a bunt that stayed just inside the third base line and No. 9 hitter Brent Eaton brought them all home by drilling a double into the right-center field gap. Aaron Stromlund walked and Bob Mosher belted a two-run double to center before Thief River Falls starting pitcher Carter Rogalla was able to get out of the inning.

Eric Bjorgaard came on to start the third, and turned in three strong innings of middle relief in his Legion pitching debut to keep Post 117 in the game. Bjorgaard served up a double to Lund, the first batter he faced, but then gave up only a fifth inning walk the rest of his stint.

"Bjorgaard came in and did a nice job," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "He threw well."

David Blazek got one run back for the winners when he bounced a solo home run off the top of the right field fence in the third inning, but Thief River Falls didn't overtake Roseau until the sixth when four hits, an error and a walk made it 9-6.

A hard-hit double to left-center by Knutson began the big inning. A bad-bounce single by Bjorgaard brought Knutson home. Robert Nelson walked and Joby Looker pushed a perfect two-strike bunt toward third to load the bases.

"Knutson's double gave us the spark we needed, and Joby's bunt was a big, big play," pointed out Dalager. "He (Looker) has bunted in those situations a couple of times this year. He laid down a perfect one."

A hard-hit grounder off the bat of Haugen went off the arm of Jensen at third for a two-run error, a wild pitch scored Looker and Haugen easily beat the throw to the plate on a fielder's choice ball hit by Blazek to finish it.

There was no more scoring; but Haugen had to play the role of stopper in seventh inning relief of Jeremy Olson, who put Roseau away in the sixth and had two outs in the seventh before he walked the bases loaded. Haugen got the final out on a ball hit back to the mound.

Bjorgaard got the win, with the three Thief River Falls pitchers combining on seven walks and five strike-outs. Josh Stromlund went the distance for Roseau, walking five while striking out 11.

"Give Stromlund credit," said Dalager. "He did a heckuva job. He shut our big hitters down. But give out kids credit, too, for coming back like they did."

Roseau went winless in five starts against Thief River Falls this summer.

Border waters issues addressed

Lake of the Woods International Fisheries Task Force has offered a report containing proposed solutions to resolve a long-standing fishery dispute between Ontario and Minnesota anglers on Lake of the Woods and the Rainy River.

"As a result of four task group meetings held over the past three months, agreement in principle has been reached to resolve the fisheries issues," said Gord Pyzer, Kenora District manger for the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources.

Jack Skrypek, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Section of Fisheries chief, said, "This agreement will form recommendations to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources."

Task force recommendations are available for public review, DNR Commissioner Rod Sando said. "Based on this review and further discussions, the agencies will determine what changes in regulations will be proposed for implementation."

Highlights of the agreement for Lake of the Woods and Rainy River are as follows:

■ Ontario will rescind the Daily Angling Validation Tag effective Jan 1, 1994.

■ Ontario will allocate and permit Minnesota-based anglers to take 8,000 pounds of walleye annually from Ontario waters of Lake of the Woods, subject to conservation of Umpire Gary Bartelson pointed to the ground in explaining his side of a Sunday afternoon argument with Thief River Falls American Legion baseball coach Howard Dalager (11), pitcher Rick Ostby (16) and catcher Jason Svir. Thief River Falls claimed a bunt that came off the ground in front of the plate hit the Moorhead player after he left the batter's box – an out. The umpire said the ball hit the batter while still in the box – a foul ball. The umpire won the debate and Moorhead won the Ninth District Division I tournament match-up 7-2.

Blues end TRF season, 7-2

Solid play on defense was credited for winning a number of games for the Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team this summer. But Sunday the defense bore the brunt of the responsibility as Post 117 dropped a season-ending 7-2 game to Moorhead in the loser's bracket of the double-elimination Ninth District Division I tournament at East Grand Forks.

Five Thief River Falls errors opened the door for the Moorhead offense, and the Blues weren't about to look a gift horse in the mouth.

"We had a tough time on defense," admitted Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "You've got to be able to make the plays, and maybe get a break or two on the calls to win these games. It didn't happen."

It was a bumpy outing right from the start as the first three Moorhead batters reached base and scored in the top of the first. First came a bunt single by John Brunsberg. A sacrifice bunt by Andy Schmidt was mis-played into an error and Greg Salvevold dropped an RBI single into short right field. A sacrifice fly by Scott Kohler made it 2-0 and an infield ground-out scored the third run of the inning.

Thief River Falls came back with a pair of runs in the top of the second on a lead-off double to right-center by Rick Ostby and an RBI single up the middle by Steve Burslie. A balk moved Burslie to second and a hit-and-run single by Robert Nelson made it 3-2.

But it was a short-lived comeback as Eric Steen opened the bottom of the second with a single to left, advanced on a sacrifice bunt by Rusty Boyle and scored when a single to left by Ken Bradsteen had an error tacked on to the play.

A one-out double by Bradsteen, the No. 9 hitter in the Blues' line-up, and a bad-hop single by Brunsberg made it 5-2 in the fourth.

Scoring was completed in the fifth when Kohler walked, Dan Geisler reached base on an error off a bunt and Steen was hit by a pitch to load the bases. A two-out error at third scored the runs.

Ostby pitched through the fifth inning and took the loss, giving up the nine hits while walking one and striking out one. Eric Bjorgaard made his third straight relief appearance of the tournament with a 1-2-3 sixth.

Brunsberg, who was 4-for-4 as the Moorhead lead-off batter, also turned in a complete-game pitching effort, scattering five hits while walking four and striking out seven. Rogalla was 2-for-2; Bradsteen 2-for-3.

the stocks. Minnesota will reciprocate with a similar allocation of walleye to Ontario from its portion of Lake of the Woods. The current Minnesota-based harvest of Ontario walleye is approximately 32,000 pounds annually, while the Ontario harvest of Minnesota walleye is negligible.

■ Minnesota-based day anglers fishing in Ontario waters of Lake of the Woods and Ontario-based anglers fishing in Minnesota waters will be subject to conservation limits (two walleye/sauger, two bass, two northern pike, 10 crappie, one lake trout, no muskies). Adherence to the 8,000-pound allocations will be through voluntary compliance and associated angler ethic information programs.

■ Minnesota DNR and Ontario MNR will conduct annual creel surveys within their respective waters to monitor harvest levels. If monitoring over the next two to three years shows voluntary compliance is poor, it was agreed that Ontario may institute further changes to achieve the agreed upon allocated harvest.

■ Each agency will consider issuing an annual Lake of the Woods Border Water Conservation sticker at a nominal fee to validate anglers' licenses. The purpose of the sticker will be to assist in funding the additional efforts required to monitor harvest.

■ Ontario and Minnesota agree to work toward common regulations and reciprocal fishing licenses for the Rainy River.

The international task force of local stakeholder representatives was formed in April 1993 to resolve the border water fishing issues.

It's objective, Pyzer said, was to review the issues and recommend solutions for Lake of the Woods, since it was felt that local people, who had a major stake in how the fisheries resources are managed, would assist in reaching a consensus.

A separate task group was established to review similar problems on the South Arm of Rainy Lake.

Since the early 1980s, the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources has been restricting Ontario-based recreational and commercial fishing opportunities to conserve fish stocks in Ontario waters of Lake of the Woods. The walleye decline in Ontario waters of Lake of the Woods has been halted, but full recovery of the stocks has been a concern.

In 1981, the OMNR attempted to address the situation by instituting a boat limit of 18 walleye for Minnesota-based anglers fishing in Ontario waters.

In 1985, the OMNR, after dropping the boat limit, started requiring Minnesota-based anglers to obtain a Daily Angling Validation Tag to validate their non-resident angling licenses when fishing the Ontario waters of Lake of the Woods, Rainy Lake, and Rainy River. The Daily Angling Validation Tag had limited effects on reducing the U.S.-based harvest of Ontario fish, however, and the tag created significant friction between Minnesota anglers and Ontario.

HOW MUCH IS ENOUGH?

Which coverages should I carry? How much insurance is enough? These are good questions that should be considered very carefully. Don't think only of your own property when you consider what your loss might be.

What if you were involved in an accident that results in claims brought against you for bodily injuries in the amount of $200,000.00 and property damage of others in the amount of $15,000? If you carry a single limit coverage of $100,000.00, you realize that this claim could cost you $115,000.00 above the amount your insurance policy will pay. If you carry split liability limits (such as $50/100/50) you may have to pay as much as $150,000.00 if the bodily injuries are to one person. If the accident involved multiple vehicles, the bodily injury and property damage claims could easily exceed the amounts given in this example.

Are your policy limits adequate to protect you from the high costs of medical expenses and property damage claims you might experience?

Examine your policy today to see what your liability limits are. With inadequate limits, you could be placing your current assets and your future earnings at risk. Stop at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY today to review your policy coverages and limits. Our office is located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon. -

Deer licenses, permits are available

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources announced that 1993 regulations, deer hunting licenses and applications for antlerless permits and special hunts will be available beginning Aug. 12 from county auditor offices and license vendors throughout the state.

Application deadline for antlerless permits and special hunts is Thursday, Sept. 9, except applications for the Camp Ripley archery hunt, which must be received by Aug. 20.

A total of 236,055 antlerless permits are being offered, second only to last year's total of 322,030. Permit numbers are down about 50 percent in Zone 1 from 1992, down 24 percent in Zone 2, up 6 percent in Zone 3, and up 11 percent in Zone 4. In addition, 40 special hunts are being offered to archery, firearms, and muzzleloader hunters in parks and refuges that are not normally open to hunting and where hunter numbers must be limited.

Hunters who applied for either an antlerless permit or firearms special hunt in 1992 have been mailed a DNR postcard with a peel-off label for use on the permit application form. These labels are bar-coded for the first time this year, and hunters are encouraged to use the labels to minimize the possibility of errors and reduce data entry costs. A preference system will again be used to draw successful applicants for both antlerless and special hunt permits.

There are several changes in store for Minnesota deer hunters this fall. They include:

■ Resident hunters under age 16 as of Nov. 6 may take antlerless deer without an antlerless permit.

■ Multi-zone buck licenses, which allow firearms hunters to hunt for legal bucks during any open firearms season except the Zone 3B season, can be purchased over-the-counter this year.

■ Both firearms and archery deer management permits may be purchased at all license vendors this year. In addition, management permits may be purchased at any time prior to and throughout the open season.

■ Hunters in some metro permit areas and special hunts will be authorized to take as many as five deer through the purchase of additional firearms or archery management permits.

■ Experimental two-deer area in the northwest was extended for an additional two years, and Lake of the Woods County was added to Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties. These four counties are the only area of the state where deer may be tagged with both a regular firearms and regular archery license.

■ Landowners and tenants who live on at least 10 acres of agricultural land and agree to allow public hunting on their lands will be given preference for firearms management permits this year in areas where management permits are available. These permits will be free for the qualifying landowners and tenants.

New landowner deer permit management program announced

Landowners in some areas of Minnesota may be eligible for a free license to take a second antlerless deer this fall, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Owners or tenants living on 10 acres or more of agricultural land, who agree to allow public hunting on their land, may apply with their antlerless permit application for the new 'Landowner Management Permit.' In those permit areas where firearms deer management permits are available, landowner applicants will be given preference over non-landowners for the permits, which allow additional antlerless deer to be taken. Landowner permits will be available only for the regular firearms season, not for archery or muzzleloader seasons.

Dave Schad, DNR Forest Wildlife Program leader, explained that the new permit is the result of legislation intended to help address problems caused by deer to agricultural crops.

"By getting these management permits in the hands of owners of agricultural lands," Schad said, "we can direct more harvest of antlerless deer onto private rather than public lands."

The free permits are available to owners or tenants of agricultural lands who allow some public hunting on their property by non-family members. Applications for the new permit are available beginning Aug. 12 at county auditor offices and license vendors. The applications must be submitted in an envelope with antlerless permit applications by the Sept. 9 deadline.

Schad cautioned that management permits will only be available in those antlerless permit areas where there are insufficient applicants for all available permits. In those areas where no management permits are available, licensed landowners will be restricted to taking only one deer by firearm.

■ Firearms hunters may now possess and sight in firearms capable of taking deer up to five days, rather than 10 days, prior to the open firearms season.

■ Legislation passed in 1993 phases out the use of red clothing during the open firearms season. Only blaze orange or camo-blaze will be allowed starting in 1994.

County board revises Shoreland ordinance

Pennington county board of commissioners adopted the revised Pennington County Shoreland Ordinance April 27 as mandated by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

For the purposes of the ordinance, shoreland is defined as "....land located within 300 feet from a river or stream, or the landward extent of a flood plain, whichever is greater....."

Permits for the construction of buildings or building additions (including decks and signs) and for the installation or alteration of sewage treatment systems are required under the ordinance.

The ordinance contains standards for lot area and width; placement, design and height of structures; shoreland alterations; placement and design of roads, driveways and parking areas; stormwater management; and water supply and sewage treatment.

There are also special provisions for agriculture, forestry, extractive and mining.

Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District has been authorized to administer this ordinance. The SWCD office is locates at 1305 Dale Street in Thief River Falls and may be contacted by phone at 681-3348.

The City of Thief River Falls does not come under the jurisdiction of this ordinance. The city is currently working on a separate shoreland ordinance.

Support loans available from ASCS on 1993 Wheat

Price support loans and loan deficiency payments (if applicable) are available from the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service on 1993 wheat.

All wheat producers participating in the 1993 farm program are eligible, according to Pennington County ASCS Acting Director, Karen Fredrickson.

"A price support loan provides immediate cash for farmers and allows them sufficient time to make important marketing decisions, or to hold the grain for feeding later," Fredrickson said.

The loan rate for Pennington county's 1993 wheat crop is $2.45 per bushel. The rate reflects relative county market prices.

Under the price support loan program, the Commodity Credit Corporation makes loans to eligible farmers, using the commodities as collateral loans. Stocks may be stored on the farm in approved structures or off the farm in approved commercial warehouses.

Wheat loans are available to farmers through March 31, 1994. Loans mature on demand, but no later than the last day of the ninth month following the month the loan is approved.

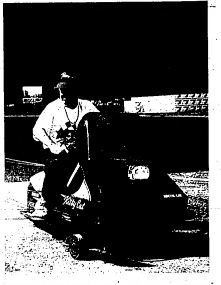
Fredrickson reminds producers that now is the time to stop in at the local ASCS office and begin the loan process.

Peterson appointed to committee

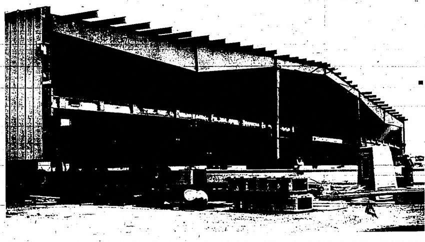
Congressman Collin Peterson of Minnesota's Seventh District, has been appointed to the budget reconciliation conference committee by the government operations committee.

Chairman of the subcommittee on employment, housing and aviation, Congressman Peterson said the appointment would give him "the opportunity to help move the deficit reduction process forward in the area of government operations.

"I will work to lock in the savings we're creating by cutting the size of the federal bureaucracy," he said.



Hey, how big is this thing anyway? John Marben, age 10, was asked to ride a Kitty Cat in a sort of spoof in which three Kitty Cat snowmobiles, equipped to operate on dry ground, were attached by rope to a 75 by 180-foot section of building being moved. With support beams, the building weighed about 80 tons. While the Kitty Cats were straining to pull the building, a very large diesel truck inside the building was providing enough muscle to get the job done: The building was being moved from an area behind Digi-Key. It will now be attached to the back of Arctco and become a manufacturing area for personal watercraft. The building was moved by Carrington Building Movers out of Carrington, ND. Harlan Kirkeide of Digi-Key is the project manager.



Dwarfed by the size of the building section being moved, operators inspect cables and beams supporting the structure. The structure is roughly half of a building that is being moved for Digi-Key and Arctco. The building used to be located behind Digi-Key but will be located directly behind Arctco where it will become part of the company's personal watercraft manufacturing site. Total weight of the structure, which includes support beams, was about 80 tons. Carrington Building Movers of Carrington, ND, moved the 32,000 square foot building in two sections. Project manager is Harlan Kirkeide.

Conference in Winnipeg to address flood questions

The 11th Annual Red River Basin Land and Water International Summit Conference on November 17 to 19 in Winnipeg, Manitoba will address questions related to the 1993 flood.

The conference is sponsored by the International Coalition for Land and Water Stewardship in the Red River Basin.

The conference will address various forms of water retention by measures ranging from cover crops, to small culvert structures to large multi-purpose dams. The usefulness of water retention for flood control and water supply will be discussed as well as the negative aspects of water retention.

The conference will address the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' Basin-wide Environmental Assessment (EA). The purpose of the EA is to determine the cumulative impacts of flood control and other projects on the Basin.

Conference attendees will have the opportunity to participate by interacting with the presenters, panelists and experts on various aspects of retention.

Whole Wheat BIBLE STUDY

Be wholehearted

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

Whatever your hand finds to do, do it with all your might, for you are only passing this way once, and you might as well give it your best shot! This is the idea, stated in modern terminology, that Solomon was trying to get across in Ecclesiastes 9:10. It is also a godly trait.

Our Creator wants us to be wholehearted, or have singleness of heart in everything we do (Acts 2:46; Eph. 6:5; Col. 3:22). He wants us to be single-minded, with one purpose (Matt. 6:22; Luke 11:34).

The key to singleness of eye, singleness of heart and singleness of purpose is in serving other people and helping them be successful. That's why our Lord said, "The greatest among you will be a servant to his brothers" (Matt. 23:11). "Let no one seek his own good, but the good of his neighbor" (1 Cor. 10:24).

Jesus Christ, our example, taught people how to completely come out of self and become totally unselfish. He called all twelve disciples together and told them the way to become first in the kingdom is to be servants of all (Mark 9:35). Give it your all! Give it your best shot! Jesus used the strongest word He could when He said to be a "slave" to all (Mark 10:44).

Jesus did not come to be served, but to serve others for the glory of God (Mark 10:45). He did this wholeheartedly to the point of dying for us. He wants us to take the message of being a servant of others for the glory of God soberly. We are to have the attitude Jesus Christ had (Phil. 2:5, 7). We are to abide by His teachings and walk as He walked (1 John 2:6).

So, whatever your hand finds to do, seriously, do it with your whole heart, knowing that it pleases your Creator when you put your brother's welfare first, before your own. Do all that you do in the name of Christ, as all disciples of Jesus Christ are commanded to do (Col. 3:17).

Jim Weckwerth of Thief River Falls won the men's division archery title at the 42nd Annual Outdoor Archery tournament in Thief River Falls, which was held July 31 and August 1. The trophy was presented by Miss Thief River Falls, Marcia Erickson.

Tim Nelson of Thief River Falls takes aim at one of the 3-D targets at the outdoor archery range near the Regional Airport in Thief River Falls. The Thief River Falls Archery Club held its 42nd Annual Outdoor Archery tournament July 31 and August 1 at the archery range. For more information about the club contact Steve Seglem at 681-7359 or Tom Molskness at 964-5634.

Archery Club holds outdoor tournament

On July 31 and August 1, the Thief River Falls Archery Club held its 42nd annual outdoor archery tournament with 210 registered shooters in attendance.

The club offered two different types of shooting events for the weekend. The first was a 14 target (NFAA) Dakota round. This event offered a 14 target course set-up in the woods. As participants walked through the course, they shot at each target from distances of 10 yards to 60 yards. The distances and the size of the target face are set by the rules of the National Field Archery Association. This ensured the accuracy of the round in case anyone set a record.

The second type of shooting event was a 42-target 3-D animal round. This event offered 42 life size foam animal targets, set-up in the river bottom area of the Red Lake river west of the airport. Archers walked through the course that offered varied shooting distances ranging from 15 yards to 50 yards. Each archer had to shoot a single broadhead tipped arrow at each animal and recorded a hit or miss. This type of event offers as close to actual hunting conditions as possible.

Whole Wheat BIBLE STUDY

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

Whatever your hand finds to do, do it with all your might, for you are only passing this way once, and you might as well give it your best shot! This is the idea, stated in modern terminology, that Solomon was trying to get across in Ecclesiastes 9:10. It is also a godly trait.

Our Creator wants us to be wholehearted, or have singleness of heart in everything we do (Acts 2:46; Eph. 6:5; Col. 3:22). He wants us to be single-minded, with one purpose (Matt. 6:22; Luke 11:34).

The key to singleness of eye, singleness of heart and singleness of purpose is in serving other people and helping them be successful. That's why our Lord said, "The greatest among you will be a servant to his brothers" (Matt. 23:11). "Let no one seek his own good, but the good of his neighbor" (1 Cor. 10:24).

Jesus Christ, our example, taught people how to completely come out of self and become totally unselfish. He called all twelve disciples together and told them the way to become first in the kingdom is to be servants of all (Mark 9:35). Give it your all! Give it your best shot! Jesus used the strongest word He could when He said to be a "slave" to all (Mark 10:44).

Jesus did not come to be served, but to serve others for the glory of God (Mark 10:45). He did this wholeheartedly to the point of dying for us. He wants us to take the message of being a servant of others for the glory of God soberly. We are to have the attitude Jesus Christ had (Phil. 2:5, 7). We are to abide by His teachings and walk as He walked (1 John 2:6).

So, whatever your hand finds to do, seriously, do it with your whole heart, knowing that it pleases your Creator when you put your brother's welfare first, before your own. Do all that you do in the name of Christ, as all disciples of Jesus Christ are commanded to do (Col. 3:17).

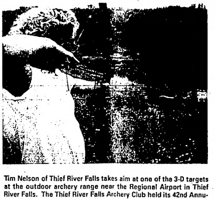
Jim Weckwerth of Thief River Falls won the men's division archery title at the 42nd Annual Outdoor Archery tournament in Thief River Falls, which was held July 31 and August 1. The trophy was presented by Miss Thief River Falls, Marcia Erickson.



Tim Nelson of Thief River Falls takes aim at one of the 3-D targets at the outdoor archery range near the Regional Airport in Thief River Falls. The Thief River Falls Archery Club held its 42nd Annual Outdoor Archery tournament July 31 and August 1 at the archery range. For more information about the club contact Steve Seglem at 681-7359 or Tom Molskness at 964-5634.

On July 31 and August 1, the Thief River Falls Archery Club held its 42nd annual outdoor archery tournament with 210 registered shooters in attendance.

The club offered two different types of shooting events for the weekend. The first was a 14 target (NFAA) Dakota round. This event offered a 14 target course set-up in the woods. As participants walked through the course, they shot at each target from distances of 10 yards to 60 yards. The distances and the size of the target face are set by the rules of the National Field Archery Association. This ensured the accuracy of the round in case anyone set a record.

The second type of shooting event was a 42-target 3-D animal round. This event offered 42 life size foam animal targets, set-up in the river bottom area of the Red Lake river west of the airport. Archers walked through the course that offered varied shooting distances ranging from 15 yards to 50 yards. Each archer had to shoot a single broadhead tipped arrow at each animal and recorded a hit or miss. This type of event offers as close to actual hunting conditions as possible.

State Lottery Sales In County Down 11.9 %

Gamblers in Pennington county either cut back on their activity or diverted it to other areas in fiscal 1993. A report from the Minnesota State Lottery shows that lottery sales in Pennington county declined in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1993, from $920,249 a year ago to $887,702 in the year just completed. It was late last year that the River Road Casino opened in Pennington county.

Retailers in Pennington county paid out $442,581 in prizes. (Not all prizes are paid out by retailers.) Net loss to lottery players in Pennington county was $445,121—a tidy sum to toss out the window. Lottery sales in Pennington county averaged $66.94 per capita—modestly below the statewide average of $70. Mower county was high in the state at $125.23 and Rock county was low at $26.69 per capita. Polk county was highest in this area with an average of $107.24. Marshall county averaged $53.15, Red Lake averaged $30.55, Kittson averaged $72.36, Roseau averaged $67.50 and Lake of the Woods averaged $71.76.

Pennington county's totals fell despite a statewide 10.5 per cent increase in lottery sales to a record $328,800,000. Since the state's lottery players in total don't seem to be getting any more reluctant to squander their cash, it would be unlikely to assume any increased frugality among those in Pennington county—therefore the assumption of a likely shift in spending from the lottery to the area casinos.

Among the several hundred lottery winners listed as winning $500 or more in the period from June 29 through July 26 were three from this area, according to the lottery report. Shawn Hyde of Thief River Falls won $1,000 in the "Our Minnesota" lottery; Sharon Lizotte of Red Lake Falls and Frances Anderson of Thief River Falls each won $1,000 in the "Double Feature" lottery. That may be okay for the winners, but a rather meager return on the community investment.

According to the state lottery office, 60 per cent of lottery sales were paid back in prizes ($196,900,000). The state gained $78,500,000 in lottery proceeds and state sales tax. Of this amount $22.9 million went into the Environment and Natural Resources Trust Fund and $55.7 million into the state's general fund. The lottery's operating budget totaled 11 per cent of revenues.

Pennington county's 13 lottery retailers earned a total of $44,593 in commissions and incentives in fiscal 1993. The top 10 state lottery retailers in the county for the fiscal year, according to State Lottery officials, were Erl's Food Market, Holiday Station, Kruse In (St. Hilaire), Pennington Square, Jubilee Foods, Valley Markets Inc., Northland Foods (Northland Foods became Jubilee Foods earlier this year), 7-Eleven Store, American Legion Post 117 and the Goodridge Municipal Liquor Store.

Candidates Needed For School Dist. 564 Board

Since both incumbents whose terms expire on the School District 564 board of education have indicated they will not seek reelection, there will be two vacancies to fill in the school election to be held November 2. Filing for the board election opens Tuesday, August 24, and remains open through Tuesday, September 7, at 5 p.m.

Decision by Harry Sjulson and Maryel Anderson not to seek reelection to the board will leave some very big holes to fill. Harry will have served 27 years on St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls school boards when his term ends and Maryel will have completed nine years of service.

Apart from the experience level of both board members, they have been highly respected members and greatly stabilizing factors throughout their service. Harry was chairman of the School District 564 board from July of 1982 through December of 1985 and also served as president of the Minnesota School Boards Association. Maryel chaired the board for 1990 and 1991.

We can understand the decision of both persons. Public service certainly has its rewards from the standpoint of feelings of personal accomplishment but it also has plenty of stress and requires the commitment of a great deal of time. School board service, in particular, probably has the greatest time requirement of any elected local governing office. Frustration level is sometimes high but the importance of the work can not be overemphasized.

So the call is out to anyone who has an interest in education of children and is willing to undertake a major learning experience of his or her own. Service on the board of education is an opportunity to do something very worthwhile for the community and its people. With the building projects at the elementary, middle school and senior high school underway there are challenging and exciting times ahead.

Filing opens August 24. Who will be the first to file?

"Approximately 100 volunteer workers have gone out evenings during the past week from Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Goodridge to assist in the harvest fields, Russell Olson, manager of the U.S. employment service here, stated today, adding that thus far this season a total of 355 placements have been made through his agency and the county agent's office.

"County Agent Ernest Palmer estimated that the harvest is now nearly three-quarters completed, but pointed out that the need for volunteer help on the farms is still acute."

Auxiliary Sells War Bonds

Local Wages

"This is the time of the year that laborers expect good wages to commence but it looks bad for them this year. The Great Northern last week cut all of their laborers to $1.00 per day. Men were never so plentiful at this time of the year and those who expect to work during harvest and threshing will find the poorest wages ever given in this part of the state."

State Lottery Sales In County Down 11.9 %

Gamblers in Pennington county either cut back on their activity or diverted it to other areas in fiscal 1993. A report from the Minnesota State Lottery shows that lottery sales in Pennington county declined in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1993, from $920,249 a year ago to $887,702 in the year just completed. It was late last year that the River Road Casino opened in Pennington county.

Retailers in Pennington county paid out $442,581 in prizes. (Not all prizes are paid out by retailers.) Net loss to lottery players in Pennington county was $445,121—a tidy sum to toss out the window. Lottery sales in Pennington county averaged $66.94 per capita—modestly below the statewide average of $70. Mower county was high in the state at $125.23 and Rock county was low at $26.69 per capita. Polk county was highest in this area with an average of $107.24. Marshall county averaged $53.15, Red Lake averaged $30.55, Kittson averaged $72.36, Roseau averaged $67.50 and Lake of the Woods averaged $71.76.

Pennington county's totals fell despite a statewide 10.5 per cent increase in lottery sales to a record $328,800,000. Since the state's lottery players in total don't seem to be getting any more reluctant to squander their cash, it would be unlikely to assume any increased frugality among those in Pennington county—therefore the assumption of a likely shift in spending from the lottery to the area casinos.

Among the several hundred lottery winners listed as winning $500 or more in the period from June 29 through July 26 were three from this area, according to the lottery report. Shawn Hyde of Thief River Falls won $1,000 in the "Our Minnesota" lottery; Sharon Lizotte of Red Lake Falls and Frances Anderson of Thief River Falls each won $1,000 in the "Double Feature" lottery. That may be okay for the winners, but a rather meager return on the community investment.

According to the state lottery office, 60 per cent of lottery sales were paid back in prizes ($196,900,000). The state gained $78,500,000 in lottery proceeds and state sales tax. Of this amount $22.9 million went into the Environment and Natural Resources Trust Fund and $55.7 million into the state's general fund. The lottery's operating budget totaled 11 per cent of revenues.

Pennington county's 13 lottery retailers earned a total of $44,593 in commissions and incentives in fiscal 1993. The top 10 state lottery retailers in the county for the fiscal year, according to State Lottery officials, were Erl's Food Market, Holiday Station, Kruse In (St. Hilaire), Pennington Square, Jubilee Foods, Valley Markets Inc., Northland Foods (Northland Foods became Jubilee Foods earlier this year), 7-Eleven Store, American Legion Post 117 and the Goodridge Municipal Liquor Store.

Candidates Needed For School Dist. 564 Board

Since both incumbents whose terms expire on the School District 564 board of education have indicated they will not seek reelection, there will be two vacancies to fill in the school election to be held November 2. Filing for the board election opens Tuesday, August 24, and remains open through Tuesday, September 7, at 5 p.m.

Decision by Harry Sjulson and Maryel Anderson not to seek reelection to the board will leave some very big holes to fill. Harry will have served 27 years on St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls school boards when his term ends and Maryel will have completed nine years of service.

Apart from the experience level of both board members, they have been highly respected members and greatly stabilizing factors throughout their service. Harry was chairman of the School District 564 board from July of 1982 through December of 1985 and also served as president of the Minnesota School Boards Association. Maryel chaired the board for 1990 and 1991.

We can understand the decision of both persons. Public service certainly has its rewards from the standpoint of feelings of personal accomplishment but it also has plenty of stress and requires the commitment of a great deal of time. School board service, in particular, probably has the greatest time requirement of any elected local governing office. Frustration level is sometimes high but the importance of the work can not be overemphasized.

So the call is out to anyone who has an interest in education of children and is willing to undertake a major learning experience of his or her own. Service on the board of education is an opportunity to do something very worthwhile for the community and its people. With the building projects at the elementary, middle school and senior high school underway there are challenging and exciting times ahead.

Filing opens August 24. Who will be the first to file?

"Approximately 100 volunteer workers have gone out evenings during the past week from Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Goodridge to assist in the harvest fields, Russell Olson, manager of the U.S. employment service here, stated today, adding that thus far this season a total of 355 placements have been made through his agency and the county agent's office.

"County Agent Ernest Palmer estimated that the harvest is now nearly three-quarters completed, but pointed out that the need for volunteer help on the farms is still acute."

Auxiliary Sells War Bonds

"The war savings stamp and bond tag day conducted Saturday by the local American Legion auxiliary in honor of Molly Pitcher, Revolutionary War heroine, resulted in the sale of nearly $3,500 in bonds and stamps, it was announced by Mrs. Esther Plough, general chairman. Local Wages

"This is the time of the year that laborers expect good wages to commence but it looks bad for them this year. The Great Northern last week cut all of their laborers to $1.00 per day. Men were never so plentiful at this time of the year and those who expect to work during harvest and threshing will find the poorest wages ever given in this part of the state."

Mrs. Esther Rutkowski

Eleanor Rollins and Amy arrived from Poertland, OR, in July to visit her aunt, Esther Thorsson and other relatives. They spent some time in Grand Forks where Amy attended some classes at the University. The 23rd of July, Eleanors sons, Jason and Scott arrived from Portland. They enjoyed spending time out on the farm. The third of August they all left for their home.

Harvey Aos called Esther Rutkowski on Friday to tell her he had been in the hospital at Rochester for surgery and is doing fine now. He also went to visit his sister, Rhoda and Alvin Jacobson at Ostrander, and their son, Loren took him to St. Cloud where his brother, Dick Aos met him and took him back to Crookston.

Callers at Effie Handy's have been Mr. and Mrs. Ken Becker, Megan and Adam from Milwaukee, WI, Forrest and Judy Knutson, Hazel Nelson, Emma Nyland, Alida Samson, Esther Thorssen, Mrs. Jiggs Flegle of, Rothchild, WI, and Norma Emerson.

Esther Rutkowski and Wally spent a week in the cities. Esther visited with Howard and Viona Johnson and Pamela at Shoreview, Bob and Marlene Ruthkowski in Minnetonka, Peter and Kris Ruthkowski at Wayzata, Teri and David Lehmann, Josh, Jeni and Grace at Dellwood Hills.

Tuesday evening Stella Kothenbertal of Rochester, Naomi Hedlund of Minneapolis, Joyce Monty of Grand Meadow were visitors at Effie Handy's.

Beatrice Wagner of Gonvick and her daughter, Doris from Colorado Springs, CO, were Thursday forenoon coffee guests at Ken and Alice Forsberg's. Beatrice and Doris had dinner at the Gully Cafe with Esther Ruthkowski, and Doris met many other friends there too.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Winsor of Liberty Hill, IL, Kenny Emerson of Moorhead, Bob Handy, Leslie Emerson, Emma and Naomi were Wednesday afternoon callers at Effie's.

Bob and Marlene Ruthkowski took Esther Rutkowski over to Bloomington to visit with Arthur and Kathy Lanman. I also visited with Nora Christianson and Duane Elbertson on the telephone.

Jerry Rustad of Lansing, MI, spent a week with his uncle and aunt, Budd and Pearl Watne, and visiting other relatives.

Law restricts work hours

A 1993 law restricting student work hours took effect August 1, although the law only applies when school is in session.

Minnesota statues state that a high school student under age 18 must not be permitted to work after 11 p.m. on an evening before a school day or before 5 a.m. on a school day. With written permission from a parent or guardian, these hours may be expanded to 11:30 p.m. and 4:30 a.m.

Minors involved in agricultural operations, performing arts, newspaper carriers or minors employed to do home chores are exempt from this restriction.

Employers who fail to comply with the law are subject to fines. Repeated violation of the law carries a gross misdemeanor charge.

Thief River Falls Archery club held its first tournament in 1948. The first tournament was held indoors at the high school gym. Above is a picture of the first club at the tournament. The club recently held its 42nd annual outdoor archery tournament. There were 210 people registered to participate in the tournament. The picture was provided by Hulda Canfield. Pictured are: (front row) Richard and Edward Stokke; (second row) Eunice Jensen, Marg Peck, Rose Lord, Susie Hanson, Mrs. Herman Granby, Hulda Canfield, Ruth Legvold, and Tom Peck; (back row) Alice Barry, Wink Barry, Ole Sather, Floyd Canfield, Herman Granby, Gunder Legvold, Dale Jensen, Rev. Marvin Uhlig, John Anderson, and Dale Meeker. Not pictured, but members of the club were: Loran Lord, Logan Grant, June Grant, Ida Gantner, and Mrs. Marvin Uhlig.

Steve and Penny Seglem and Marv and Kathi Carlson recently started a van service called Casino Express. The van provides transportation services to and from the River Road Casino, seven days a week. Pick up takes place at Floyd B. Olson Park, across from Hardees, at 9 a.m., 11 a.m., 2 p.m., 5 p.m. and 7 and 9 p.m. Other hours are available upon request. Free home pick up is available. For reservations call 681-7359 or a toll free van phone at 1-686-7777. Casino Express will also provide pick up service by appointment in St. Hilaire. It costs $10 to ride to the casino and once you arrive you receive $20 to use at the casino. During Crazy Days in Thief River Falls, the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce presented the Seglems and the Carlsons with a First Dollar award. Pictured from left are: Tom Dondelinger, chamber ambassador, Penny and Steve Seglem, Santa Claus (a.k.a. Bob Bergan), Marv and Kathi Carlson and Cliff Larson, chamber ambassador.

Archery club notes progress since beginning

Hulda Canfield recently found a photo of the first Archery Club in Thief River Falls. It reminded members of the club of how the club organized in 1948.

Actually, the first tournament, which was held indoors at the high school, was held in 1948. Dana Klos, a member of the club now says the club has come a long way at improving its facilities for the member's enjoyment. The club has an outdoor range facility located south and west of the Regional Airport with targets permanently set up for shooting anytime, and an indoor range.

The indoor range facility, Klos said, is located above the old hockey arena on Second street and Knight avenue. Members have access to each locked facility at any time.

The membership fees are small. Klos said the target ranges are also open to anyone looking for a place to practice for the fast approaching hunting seasons.

For more information about the club contact the club president, Steve Seglem at 681-7359 or Tom Molskness at 964-5634.

Visitors tour water plant after dedication ceremony

Speakers at the event recognized the contributions to the success and completion of the project which began nearly two years ago. About two years ago, the city entered into an agreement with the Environmental Protection Agency to complete expansion improvements. The improvements were required as a result of changes in standards set by the Safe Drinking Water Act and a compliance agreement was signed with the EPA. As a result of the improvements, the plant meets the standards set by the act.

The city did not complete the project without a lot of hand wringing. Utmost on the minds of city councilmen and city staff was how to find the funds needed to complete the $6.7 million project. Originally, the cost of the improvements was set at around $5 million, but changes made because of the need to meet tougher standards pushed to the cost to over $6.7 million.

Thief River Falls received a $600,000 grant from the Minnesota department of Economic Development, and a $1 million grant from the Economic Development Administration. The city was then able to obtain long-term, low interest financing from Farmer's Home Administration (30 years at 5 1/4 per cent).

This financial assistance was secured with the aid of U.S. Representative Collin Peterson, U.S. Senator Dave Durenburger, U.S. Senator Paul Wellstone, State Representative Wallace Sparby, State Senator LeRoy Stumpf, Leon Heath, Northwest Regional Development Commission, and the many individuals who made up the city council during that time and city staff.

The project engineer was Black & Veatch. The city council awarded the bid on the project to John T. Jones Construction of Fargo, ND.

The proposed treatment included construction of a pretreatment basin and two primary softening basins, conversion of existing basins to secondary softening basins, modifications to the chemical feed systems, and an addition to the clearwell for chlorine contact requirements. The existing building was expanded and remodeled to provide a new laboratory and operations control center. The electrical, mechanical, and architectural components of the building were also upgraded. The modifications increased the treatment time for water from 3.6 hours to 10.5 hours.

Treatment involved in the presedimentation basin includes allowing raw water turbidity and organics that cause taste, odor, and color in the finished water to settle out. Chemicals fed to a rapid mix chamber ahead of the center ring include aluminum sulfate, potassium permanganate, hydrogen peroxide, powdered activated carbon and polymer. Particulate matter flocculated in the center section, settles down to the bottom of the basin to be drained to waste. Aluminum sulfate assists in the removal of turbidity. Potassium permanganate oxidizes compounds that cause taste, odor and color. Hydrogen peroxide oxidizes compounds that

Klingon language camp opens

Study of created language draws "Star Trek" devotees to Red Lake Falls

Alien warriors took possession of Voyageur's View near Red Lake Falls in ceremonies Monday morning, August 16, and for two weeks will use it as a base of operations for study of the Klingon language.

Organized by Glen Proechel of Red Lake Falls, the camp has brought together several noted devotees of the created language who have known of each other but never gathered before. They participated in the opening ceremonies Monday morning.

Jeremy Cowan, medical student from Chicago, served as the interpreter to translate the words of the Klingon Ambassador, portrayed by Dr. Lawrence Schoen, PhD, professor of psychology at Chestnut Hill College in Philadelphia, PA.

Serving as Klingon warriors and escorts to the Ambassador were David Barron of Eagle, ID and Rich Yampell of Stoughton, MA. Barron was appointed by the Ambassador as Minister of Education. Yampell prefers to go by the name of Captain Krankor. Also in costume as a warrior and assisting with the program was Donna Herbster of Cleveland, OH.

The camp has attracted 15 students to learn more about the language which was invented by Dr. Marc Okrand for Paramount studios in filming of the "Star Trek" series. He carried the task so far that a 2,000-word vocabulary was developed and a Klingon dictionary created.

Also created was a video cassette entitled "Conversational Klingon" which is intended to help language buffs learn the sounds of the guttural Klingon tongue and instruct them in some phrases.

Dr. Schoen said that the Klingon Language Institute "continues its mission of bringing together individuals interested in the study of Klingon linguistics and culture, and providing a forum for discussion and the exchange of ideas.

"Our membership is diverse," he said, "including "Star Trek" fans with curiosity and questions about Klingon language, RP gamers wishing to lend some authenticity to a Klingon character, as well as students and professionals in the fields of linguistics, philology, computer science and psychology who see the language as a useful metaphor in the classroom or simply wish to mix vocation with avocation.

Although based in the United States, the institute is actually an international endeavor, reaching 13 countries on six continents.

The institute publishes a quarterly journal called "HolQeD," which

Official opening of the water treatment plant in Thief River Falls following a $6.7 million expansion project was held Friday at the water plant in Thief River Falls.

Speakers at the event recognized the contributions to the success and completion of the project which began nearly two years ago. About two years ago, the city entered into an agreement with the Environmental Protection Agency to complete expansion improvements. The improvements were required as a result of changes in standards set by the Safe Drinking Water Act and a compliance agreement was signed with the EPA. As a result of the improvements, the plant meets the standards set by the act.

The city did not complete the project without a lot of hand wringing. Utmost on the minds of city councilmen and city staff was how to find the funds needed to complete the $6.7 million project. Originally, the cost of the improvements was set at around $5 million, but changes made because of the need to meet tougher standards pushed to the cost to over $6.7 million.

Thief River Falls received a $600,000 grant from the Minnesota department of Economic Development, and a $1 million grant from the Economic Development Administration. The city was then able to obtain long-term, low interest financing from Farmer's Home Administration (30 years at 5 1/4 per cent).

This financial assistance was secured with the aid of U.S. Representative Collin Peterson, U.S. Senator Dave Durenburger, U.S. Senator Paul Wellstone, State Representative Wallace Sparby, State Senator LeRoy Stumpf, Leon Heath, Northwest Regional Development Commission, and the many individuals who made up the city council during that time and city staff.

The project engineer was Black & Veatch. The city council awarded the bid on the project to John T. Jones Construction of Fargo, ND.

The proposed treatment included construction of a pretreatment basin and two primary softening basins, conversion of existing basins to secondary softening basins, modifications to the chemical feed systems, and an addition to the clearwell for chlorine contact requirements. The existing building was expanded and remodeled to provide a new laboratory and operations control center. The electrical, mechanical, and architectural components of the building were also upgraded. The modifications increased the treatment time for water from 3.6 hours to 10.5 hours.

Treatment involved in the presedimentation basin includes allowing raw water turbidity and organics that cause taste, odor, and color in the finished water to settle out. Chemicals fed to a rapid mix chamber ahead of the center ring include aluminum sulfate, potassium permanganate, hydrogen peroxide, powdered activated carbon and polymer. Particulate matter flocculated in the center section, settles down to the bottom of the Basin to be drained to waste. Aluminum sulfate assists in the removal of turbidity. Potassium permanganate oxidizes compounds that cause taste, odor and color. Hydrogen peroxide oxidizes compounds that

Study of created language draws "Star Trek" devotees to Red Lake Falls

Alien warriors took possession of Voyageur's View near Red Lake Falls in ceremonies Monday morning, August 16, and for two weeks will use it as a base of operations for study of the Klingon language.

Organized by Glen Proechel of Red Lake Falls, the camp has brought together several noted devotees of the created language who have known of each other but never gathered before. They participated in the opening ceremonies Monday morning.

Jeremy Cowan, medical student from Chicago, served as the interpreter to translate the words of the Klingon Ambassador, portrayed by Dr. Lawrence Schoen, PhD, professor of psychology at Chestnut Hill College in Philadelphia, PA.

Serving as Klingon warriors and escorts to the Ambassador were David Barron of Eagle, ID and Rich Yampell of Stoughton, MA. Barron was appointed by the Ambassador as Minister of Education. Yampell prefers to go by the name of Captain Krankor. Also in costume as a warrior and assisting with the program was Donna Herbster of Cleveland, OH.

The camp has attracted 15 students to learn more about the language which was invented by Dr. Marc Okrand for Paramount studios in filming of the "Star Trek" series. He carried the task so far that a 2,000-word vocabulary was developed and a Klingon dictionary created.

Also created was a video cassette entitled "Conversational Klingon" which is intended to help language buffs learn the sounds of the guttural Klingon tongue and instruct them in some phrases.

Dr. Schoen said that the Klingon Language Institute "continues its mission of bringing together individuals interested in the study of Klingon linguistics and culture, and providing a forum for discussion and the exchange of ideas.

"Our membership is diverse," he said, "including "Star Trek" fans with curiosity and questions about Klingon language, RP gamers wishing to lend some authenticity to a Klingon character, as well as students and professionals in the fields of linguistics, philology, computer science and psychology who see the language as a useful metaphor in the classroom or simply wish to mix vocation with avocation.

Although based in the United States, the institute is actually an international endeavor, reaching 13 countries on six continents.

Dear Readers,

Especially with the loss of a child, parents often think, "Why not me?" This is a typical reaction to the sudden death of a loved one. Though usually short-lived, almost all parents who suffer this type of loss contemplate their own deaths. At these unusually trying times, the support of friends is crucial in helping them see beyond their own grief.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

Larry Belmont

Dear Readers,
Especially with the loss of a child, parents often think, "Why not me?" This is a typical reaction to the sudden death of a loved one. Though usually short-lived, almost all parents who suffer this type of loss contemplate their own deaths. At these unusually trying times, the support of friends is crucial in helping them see beyond their own grief.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

OUR ADVERTISERS SAVE YOU MONEY!

Organizer Glen Proechel, who already spoke 12 languages before adding Klingon to his linguistic repertoire, gave introductory remarks during opening ceremonies for the Klingon language camp at Voyageur's View campground near Red Lake Falls Monday morning, August 16.

Host families sought

World Heritage, an exchange visitor program, is looking for host families to host a student from Spain, Mexico, Germany or France.

World Heritage students are students ages 15 to 18 who have an intense desire to learn the language and culture of the United States by living with host families and attending the local high school for an academic school year. By becoming a member of a family, one lucky exchange student could have his or her dream come true while experiencing life in Northern Minnesota. The host family will also have the opportunity of seeing your own community and country through the student's eyes.

All World Heritage students have been carefully screened, come with their own spending money, are fully insured, and are willing to help with all household activities and chores. Potential host families can select the student to share their home from among essays, photos and applications.

Do these drawings shock you?

They would if you could see them all. But the Thief River Falls Times won't let us show them all to you.

The drawings illustrate a gruesome new abortion technique being used in the second and third trimesters of pregnancy.

The abortionist removes the baby as far as the head and then suctions out the brain. This allows the head to be more easily removed—and it also allows easy access to fetal brain tissue for transplantation.

The technique (called D&X) was described by Dr. Martin Haskell at a September, 1992 meeting of the National Abortion Federation, a trade association of abortion providers.

Haskell said he personally has done 700 of these "procedures."

Congress is considering the "Freedom of Choice Act" (FOCA), a bill that would protect the practice of abortion at all stages and would lead to an increase in the use of this grisly procedure.

There is no "nice" way to do an abortion.

But if you are particularly shocked by the brutality described here, please ask your U.S. Congressman and two Senators to oppose the radical FOCA— (1-202-224-3121).

Guided by ultrasound, the abortionist grabs the baby's leg with forceps.

The baby's leg is pulled out into the birth canal.

Censored

The abortionist delivers the baby's body, except for the head.

Censored

The abortionist jams scissors into the baby's skull and opens them to enlarge the wound.

Censored

The scissors are removed and a suction catheter is inserted. The baby's brains are sucked out and his or her body is "evacuated."

Illustrations depicted are adapted from drawings appearing in the February issue of "Life Advocate."

Posing with the Klingon language camp border guard is Glen Proechel of Red Lake Falls, organizer for the world's first Klingon language camp. The camp is being held at Voyageur's View campground near Red Lake Falls and has attracted 15 students from throughout the country—as well as national media attention. The top photo shows the Klingon sign posted on one of the campground buildings. It translates in English to "Welcome to Red Lake Falls."

Klingon language camp opens Mon.

is intended to be an academic journal and is registered with the Library of Congress. It also offers a free 11-lesson postal course to get persons started in learning the Klingon language and computer discs containing fonts for typefaces for $13 each.

In his opening remarks prior to the appearance by the Klingons to claim Voyageur's View, Proechel said that the created language has developed quite a following. He said it is a hobby for most but is more intellectually stimulating than most sports or other hobbies. For Proechel, Klingon is the 13th language he speaks.

Activities this week in addition to the language study includes a treasure hunt for caches of chocolate Monday and softball wars Tuesday evening with Yampell doing the play-by-play report in Klingon and Klingon cheerleaders encouraging their favorites. The game will be broadcast on KTRF radio and KSN —the Klingon Sports Network.

Opposing the Klingon Warriors were the Planetary All-Stars, including such notables as Henry Boucha and Aaron Broten, both National Hockey League greats, and Jim Marshall, a member of the famed defensive line of the Minnesota Vikings football team. Game time was set for 7 p.m. at the Red Lake Falls baseball field.

Golf wars will be held Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. at Oak Knolls golf course and a naval battle (with inner tubes and water guns) on Thursday evening.

A talent show will be held Friday, August 20, following a parade from Voyageur's View to the Red Lake Falls community hall, and a bilingual church service in both Klingon and English is scheduled at St. John's Lutheran church in Red Lake Falls Sunday, August 22, at 8:30 a.m. Guest speaker will be Dr. Paul Muench, president of Lutheran Bible Translators of Chicago. Proechel, a member of St. John's church, will lead the Klingon portion of the service which includes three hymns, three Bible readings, the Lord's Prayer and the Apostles' Creed.

While the second week of the camp is expected to concentrate more heavily on language study, it will not be without its diversion. Klingon Bingo will be played August 23, Klingon restaurant night is planned at 6 p.m. August 25 at Ruth's Steakhouse, Great Klingon volleyball wars at Voyageur's View August 26 at 7 p.m. and a Klingon Night at the Chautauqua Festival August 27 at the Old Treaty Crossing State Park. Closing ceremonies will be August 28 at 10 a.m. at the state park.

If the camp proves successful and there is continuing support, a second annual Klingon language camp is a definite possibility for next year, Proechel said.

St. Hilaire gets low interest loan from RDA

U.S. Senator Paul Wellstone announced Tuesday that the Rural Development Administration approved a $15,000 low-interest loan to St. Hilaire. The funds will be used for the construction and repair of streets in St. Hilaire.

"I am very pleased with this award. Funding opportunities such as this are vital to ensuring the continued viability of our rural communities nationwide. This type of low-interest loan represents an investment in the people of St. Hilaire. I think the people of Minnesota and the United States will find that this investment is a good one," Wellstone said.

Taking possession of Voyageur's View campground near Red Lake Falls Monday morning for use as a language camp, the Klingon Ambassador (Dr. Lawrence Schoen of Philadelphia, PA) read his proclamation in Klingon. It was interpreted into English by Jeremy Cowan (in dark glasses) of Chicago, IL. In the background are "prisoners" of the Klingons—Voyageur's View owners Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brumwell and Julie Berg, cook for the camp who was designated a "galley slave." There are 15 people enrolled in the two-week camp to study the created Klingon language.

Two injured in gas explosion in Gully Sat.

Two Grand Forks residents were injured in a gas explosion in Gully Saturday morning.

Alvin and Ellen Amberson of Grand Forks were injured Saturday morning when there was a gas explosion at their residence in Gully. The Polk County Sheriff's department received a 911 emergency phone call at 3:29 a.m. Saturday. The Gonvick fire department and Oklee ambulance both responded to the emergency call.

Alvin Amberson, age 59, and Ella Amberson, age 44, were taken by Oklee Ambulance to First Care Hospital in Fosston with first and second degree burns. Both were then transferred to United Hospital in Grand Forks. Ella was then transferred to St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center burn unit in the Twin Cities. As of Monday morning, Ella was listed in good condition.

There was extensive damage to a portion of the house in Gully.

The incident is under investigation by the Polk County Sheriff's department and Minnesota State Fire Marshall.

Two die in plane crash

Two rural Roseau men were killed in a plane crash Sunday west of Salol.

Roseau County sheriff's department received a report of an airplane crash west of Salol at about 2:51 p.m. on August 15. Roseau fire and ambulance, Warroad fire and ambulance, a conservation officer, Minnesota state patrol and members of the Roseau county sheriff's department responded.

Upon arrival at the scene, responders located a Piper J3 Cub on fire with two occupants still in the aircraft. The fire was extinguished. Both occupants of the aircraft were dead at the scene. The aircraft was a total loss. Eyewitnesses reported that the fire occurred after the aircraft struck the ground. The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has been called in to investigate the accident.

Dead are David Dahl, age 50, and Rocky Vatnsdal, age 35, both of rural Roseau. The investigation is continuing by the Roseau county sheriff's department, FAA and Roseau county coroner.

cause taste, odor, and color. This is a new treatment method which will be phased into operation. Powdered activated carbon absorbs compounds that cause taste, odor and color. Polymer is a coagulant aid used to assist the primary coagulant with the removal of turbidity.

The primary softening basin reduces the hardness of the raw water. The lime added to the water causes the hardness in the water to change from a soluble bicarbonate state to the insoluble carbonate state. In the process, if any agricultural chemicals are present, they will be removed with the precipitated hardness compounds. Soda ash or sodium carbonate, which is added to the water, removes the noncarbonate hardness. Polymer is added in order to assist in the settling of hardness particles.

The secondary softening basin reduces the pH to a range of 9.0 to 10.0, which removes the hydroxide and carbonate alkalinity. This causes the hardness in the water to revert back into solution as bicarbonates. As the water leaves the secondary basin, a corrosion inhibiter is used to protect the pipes in the distribution system and home plumbing from leaching of copper and lead. Carbon dioxide, which is added in the secondary basin, reduces the alkalinity of the water. A polymer is added to assist in the settling of carbonate hardness.

Eventually, the water flows through filters. The filters receive water from the secondary softening basins. The objective of the filter process is to remove any turbidity carry-over from the basins. In effect, they provide a finish polishing to the water before the disinfection process begins.

These filters use the full depth of the bed, not just the surface layer. Small voids between grains of sand and the fissures in the anthracite coal collect and hold the colloidal solids until the filter is backwashed.

Backwashing consist of pumping finished water backwards through the filter to flush out the trapped particles.

The backwash water flows to the wash water recovery basin. From this basin, the water is pumped back to the presedimentation basin for reprocessing.

The filters are composed of 18-inches of anthracite coal, 3-inches of torpedo sand, 14-inches of filter sand, and 14-inches of fine gravel.

The next step in the processing of our water involves three clearwells. These basins operate in series and have baffled channels that allow uniform mixing and flow patterns. This ensures complete mixing and reaction of the disinfectants used.

As the water leaves the last clearwell, anhydrous ammonia is added. This process converts the disinfectant from a "free chlorine" to a "chloramine". A chloramine disinfectant has less taste and odor than free chlorine. Normal disinfectant residual of the water pumped to the system is 3.0 parts per million.

The water is then pumped to finished water reserves. The city has a total storage capacity of 3 million gallons. From reserves, water is pumped into the distribution piping and elevated tanks. The west tank has a storage capacity of 0.5 million gallons. The east tower has a storage capacity of 0.25 million gallons.

The total value of the treatment plant, which includes the existing plant and new expansion, is estimated at $10 million. The total value of the entire water system is $28 million.

EXTENDED NON-OWNED AUTO COVERAGE

The personal auto policy excludes coverage for non-owned autos that are "furnished or available for regular use". An obvious example would be if you are allowed to drive a work car home on a regular basis and use it for personal use.

The way to address this exposure is to add an Extended Non-owned Auto endorsement. This endorsement will broaden the regular personal auto coverage FOR THE INDIVIDUAL NAMED IN THE ENDORSEMENT. Any person in need of Extended Non-owned coverage must be specifically named in the endorsement.

This coverage is always excess over other collectible insurance on a non-owned auto.

The extended non-owned auto endorsement can be added for a minimal cost, and is valuable protection to have if you have this exposure.

ACTIVITIES

Food From Gardens

Most young children have an aversion to vegetables. A good way to encourage them to eat vegetables, especially raw vegetables, is to have them help gather the food from the garden and help prepare it to eat.

You will have to work with whatever vegetables you grow in your garden, but some good ones for kids to help with and eat raw are carrots, tomatos, turnips, kohlrabi and peas.

If you are not lucky enough to have a garden, the supermarket will be a good substitute.

Careful Confrontation

Every family will experience conflict, this we know. What we may not know is how to handle this conflict. Studies on anger suggest effective steps in dealing with anger and conflict involve appropriate expression and a readiness to deal with the issues that caused the anger. In other words, "care-ful" or "caring" confrontation. You may have to train yourself to think differently and this in turn can show your children how to handle their anger and conflicts.

Look behind the anger. Consider what is causing the anger rather than focusing on the anger itself. Anger is often a secondary emotion. For example, you or your spouse may feel angry when your child misbehaves in public. But first you probably felt frustrated or embarrassed. Or your child may feel angry when a playmate takes his toy, but first he may have felt helpless or taken advantage of.

Listen carefully when someone else shares or reports their anger to you. Listen for feelings other than anger. By listening for all the feelings a more helpful response can be made. This is crucial. We all experience a deeply felt desire to be heard and understood. When no one seems to understand, anger can escalate. On the other hand, when someone listens carefully and tries to hear and understand all our feelings, anger lessens. Be willing to look for other feelings behind the anger. As you do this you will show your children by your example how to do the same.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Put into words what you think is causing your child's anger. For example, "When your brother takes your toys, you feel angry because he didn't ask first."

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

... W-H-I-N-E, W-H-I-N-E

The mosquitoes have taken over. No one is safe from them.

Not only is it impossible to go outside at night because of mosquitoes, but it is impossible to be outside at any time. It is impossible to hang clothes or do the gardening in the morning; it is impossible to go for a walk or sunbathe in the afternoon; and it is impossible to have a picnic, go fishing or play games outside in the evening.

It is impossible to wear comfortable hot weather clothes, like shorts. This summer everyone seems to be wearing long sleeves and heavy pants. Has anyone dared wear sandals this year? Feet and toes are special mosquito treats, it seems.

The mosquitoes have also invaded the house. They swarm in when the doors are opened or through a slit in the screen, and then they lie in wait to emerge to buzz and bite whenever someone is most comfortable and relaxed.

Reading a book or doing some handiwork by lamplight is nearly impossible. Mosquitoes flock to the light and feast upon the person sitting nearby. They w-h-i-n-e and dive bomb, getting caught in hair and biting tender ears and neck.

For a while there I thought that I was catching something horrible, because I was seeing spots out of the corners of my eyes whenever I sat still in the evening. Now I realize I am fine. I was just seeing the mosquitoes flitting and fluttering around me as I sat under the light. It's just become a common occurrence to see spots every evening. I suppose I wouldn't know if I were really catching something—I would just assume the spots were those pesky mosquitoes.

There is no such thing as a quiet evening with the family any more. It seems as though any time the family is together, watching a movie or some such, the peace is interrupted. One or another of us gives a jump, makes a squeaking sound, and swats some part of our body. Soon we are all scratching various body parts and passing the Calamine lotion back and forth. This is not what I would call a pleasant family activity.

The mosquitoes in my house like to sit and wait in the bathroom. I suppose they like the water there, as well as the fertile feasting grounds they have whenever someone dares to enter the room for whatever reason. Believe me, it is downright dangerous to take a shower and wash off the repellent. Now I arm myself with a fly swatter whenever I go into that room.

Often they will wait to begin their feasting until we are in bed. Is there anything worse than the w-h-i-n-e, w-h-i-n-e of a mosquito on a hot night when all of the covers are kicked to the bottom of the bed and one is lying there, miserably hot, perspiring, uncovered? How vulnerable and exposed we feel as we listen and wait for the w-h-i-n-i-n-g to stop and know that some tender part of us will fall prey to the sting and bite of the mosquito and then we will spend the entire night scratching the spot.

I know my garage is a breeding ground for the little buggers. I hardly dare enter it without covering myself with mosquito spray, and, even then, I must make a mad dash for my car lest I get eaten alive.

Usually, several mosquitoes enter the car with me, and then the fun begins. Mosquitoes must have larger brains than we give them credit for, because they wait until I am driving along and have both hands on the wheel before they start to attack me. They just seem to know that I cannot squish them when I am driving and that they have free feasting until I get to my destination.

All of this mosquito bombardment is making me very nervous and jittery. To prove to you just how overwrought I am from these mosquitoes, last week I happened to look out of my car window and saw a two-inch long mosquito, the largest I have ever seen, trying to get in at me. I panicked? Lucky I realized it was a dragon fly before I started screaming at the top of my lungs.

Thank You

We wish to thank everyone who has so generously offered expressions of comfort and support to our family since the death of our precious Logan. We are fortunate to live in a community where people work so hard to help one another. Thank you to all who sent cards or brought food or lent us a shoulder to cry on. What you have done for us has sustained us while our hearts are broken with a pain we never could have imagined.

Thank you to the Law Enforcement Center personnel for your dedication and training to be able to respond so quickly when needed, and to Drs. Bray and Patel and everyone at Northwest Medical Center and ambulance for doing everything humanly possible. Thank you to Karen Gladen and Pastor Don Pederson for waiting with our children during the uncertain hours and to Pastor Neil Gladen who seemed never to leave our side.

Thank you to Pastors Gladen and Pederson for Logan's funeral service and to the members of The Redeemer's Band - Paula Adamson, Dave Sisler, Greg Dally, Joel Johnson, Karen Gladen and Neil Gladen for your special kind of music that Logan always enjoyed. Thank you, too, to Joyce Halbasch and Paula Adamson for your beautiful organ-piano duets, and to the Redeemer Innkeepers for providing the lunch. Thank you to everyone at Green's Funeral Home for your care and consideration.

Thanks especially to Logan's friends at Sunday School and Nursery School and to all who loved him, for being his friends. He learned many lessons about the goodness of people, because people were so good to him. Thanks for tractor rides, for chats by the mailbox, for special hair cuts, for letting him carry packages to the house, and for answering his many questions about how things work. Logan loved people, he loved life and we miss him.

Have you seen it????? Have you done it????? What, you may ask am I writing about? Have you seen what? Have you done what? Has this writer truly flipped???

Have you seen the new dance??? Have you done the new dance??? What dance am I talking about?? Well, you ought to have seen this dance, and most likely you have also done this dance—the Minnesota Mosquito Hop!!!

For those of you who have not had the privilege of doing or watching others do this dance, here's a description of it, in case you need to quickly learn it.

First of all, this dance hopefully is done outside. If you have to do this dance indoors, you are in need of major repairs to your home!!! So, to learn this dance, go outside and please remember to close the door after you quickly! Once outside, the dance is pretty easy to learn, even for those of us, like me, who have never danced!! Just follow your instincts, if not your heart, and you will be in tune to the Minnesota Mosquito Hop. An intregal part of this dance is hopping around on first one foot, and then the other while slapping yourself as fast and quickly as possible with either or both hands, as well as your chin, and also both feet. The hopping is to keep your body moving faster than the swarms of mosquitoes which are an important part of this dance. The slapping of yourself with hands and feet and chin is to keep those mosquitoes which have lighted on your skin from biting you. As you are hopping and slapping, you also need to be shaking your head vigorously so as to ward off any friendly mosquitoes from calling your mane their home for a while!

The Minnesota Mosquito Hop always ends like this: As the person makes a last few valiant slaps and hops he quickly runs to indoor shelter—hoping that he has not been locked out!! As he opens to door of his home, or the door of his vehicle, he opens the door quickly and as little as possible. He slams the door behind him. He looks around to see how many mosquitoes have come in with him. He finds a quiet corner to rest in after this vigorous exercise, the Minnesota Mosquito Hop.

Now, if you are determined to continue in the out-of-doors, you will need to figure out a way to not have to do this Minnesota Mosquito Hop constantly. As I have written before, we are walkers. It's not much fun walking when the Minnesota Mosquito Hop has to be done constantly, so creative walking needs to be invented. Now, I know that Thief River Falls has gone to much trouble to create nice sidewalks for us. But, have you tried walking the sidewalks??? As we did the other night, we found that we were no longer walking, but doing the Minnesota Mosquito Hop instead. So, we ducked down the closest alley and headed home. Surprise!!! The alley was almost mosquito free, as long as we were walking. So, down the alley we walked, wondering why we were inundated by mosquitoes on the sidewalks, but not the alleys? We decided that the sidewalks were basically undisturbed, while the alleys, and the roads, had been disturbed by vehicles so that the mosquitoes were not as swarmy as on the sidewalks. So, down the alley and down the streets we walked.

Another way to not have to do the Minnesota Mosquito Hop all the time you are out-of-doors, is to spray yourself with some of the ghastly smelling stuff called mosquito repellent. This stuff works for a while, but long after it has lost its repellency to mosquitoes, it is still making you a somewhat repellent smelling person to be near. But, spray ourselves we do, just to have a few moments of stillness outside. Our town has been combating the mosquitoes all summer as they have been spraying for mosquitoes most weeks this summer. But, somehow, with the moisture we have, the mosquitoes just seem to always be waiting to once again out-smart the spray we use to eliminate them.

We think that it is bad here, can you imagine the quantity of mosquitoes the truly flooded areas of our nation have? How very tired the people must be of doing their own Mosquito Hops!!

Things could be worse than having to do the Minnesota Mosquito Hop. I was told about a bee problem that Cape Cod had after a hurricane which stripped it of the vegetation the bees needed to survive. Instead of being attacked by mosquitoes, the people were attacked by hungry bees. So, in order to not have to do the Cape Cod Bee Hop, the people were instructed to feed the the bees by leaving sugar water for the bees. The bees were happy, and so were the people. Wouldn't it be nice if we could rid ourselves of our attack mosquitoes so easily? I guess we'll just have to all learn the Minnesota Mosquito Hop. Remember, soon it will be 40 below zero and mosquitoes will only be a dream—bad though it may be!! Happy Hopping!

Outdoor News

With the hunting season fast approaching, the amount of rewards in the Turn In Poachers program will be increasing. But TIP needs the help of the public to ensure its future.

TIP, Inc. is a nonprofit statewide membership organization. Unlike most anti-poaching programs in the U.S., TIP receives no money from the state of Minnesota or hunting or fishing license fees. Almost all of the TIP funding comes from membership donations and banquets.

Since its inception in 1981, TIP has been responsible for over 3,800 poaching arrests. More than $230,000 has been paid in rewards.

The TIP program has been promoted through advertisements statewide, news releases, magazine articles, and membership newsletters. In addition TIP provides approximately 18,000 graduates of the Youth Firearms Safety program with a one-year free TIP membership.

Membership donations to TIP are tax deductible. The one-year membership categories include associate - $15; contributing - $40 (includes current wildlife art print); sustaining - $100; and sponsor - $500. A junior membership, for youngsters 17-years-old and under, is $5. Membership donations may be sent to TIP, Inc., 5701 Normandale Road, Minneapolis, MN 55424.

With help from the public, TIP can make a difference in stopping poaching, point out group officials. If you have information for the TIP Hot Line call 1-800-652-9093.

Youth Deer Hunting Provision

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced details of an experimental program that allows firearms deer hunters under the age of 16 to take antlerless deer without an antlerless permit in 1993 and 1994. The program, authorized by the 1993 Legislature, is intended to encourage and maintain participation in deer hunting by young hunters.

"Studies have shown that success, or at least the expectation of success, can result in additional interest in deer hunting by young people," explained Dave Schad, DNR Forest Wildlife Program leader. "While we do not want to send a message to youth hunters that they need to bag a deer to have an enjoyable and successful hunt, it is important that new young hunters continue to participate in deer hunting to provide for future support of deer management programs," Schad said.

Under the provision, resident hunters who will be under age 16 as the the first day of the firearms deer season are eligible. For 1993, this includes any resident born on or after Nov. 7, 1977. Eligible youth who have purchased a valid firearms deer license may take antlerless deer in the zone and time period punched on their license, expect in Zone 3A, and in those antlerless permit areas where no antlerless permits are offered. In those areas, all hunters will continue to be restricted to taking only legal bucks. Youth hunters who qualify for this provision may not apply for an antlerless permit, and will not be allowed to accrue preference in the antlerless permit computer system.

Non-residents and youth hunters interested in a firearms special hunt must continue to apply for permits.

Schad explained that one important provision of the new law is that other members of the youth's party are prohibited from shooting antlerless deer for the young hunter. "While this will obviously be difficult to enforce, Schad said, "It is important that adults make sure that this does not become another party permit."

Many residents of Thief River Falls took seriously an invitation to tour the water treatment plant following dedication ceremonies last Thursday. Many had tough questions for the water plant operators. The $6.7 million expansion at the plant was recently completed.

Lorna Hanson

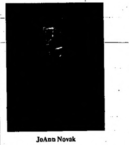
TRF woman lands head of detention job

Lorna Hanson, daughter of Evon K. and Elna Hanson of Thief River Falls, has become the head of detention at the Charleston county detention center in Columbia, South Carolina.

Hanson is a graduate of Lincoln high school and Northland Community College. After graduating from the law enforcement program at Northland Community College she transferred to St. Cloud State where she earned a bachelor of science degree. She then completed her master's degree in criminal justice at the University of South Carolina in 1977. She became a teacher at St. Cloud State University in Minnesota for a year and then worked at the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls for four years. She also worked as a deputy warden of the Women's Correctional Center in Columbia and eight years as an instructor in prison management at the Criminal Justice Academy in Columbia.

Hanson was recently featured in an article in The Post and Courier in Columbia, SC. The news story states that upon taking the job, Hanson was immediately thrown into overseeing the completion of the new jail. The major part of the $23 million project is expected to be finished and turned over to the sheriff's office this fall.

The complete 582-bed capacity jail includes space for 71 females and a section for inmates with medical or mental problems. There also are cells designed for handicapped use.



JoAnn Novak

JoAnn Novak delegate to church meet

When the 1993 churchwide assembly of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America gathers August 25-September 1 in Kansas City's convention center, JoAnn Novak of Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls will be taking part as one of about 1,000 voting members.

The assembly's task will be to consider studies, social statements and strategies, as well as items forwarded by the ELCA's 65 synod assemblies.

Social statements dealing with racial justice and the environment will come before the churchwide assembly. If they are passed they will provide guidelines for ELCA teaching and practice.

"Caring for Creation: Vision, Hope and Justice" is the environmental statement. "Freed in Christ: Race, Ethnicity and Culture" will be considered during the days marking the 30th anniversary of the 1963 civil rights march on Washington.

Study reports will be given by task forces for Study of Ministry, Study of Theological Education and Study of Baptism.

The assembly will address churchwide strategies related to stewardship development, rural ministry, Lutheran-Reformed theological conversations and women and children living in poverty.

Webelos Den earns conservation award

Webelos Den 2a in Cub Scout Pack 59 of Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls recently completed a conservation project and other requirements which allowed them to earn the Cut Scout World conservation Award, a special international award.

The project consisted of building and mounting various bird houses for the Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon sanctuary southeast of Warren.

With the help of Jim Knott, the boys built six bluebird/wren houses, two wood duck houses and a bat house. They then traveled to the sanctuary and with the help of Brad, the sanctuary manager, and Shelly Steva of the Audubon Society board, mounted the houses in various spots in the sanctuary.

Requirements in addition to the project for earning the World Conservation Award are the Forester, Naturalist and Outdoorsman Webelos activity badges which had been earned by the boys during the past year.

Members of the den, which has Sylvia Sjoberg as den leaders, include Dane Jensen, Nick Knott, David Olson, Ryan Peoples, John Sjoberg and Dewey Worker.

Outdoor News

With the hunting season fast approaching, the amount of rewards in the Turn In Poachers program will be increasing. But TIP needs the help of the public to ensure its future.

TIP, Inc. is a nonprofit statewide membership organization. Unlike most anti-poaching programs in the U.S., TIP receives no money from the state of Minnesota or hunting or fishing license fees. Almost all of the TIP funding comes from membership donations and banquets.

Since its inception in 1981, TIP has been responsible for over 3,800 poaching arrests. More than $230,000 has been paid in rewards.

The TIP program has been promoted through advertisements statewide, news releases, magazine articles, and membership newsletters. In addition TIP provides approximately 18,000 graduates of the Youth Firearms Safety program with a one-year free TIP membership.

Membership donations to TIP are tax deductible. The one-year membership categories include associate - $15; contributing - $40 (includes current wildlife art print); sustaining - $100; and sponsor - $500. A junior membership, for youngsters 17-years-old and under, is $5. Membership donations may be sent to TIP, Inc., 5701 Normandale Road, Minneapolis, MN 55424.

With help from the public, TIP can make a difference in stopping poaching, point out group officials. If you have information for the TIP Hot Line call 1-800-652-9093.

Youth Deer Hunting Provision

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced details of an experimental program that allows firearms deer hunters under the age of 16 to take antlerless deer without an antlerless permit in 1993 and 1994. The program, authorized by the 1993 Legislature, is intended to encourage and maintain participation in deer hunting by young hunters.

"Studies have shown that success, or at least the expectation of success, can result in additional interest in deer hunting by young people," explained Dave Schad, DNR Forest Wildlife Program leader. "While we do not want to send a message to youth hunters that they need to bag a deer to have an enjoyable and successful hunt, it is important that new young hunters continue to participate in deer hunting to provide for future support of deer management programs," Schad said.

Under the provision, resident hunters who will be under age 16 as the the first day of the firearms deer season are eligible. For 1993, this includes any resident born on or after Nov. 7, 1977. Eligible youth who have purchased a valid firearms deer license may take antlerless deer in the zone and time period punched on their license, expect in Zone 3A, and in those antlerless permit areas where no antlerless permits are offered. In those areas, all hunters will continue to be restricted to taking only legal bucks. Youth hunters who qualify for this provision may not apply for an antlerless permit, and will not be allowed to accrue preference in the antlerless permit computer system.

Non-residents and youth hunters interested in a firearms special hunt must continue to apply for permits.

Schad explained that one important provision of the new law is that other members of the youth's party are prohibited from shooting antlerless deer for the young hunter. "While this will obviously be difficult to enforce, Schad said. "It is important that adults make sure that this does not become another party permit."

Concrete block walls are rising at the site of the new Challenger elementary school on the south edge of Thief River Falls. This view to the north shows the walls of the fourth and fifth grade section of the building. It is expected the wall construction will take about three months with a goal of enclosing the building so that interior work can continue during the winter months.

Challenger school is to be ready for '94-'95

Despite much rainy weather during the 1993 construction season, the new Challenger elementary school is presently on track for completion in time for opening day of the 1994-95 school year.

The school building is located off Pennington Avenue on the south edge of Thief River Falls on property purchased from Abundant Life Church. School District 564 purchased 59.2 acres from the Abundant Life congregation for a total of $88,800. Total cost of the elementary school project is placed at $10 million.

Challenger elementary is one part of a total $18 million school building and remodeling project authorized by voters who approved a bond issue for that amount in September of 1992. Through a debt service equalization formula, the State of Minnesota will pay about $14 million of the $18 million total.

When the Challenger school is opened for the 1994-95 term it will be the only public elementary school for the community, replacing Knox, Mark Twain, Northrop and Washington elementary schools.

The school is designed to provide three separate "school houses." The one housing early childhood, kindergarten and first grade students will be located in the southwest portion of the building. Second and third grade pupils will have their "school house" in the southeast portion and fourth and fifth grade students will be in the northeast part of the building.

Separating the second-third and fourth-fifth sections of the building will be music rooms and media center. Special education department will be located along the east side of the building, also between the second-third and fourth-fifth classroom areas.

There are also staff areas, computer and activity areas and computer rooms in each of the three separate "school houses" and each will have its own access to separate playground areas, equipped appropriately for the age of student.

Located in the northwest part of the building will be the gymnasium, cafeteria and kitchen and the mechanical portion of the school. The building will be heated and cooled with the use of geothermal energy supplied through glycol-filled flexible pipes located in 560 holes, 150 feet deep.

The building itself has 140,000 square feet of interior floor space and is designed to handle 1,000 students. It will have nearly half a mile of exterior wall, construction of concrete block with brick facing. Block wall construction is well underway and is expected to take about three months to complete.

More than 40 contractors have been awarded contracts for various areas of the construction with the school district itself acting as the general contractor. E & V, Incorporated of Minneapolis is serving as the construction management firm with Bill Huttinga as project manager and Jim Haspass as site superintendent.

Haspass is living in the community and supervising the elementary school project. He will also be in charge of supervision for the Lincoln senior high school project to be bid Thursday and Franklin middle school and school district service center projects to follow.

Groundbreaking for the elementary school was attended by hundreds of people on Monday, May 10, with many of the district's elementary school children taking part in the program. Essay winners Carisa Hendrickson, fourth grader at Knox and Valerie Basher, fifth grader at Washington, read their winning essays.

The name "Challenger" was recommended by a name selection committee at a regular meeting May 24. The committee had asked for public suggestions and received 140 different names to consider. In a vote among three final names by elementary students, Challenger was preferred over Grandview and Odyssey by a majority of students in all four schools.

Following approval of the schematic drawings for the school in January of this year, school board chairman Larry Belmont said that "the time and effort put into this building has been phenomenal.

"Each committee member seems to have been totally involved in this plan and it shows," he said. "The school is going to be an exciting place for our district's children. It's what this school board hoped for and it's true to the plan presented to the community (prior to the bond issue election)."

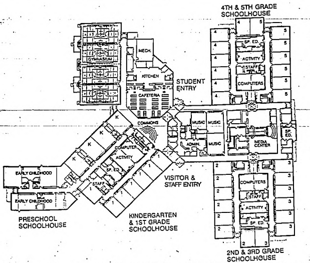
More than 30 public meetings were conducted in July and August of 1992 to present information on the building proposal, answer questions and receive suggestions from interested public.

"Changes in the plan are really a response to questions from the community before the bond issue," Belmont said.

General student entry to the building will be from the north where students arriving by school bus will enter. The main public entrance will be on the south side of the school and will provide immediate access to the administrative area.

Among changes were (1) addition of activity areas to each of the "school houses" which could flex for classroom space if elementary numbers exceed current projections; (2) re-design of physical education space to better meet the needs of differently abled and specially challenged students; (3) development of the cafeteria into a multi-purpose space that will also provide a comfortable, easily-supervised area for children to gather before and after school; and (4) design of the bus unloading and loading area so kindergarten and first grade students are separated from those in the older grades.

Because the school location will alter traffic patterns and volume, the school district has been working closely with the City of Thief River Falls and Pennington County through their council and board of commissioners regarding roads and safety measures.



Challenger elementary school now under construction on the south edge of Thief River Falls will provide space for about 1,000 students in three separate "school houses" as shown in the plan above. Early childhood, kindergarten and first grade will utilize the area at the bottom left part of the drawing. Second and third grades will be in the lower right section and fourth and fifth grades in the upper right section. Cafeteria, kitchen, gymnasium and mechanical area are in the upper left portion of this floor plan drawing.

Magnet Arts draws students in three new areas of study

Northern Expressions School of the Arts will have three new areas of artistic classes this fall in its second year of operation. Marie Hvidsten, who coordinates the program, says that this will add a great deal to the scope of the project.

Media Arts will be taught by Alice Hoflad, who will teach photography and film-making, and Dave Peterson, who will cover computer use in this field.

Visual Arts, which has four students accepted at present, will be taught by Sandy Larson.

No teacher has so far been named for the Dance area, which is being planned to extend beyond the high school program and into local elementary classes.

The three art areas continued from last year are music, theater arts and literary arts.

Sara Tyler, a major in literary arts for the past year, says she can tell that her writing has improved and she has developed her writing style particularly in the essays and short stories she enjoys the most. She points out that by the end of the school year "you could tell who wrote what because you would recognize the writing style of each person." The students would spend time both in and out of class on writing assignments. Sara, who likes literature of all kinds, also plays the cello and hopes to go into a career in publishing or become a college instructor. "I need to have writing as a part of any career I enter," she adds.

The classes in the art areas are held in two-hour blocks with all students in the program taking an "Expressive Connections" course for one hour. It is an interdisciplinary study in humanities. This course is taught by Connie Stock as well as others in a team-teaching system. Elements of each art area are featured to give the students exposure to art areas a little different than their own.

Northern Expressions School of the Arts is a tuition-free magnet arts school for the Seventh Congressional District of Minnesota and is open to any student who is in the eleventh or twelfth grade during the 1993-94 school year.

Plan for co-located campuses made

In 1993, legislation was passed that required all co-located campuses in the state to develop a plan to consolidate administrative services and support services. The plans are due to the State Board of Technical Colleges and the State Board of Community Colleges on December 31, 1993. Dr.. Orley Gunderson, TRF Campus President, and Dr. Jim Haviland, Northland Community College President, have developed a preliminary plan which has been submitted to Chancellor Carole Johnson and Chancellor Geri Evans. The plan proposes the establishment of several committees with representation from faculty, support services, students, and the community. A Steering Committee will appoint various task forces to study areas of cooperation. Areas to be studies would include administration, student services, instruction, human resources, special needs/support services, bookstore, Student Senate, etc. Initial committee assignments will be made in September. A final report will be submitted to the NTC Board in December.

HOUSING SHORTAGE FACED BY INCOMING STUDENTS

As Thief River Falls college campuses prepare for the upcoming fall quarter, incoming students are facing difficulties in locating adequate housing. Northwest Technical College in Thief River Falls is, again, reaching out for the public's cooperation in providing living quarters for students from outside the immediate area. Many requests are received daily for one and two bedroom apartments and sleeping rooms. If any area residents have facilities available, and would offer them for rent to students, please call Northwest Technical College-Thief River Falls at 681-5424.

"I didn't want to go to Northland"

Stephanie Vigen

Stephanie Vigen was a typical high school senior, excited and a little apprehensive about life after high school. Stephanie had known what she wanted to be ever since the 7th grade. Like most of her friends, she could hardly wait to get out on her own and experience college life. Stephanie wanted to go to UND and minor in occupational therapy. After all, UND was where most of her friends were going.

Stephanie's mother wanted her to visit Northland and see what they had to offer. She agreed to go, with hopes that if she did, her mother would drop the idea. Only her mother didn't.

"My mother met me after school and drove me over to NCC because she thought I wouldn't go on my own," said Stephanie.

She later admitted she probably wouldn't have.

Stephanie thought NCC was where people went when they didn't know what they were going to do with their lives.

"I had my life planned out," said Stephanie.

She also felt her friends would look down on her because she wasn't going to a big university.

While visiting NCC, Stephanie and her mother found out she could take one full year at NCC and then transfer to UND.

Stephanie's mother was quick to point out the money they could save in tuition and room and board for that first year. Besides, Stephanie's mother wasn't sure if her daughter was ready to live on her own. After many hours of convincing, Stephanie reluctantly agreed to go to Northland.

Through the workstudy program, Stephanie was able to work as a receptionist in Student Services during the summer before she started classes.

Even though she was gradually becoming familiar with the campus, she admits she wasn't thrilled with the idea of going to Northland until after school started. She recalls the day she began liking Northland. It was during Welcome Week. NCC sponsored a pig roast and all the students were invited to eat and socialize.

"I started meeting lots of people and making friends," said Stephanie.

All of a sudden, Northland didn't seem to be such a bad choice. Within no time at all, Stephanie became involved in Student Senate, Phi Theta Kappa, and intramurals.

During the holidays and breaks, Stephanie would get together with her old high school friends. No one thought less of her for going to Northland.

"I was far more involved in clubs and activities than they were," said Stephanie. She added, "Some of my friends that went away to school ended up coming to Northland later in the year because they had a hard time adjusting at a bigger college."

Stephanie knew almost everyone on campus by the end of fall quarter. She also liked the smaller class size.

"I got to know my instuctors and felt comfortable asking questions in class," said Stephanie.

This fall Stephanie will transfer to UND. She is a little nervous but confident in her abilities to succeed. Stephanie is quick to admit that her mother was right.

Preparing for the SAT ACT

Facing an SAT or ACT test this year? Are you prepared for it? Most people feel they're not. But most people also feel there is no way they can prepare in a short time - that if they don't know it by now, they won't be able to learn it before the test. That is faulty thinking. The human brain is able to learn a large number of things in a comparatively short period of time. Also, if you prepare for these tests, you will also be preparing for the types of methods of thinking while taking them. Often, the people who score well on such tests were the ones who were prepared to think along the lines of the test. Just as you evaluate what a teacher is looking for on tests by the first test you take from him/her, so can you understand how to take these tests by preparing for them.

The SATS are divided into verbal and mathematical sections. The verbal section is further divided into a vocabulary and antonym portion, an analogies questions section, a sentence completion portion, and a reading comprehension unit. The mathematics section is comprised of questions related to fractions, decimals and signed numbers, percentages, exponents and roots, ration and proportion, operations with Algebraic expressions, motion problems, average problems, integer problem, angle relationships, area problems, geometry of solids, coordinate geometry, inequalities, interpretation of data, quantitative comparison problems, and direct and inverse variation.

There are SAT/ACT preparatory materials available for purchase at bookstores as well as your public library. In fact, the TRF public library even has computer software on preparation for these two tests. Other resources can be teachers and other students who have recently taken these tests.

ECFE offers early childhood programs

A program of School District #564 - Community Education Department.

The Thief River Falls Early Childhood Family Education program is designed for parents and their children ages birth up to kindergarten who live in the Thief River Falls School District. The program is based on the recognition that learning begins at birth and the home is the first learning environment; thus making the parent a child's first and most important teacher. Since few people have the opportunity to be prepared for parenting, ECFE is designed to provide education information, resources, support and encouragement to parents.

ECFE offers classes for parents and their children grouped around the age of the child on a quarterly basis (fall, winter and spring). Most classes meet once a week for one oR 1 1/2 hours depending on the age of the child. Registration precedes each quarter, however, participants may register for any session at any time until it fills.

The ECFE classes provide stories, games and activities for children and parents to do together based on the developmental stage of the child. They also provide parents with information on parenting such as discipline, nutrition, toilet training, language development, school readiness and more.

Fall quarter classes will start the week of September 20 with registration starting on September 7. The class schedule will be published in the ECFE newsletter which will be mailed on September 3rd. This newsletter is mailed to every family in the TRF School District with preschool children. If you are new in town please call 681-8670 to be placed on the mailing list.

In addition to classes ECFE offers a wide variety of other activities/services to families with preschool children, including the following:

- Library Story Time - for parents and children at the N.W. Regional Library. Call 681-4325 or 681-8670 for information.
- Home Visits - to families who would like parenting information and resources provided in their home.
- Young Parent Classes - parenting classes for parents who are teens or in their early 20's.

NCC Chemistry lab goes high tech

Computers now play a big role in chemistry classes at Northland Community College in Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Last fall, NCC purchased the IBM Personal Laboratory Software to use in the chemistry labs. Instructor William Moeglein spent one quarter on sabbatical setting up the equipment and automating data taking in the lab.

"There's a whole new series of topics we can discover," said Moeglein.

The tedious process of data collecting is now done by the computer. Once the information is gathered, students are able to quickly access the information both statistically and graphically with the data being far more precise.

"Students are able to spend less time collecting data and more time analyzing it," said Moeglein.

Most students enrolled in Introduction to Chemistry at NCC have never had chemistry in high school. According to Moeglein, the automated lab eliminates the number crunching part of the course that really used to slow the class down.

"We accomplish a lot more in class and twice as much in our labs," says Moeglein. Moeglein added that he is now able to introduce topics in his Introduction to Chemistry class that were formerly considered upper division material.

"We're reinforcing computer skills in the lab," said Moeglein, "and more importantly, we are preparing students for the business world. This is how it's done professionally."

Moeglein plans to apply for grants to offer workshops for other instructors interested in automating their science labs.

Computers now play a big role in chemistry classes at Northland community college by making the tedious process of data collection much quicker. Ramanathan hired as Northland business instructor

Gajen Ramanathan was recently hired as the new business instructor at Northland Community College.

Ramanathan worked as a graduate assistant in the Department of Management at the University of Toledo.

Ramanathan also has extensive experience in the computer field. He served as computer consultant and lab assistant at the University of Toledo. He was also the Assistant Comptroller and Data Processing Coordinator at American Mills, Inc., in Jackson, Tennessee and was a programmer for Software Alternatives, Inc., in Toledo, Ohio.

He is the executive committee member of Teaching Resources to Encourage Excellence (TREE), and a member of the Institute of Internal Auditors, Inc. He is the founding member and president of The Tamil Society and Central Representative Council Member of the International Student Association.

Ramanathan, originally from Sri Lanka, is fluent in the Tamil language.

Terry Wiseth named as Biology instructor at NCC

Terry Wiseth will be the new biology instructor at NCC. He replaces Dr. Charles Samuelson, who retired last year.

Wiseth has been teaching part-time in the science, math, and physical education fields at NCC for the past six years. He has also been head baseball coach at NCC since 1988 and assistant football defensive coordinator since 1987.

Wiseth holds a masters degree in general science from North Dakota State University and a bachelor's degree in biology from Dana College.

During the summer months, Wiseth is a Crop Hail Adjustor for Crop Hail Management in Fargo, North Dakota. Wiseth and his wife Darlene have five children: Stephanie, Steven, Stacy, Sallie and Spencer.

Never too old to learn: Going to NCC

Thirty years of life experience separated Eunice Udstrand from her last day of high school and her first day of college class.

"I was so nervous. I thought everyone would be wondering what someone my age was doing in college," said Eunice.

The fear of fitting in is quite common for nontraditional students. A nontraditional student is classified as any student over the age of 25.

Despite her fears, Eunice took the first step and visited the Financial Aid office at Northland. "I felt uncomfortable but the staff was unfailingly polite and friendly and gave no indication of surprise or amusement at someone my age being interested in returning to school," she said. Eunice even admitted that if she was stopped in the hallways she would act as though she was a visitor and not a potential student. Once Eunice found out she was financially able to afford college she began taking steps to register. Once Eunice found out she was financially able to afford college she began taking steps to register.

First she had to take the assessment test which is mandatory for all new full-time freshman entering Northland. Even though this is a test you can not pass or fail Eunice was terribly nervous.

"I began worrying about the ordeal 40 miles before Thief River Falls. It was tempting to drop the idea, but I didn't. Somehow I mustered up enough courage to go," she said.

As Eunice sat in the parking lot at Northland, she realized this was it. She could no longer pass herself off as a visitor. Everyone would now know she was a student.

Much to her surprise the testing and registration went fine that day. "The counselors who assisted with the testing and registration were, like the staff I had previously met, helpful, courteous and mater-of-fact," commented Eunice. "No one acted differently, towards me even though I was the oldest one in the room," she added.

Everything was now complete. Eunice had taken all the steps to register and even bought her books. Now came the tough part, the first day of class.

Eunice recalls that first day of class quite vividly. She remembers strolling down the corridor seeing hoards of young people who seemed to know where they were going and what they were doing. "I had hoped everyone I met would think I was faculty," said Eunice.

As she sat in her first class tense and uncomfortable, she began to notice no one seemed shocked or amused at the fact that she was a student. More importantly, as class started she began to relax and focus in on the subject matter rather than the age discrepancy. Eunice said that by the end of her first quarter at NCC she really started to enjoy her experiences and classes.
